Insull and the Lion.
Love, Light from Heaven.
The Shotgun Marriage.
He's in Jail. Where Are We?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

SAMUEL INSULL, seventy-four years old, finds life more interesting now, perhaps, than in days when his hardest work was signing a check, or putting together another "utilities" company.

This country wanted him for unpleasant reasons; Greece would no longer keep him. Now he is afloat on a tramp steamer, chartered by him, bound to obey his orders.

If he had money enough, he might sail the seas for life, hiring tugs to bring him coal and food. Sailing under a foreign flag, the United States ships could not disturb him.

HE MIGHT be a sort of "Flying Dutchman" from Chicago, but he is said to have a better plan and to be bound for Abyssinia, where the king, proud descendant, so he says, of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, which would call for a bar sinister, far back in the ancestral line, is a little short of ready cash.

It is suggested that Mr. Insull will lend the "Lion of Juda," one of the King's titles, about a quarter of a million dollars for an indefinite period, without interest, and the lion will let Mr. Insull stay in Abyssinia as long as he likes. Chicago justice may whistle.

Chicago friends are expected to provide the cash for the lion. You will not find the equal of that in many news stories.

"LOVE INDEED is light from Heaven." Lord Byron wrote it and Pao Dai, twenty-one-year-old emperor in French Indo-China, proves it. He loves little Marie Nguyen Hu Hao so much that he announces publicly his intention to end polygamy among his people.

He will have only one wife, as long as he lives. All he wants is little Marie, who is a commoner. Anybody can have all the others. May he stick to that, and never hear of Reno.

MARIE IS a Catholic, the young emperor is a Buddhist, his wife must profess Buddhism, and his heir must be a Buddhist.

Marie offered to raise her girls as Christians, her boys as Buddhists, and hoped that would be satisfactory to the church authorities. Perhaps the Vatican refused to consent.

SALVATION ARMY authorities in Florida announce a new view of an old moral question, sometimes described as "doing right by our Nell."

Mrs. George A. Stephan, wife of Adjutant Stephan, whose work is helping girls out of trouble, no longer believes in the old "shotgun" marriage idea.

Ideas have changed, Mrs. Stephan finds, and public opinion, that of women especially, is not as cruel as it used to be.

The young unmarried mother may find a place in life, Mrs. Stephan helps her to find it, and does not advocate the compulsory marriage, which was once thought a cure for all such troubles.

KINDNESS," says Mrs. Stephan, "has been found to do more for young unmarried mothers than a forced marriage between persons entirely unsuited to each other. The so-called shotgun wedding (when the angry father held a shotgun against the bridegroom's back) has been gradually fading out of existence, until at present it is frowned upon by social workers of all types."

JOHN CURRY, sentenced to life imprisonment four years ago when only fifteen, for helping in a "witch murder" in Pennsylvania, is developing artistic talent in prison. His pictures have been exhibited, important artists visit and show interest in him.

The young convict-artist says, "The work means a great deal to me because it makes the outside world, which I never may see again, real to me."

THE ARTISTS that encourage him, all of us that read about him, are not so different from him.

We are all working, struggling, trying, in a bigger prison that we call "the world," and trying to make the "outside world," which is the universe, real to us.

CURRY, COOPED up in a small prison, is doing his best and we, confined to a small planet whence we cannot escape, are doing our best, with science and the telescope and with religion and the eye of faith, to make real to us the outside limitless realms of space, and their ruling power.

THE GOVERNMENT of Switzerland, which owns the nation's telephone system, has established an automatic telephone chamber blasted out of the solid rock of the Alps, eleven thousand three hundred and forty feet above sea level, at the Jungfraujoch.

A cable nine miles long, all under ground, connects the lofty chamber with Lauterbrannen, at the bottom of the peak. From that automatic exchange, mysterious scientific machines working automatically, no human being at hand, connections can be made with all the principal cities of Europe.

IT MAY be true, as our "best minds" assure you, that our American government is not efficient enough or honest enough, perhaps not either, to own its own natural monopolies, but you cannot say that of little Switzerland, or some other countries.

Switzerland owns not only her telephone, telegraph and power systems, but also her railroads.

SMITH SAFETY OUSTER BALKED

Storm at Sea Perils Life of Insull

KIDNAP PLOT ON VESSEL HINTED

Freighter Zig-Zags Over Mediterranean Awaiting Orders

ATHENS, March 19.—(AP.)—Samuel Insull, Sr., erstwhile giant of American public utilities, cruised a storm-swept Mediterranean today in a tramp freighter.

His friends here said the very life of the 74-year-old man was endangered by the violence of the storm, since Insull was not a good sailor even in the days when he occupied whole suites in the best ocean liners afloat.

Rumor said the safety of the Chicago fugitive also was endangered by the presence aboard the old freighter of a group of gangsters who hoped to hold Insull for ransom.

The presence of gangsters was theoretical, but there was no question about the actuality of the storm.

WAIT INSTRUCTIONS

The freighter, the Maiotis, was presumed to be about 300 miles off shore, probably cruising in a zig zag course and awaiting instructions from the shore as to where Insull could head on his present attempt to escape United States justice.

Real concern was expressed for Insull's health, since he claims to be suffering from heart disease and this, it is known, is aggravated in his case by seasickness.

Last week on his 75-hour liberty at sea, he was unable to eat and suffered a heart attack. At that time the master of the Maiotis personally gave him medical attention, using a hypodermic.

STORM RAGING

On that occasion, however, the sea was comparative smooth and today a storm rages.

The Maiotis is seaworthy, although 46 years old—she apparently is beginning, however, to feel her age, for last Saturday night, just outside Piraeus, she broke down. The crew labored on her for some time before she got under way again.

However, the skipper knows the waters like a book and has piloted her between Greece and Black Sea ports for years.

U. S. READY TO ACT

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP.)—The State Department is prepared to take "appropriate action" with regard to bringing about return to the United States of Samuel Insull to face trial on charges in Illinois.

That is the only answer State Department officials will make to any and all questions concerning what, if any, moves the United States will take to apprehend Insull, now on the Mediterranean in a chartered vessel.

Officials take the attitude that any information of any kind they make public might aid Insull in his continued efforts to escape being returned to the United States.

MRS. BOLIVAR E. KEMP . . . SHE WON'T SEEK "RE-ELECTION"

Mrs. Kemp, a congressman's widow, who from her home near New Orleans announced that she will not be a candidate in Louisiana's Sixth District "run-off" election. Two elections, one run by Senator Huey Long's forces and one by independents, resulted in the election of two congressmen, one Mrs. Kemp, neither seated.

STEEL HEADS HERE WAR ON LABOR BILLS

Protest to Congress In Fear of Union Dictatorship

Charging that the Wagner and Connery bills would result in an actual dictatorship by professional labor leaders, steel men of the Pittsburgh district united today in protesting to Congress against the enactment of the proposed labor legislation.

A special conference of 75 executives representing 50 companies in the Pittsburgh area agreed to send telegrams to all United States Senators and members of the House from this district, voicing their opposition to the pending measures.

The message to the legislators read:

"Enactment of either of these measures into law will inevitably result in establishing a national monopoly of union labor, which will bind all industry, trade and commerce in America into servitude to a small group of paid professional labor leaders, representing less than 10 per cent of all workers in the United States, and result in disrupting the long established and rapidly growing friendly relationship between capital and labor by regulating their intercourse in terms of warfare rather than as associates in a joint industrial enterprise.

UNION LEADERS RAPPED

"We also call your attention to the fact that the demand for this legislation emanates from this small group of professional union leaders who see their sinecures lost to them under the bill of rights for all American workers contained in section 7A of the NRA which provides free of cost through government every benefit and gain to workers that the union leaders have for generations been promising."

The message also said that the extent to which workers are showing preference for organizations within their own plants is indicated by a report made to the National Industrial Conference Board by 3,314 companies having more than 2,500,000 employes.

This report revealed that more

AUTO STRIKE MEET CALLS JOHNSON

Rails Renew Demand For Pay Cut While Unions Battle

Associated Press.

The Roosevelt administration kept sharp watch today over activities arising from two major labor disputes.

Spokesmen for railroad managers today renewed a demand for a 15 per cent cut in basic wages in reply to the flat rejection by railroad labor of a suggestion that the present 10 per cent basic wage reduction be continued.

Word was awaited also from New York, where leaders of the automobile industry and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson gathered for an all-important conference to accept or refuse the NRA plan for preventing a strike.

President Roosevelt arranged to keep himself closely informed on both subjects.

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP.)—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, left his hotel shortly before 2 p. m. today to join leading representatives of the motor car industry, who had been conferring for five hours on his proposals to avert the threatened automobile workers' strike.

Gen. Johnson refused to say anything about his mission, as he left the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, aside from the fact that he was on his way to see the board of directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce at the chamber headquarters. He was accompanied only by his secretary, Miss Frances Robinson.

Every important section of the automobile manufacturing business participated in the conference with the exception of Henry Ford, who always plays a lone hand.

The leaders, called together to deal with the threat of a strike, which has been set for Wednesday, comprised the directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

The automobile leaders were not taking the public in on their deliberations as they discussed the possibility of the strike, which is the outgrowth of the American Federation of Labor contention that the manufacturers are seeking to deal only with company unions, and of the manufacturers' position that the only issue is

MAYOR FAILS IN SHIFT TO TRACTION BOARD

Director to Retain Job in Police Feud, McNair Says

A series of rapid-fire developments in City Hall today appeared only to have deepened the complications resultant from the warfare in the Police Bureau.

Mayor William N. McNair attempted to end the police controversy by naming Director of Public Safety Ralph E. Smith chairman of the Traction Conference Board but councilmanic opposition appeared to have flattened that plan.

A poll of Council indicated that Smith would not be confirmed for the traction post.

When the letter naming Smith was received, however, Council made no comment, but merely referred it to the Service and Surveys Committee.

FEUD ACCENTUATED

Meantime, McNair said Smith would hold on to the safety directorship.

Smith was willing to make the shift in order to restore harmony to the Police Bureau, which has been torn by controversy since Smith fired Supt. of Police Ben R. Marshall two weeks ago, and Marshall was reinstated by McNair after being "out" only 45 minutes.

Existence of the feud was accentuated today with the disclosure that Marshall had organized a racket squad and had staged several raids before informing Smith of his action.

Whatever the fate of Smith may be, developments indicated that there is a widening rift between Mayor McNair and certain political leaders, particularly James F. Malone.

HEADS SLATED TO GO

SPRING NEAR, MERCURY RISES

With the advent of spring only two days away, the mercury fell to 13 today at the Weather Bureau, and to 8 and 10 in the suburbs.

As the sun came up, however, the temperature began rising rapidly. It approached 40 late today.

From Saturday at 4 o'clock when the thermometer registered 70, the total drop of the temperature until 6 a. m. today was 57 degrees. The minimum record for this date is 8 in 1876.

Snow was predicted for tonight and tomorrow, with the low mark tonight between 20 and 25.

Postmaster Soon To Leave Hospital

Postmaster William M. Turner, of Pittsburgh, confined in Homeopathic Hospital since February 21, will leave the institution this week, it was said today at the hospital. Postmaster Turner lives in Wilkinsburg.

ROOSEVELT SON UNDER KNIFE

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP.)—John Roosevelt, youngest son of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, underwent a successful appendicitis operation today at the Naval Hospital. Capt. Ralph McDowell, chief surgeon, performed it.

John has been bothered by appendicitis for some time and a renewal of the illness brought a decision for an operation while he is here on vacation from school in Groton, Mass.

John, who passed his eighteenth birthday last week, went alone to the hospital after a hearty slap on the back from his father.

Mrs. Roosevelt, however, drove to the hospital before the operation.

He was also related to John Parke Custis, stepson of George Washington. Calvert had gone to Washington on business. He is survived by his wife and a son, Cecil Baltimore Calvert, of New York.

Check Chess Champ On Marriage Jump

NICE, France, March 19.—(AP.)—Alexander A. Alekhine, world's chess champion, was "checked" today when he tried to get married for the fourth time.

A marriage license clerk demanded proof of Alekhine's Amsterdam divorce from his third wife and told the chess player he was ineligible to marry because he had not lived here a sufficient length of time.

Rochester Painter Dead, Rum Blamed

ROCHESTER, Pa., March 19.—Frank Hoehman, 43, caretaker at the Municipal building, is dead, and his assistant, Harry Daily, 42, is seriously ill from drinking alcohol, according to police. Rochester Council has ordered an investigation.

Hoehman's body was found in the basement of the Municipal building today. A physician reported he probably had been dead since Saturday. Daily was taken ill today.

Lower School Fares Urged By Demmler

Fifty-cent weekly street car passes for school children were demanded today in a resolution presented in Council by Councilman Walter R. Demmler.

Demmler proposed that the city assent to renewal of the contract with the Pittsburgh Railways Company for a traction conference board on condition that the company grant such passes and make other concessions.

BUSINESS LOAN PLAN READY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—President Roosevelt's plan to supply ready cash to the small business man at a low rate of interest was completed today, and ready to go to Capitol Hill.

Mr. Roosevelt expected to send the credit program to Congress as a special message, in the form of a bill authorizing the Federal Reserve Board to set up 12 intermediate credit banks throughout the nation.

A fund of $140,000,000 to start the banks was to be asked, and administration leaders estimated the program would put immediately to work in the neighborhood of half a million idle.

Long term loans, to a maximum of five years, are contemplated under the new banking program. RFC Chairman Jesse Jones, Secretary of the Treasury Mongenthau, Gov. Eugene Black of the Federal Reserve Board and other finance leaders helped the President draft the plan. They believe it will fill a vital need for the small business man who is just now fighting to pull out of economic depression.

Throngs Welcome Girl, Soon to Be Empress

HUE, Annam, March 19,—(AP.)—Pretty 18-year-old N'Guyen Huu Hao, commoner of Cochin-China, who has renounced Catholicism to wed Emperor Bao Dai, of Annam, arrived in the capital of the ancient empire today for the marriage.

Throngs of Bao Dai's subjects welcomed their future queen as she drove through gaily-bedecked streets to the palace, dressed in a long tunic, the traditional Anamite costume.

Her father, a wealthy merchant, and other members of her family accompanied her.

Discontent among the populace was general because the bride was a Catholic and is more French than Indo-Chinese.

The discontent was reported to extend even to the royal palace, where the three dowager queens—the widows of the late Emperor—are believed to have had candidates for the role of Queen.

The marriage ceremonies will begin tomorrow in the strictest privacy with only members of the bride and bridegroom's families—and the happy couple—present.

The state ceremony will be held March 24, when the insignia of the Empress will be conferred in the presence of the entire court.

Army Takes Air Again With Mail

Skeleton Routes to Be Covered by U. S. Fliers

By the Associated Press.

Army planes resumed the task of flying the air mail today.

Under ideal flying conditions, planes took off on time under the new schedule. The service was grounded a week ago.

At the Chicago airport, planes carrying the mail left for Cleveland and the West Coast. Air mail service also was resumed out of the other key cities specified in the eight new routes.

These routes over which the Army now is carrying the mail cover a distance about one-fourth as long as that previously traveled by commercial companies.

The plane, which left Oakland, Cal., at 12:23 a. m., Pacific standard time, arrived at Salt Lake City at 6:50 a. m., Mountain standard time, today.

The plane took on additional mail and left for Cheyenne, Wyo., at 7:45 a. m.

The death list of the Army since it first took over the mails has risen to 11.

When Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover, chief of air mail activities, gave the word that his men were "all set," the fliers were provided with carefully inspected planes, newly equipped for blind and night flying and with improved radio facilities.

Senator O'Mahoney (Dem.), of Wyoming, announced he would offer a substitute for the administration's air mail bill for transport on a basis similar to that used in carrying mail by train.

Few Concerns Here Sending Letters By Plane

AIR MAIL SLUMPS

Few Pittsburgh business concerns used the air mail when it was resumed today by Army fliers, the postoffice here revealed.

Under the curtailed service, air mail for the East is sent to New York by rail and put aboard planes there. Mail for the West is sent by rail to Chicago, and for the South, to Cleveland.

PARROT FEVER LAID TO BIRD SHIPPERS

Dishonest Dealers in California Blamed By Expert

Dishonest bird dealers in Southern California are responsible for the spread of parrot fever here, according to the statement of Dr. Karl Meyer, director of the Hooper Foundation of the University of Southern California, in an International News Service dispatch.

Dr. Meyer made the statement to the California State Board of Health which requested him to undertake a campaign for prevention of the disease. He said:

"Infected birds have apparently been sent out of the state. But this is no fault of the Public Health Board. Dishonest dealers in Southern California have shipped these birds without permission and without inspection and strictly against the instructions of the board."

SHIPMENT SUSPECTED

The shipment to Pittsburgh last January suspected of bringing the disease here, he said, was an example of "what has been going on." The dealer had a permit to ship 72 birds, he said, but it has been found he shipped 130 instead. Dr. Mayer declared:

"Under present conditions, there was no way of stopping him. The board didn't have enough men to have one stand over this dealer and see how many birds he crated, and the express company wouldn't count them."

Meanwhile in Pittsburgh no new cases of the dread disease were reported over the week-end. Six deaths have been laid to the parrot infections, but only two have been reported to the Bureau of Vital Statistics. A number of other deaths have been suspected from this cause but because of the similarity of symptoms between parrot fever and pneumonia, they have not been definitely laid to psittacosis.

DOCTORS TO MEET

The Allegheny County Medical Society will meet in the Schenley Hotel ballroom tomorrow night. Psittacosis will be the main topic for discussion. Dr. I. Hope Alexander will make a report on the prevalence of the disease to the society and several other medical men who have made a particular study of the disease are expected to make known the results of their observations.

Dr. Charles A. Rodgers, of Freeport, who treated three cases in the outbreak in this district several years ago, also will be present, together with City Health Director Ray P. Moyer, and it is expected Dr. Philip E. Marks, head of the Bureau of Infectious Diseases.

COTTON BILL PASSES HOUSE

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP.)—The Bankhead compulsory cotton control bill was passed today by the House. It now goes to the Senate.

Designed to stabilize cotton prices, the administration measure would limit production in the coming cotton year to 10 million bales and levy a tax of 50 per cent of the market value on staple produced in excess of quotas allocated to producers.

Termed an emergency measure, it would have a life of two years and could be extended a third year by presidential proclamation.

Production in the second and third years would be fixed by the Secretary of Agriculture, provided two-thirds of the growers approve continuation of the law. The President would be empowered to suspend it at any time.

Cleveland Workers Go Out on Strike

CLEVELAND, March 19.—(AP.)—Turbulence in Cleveland's labor situation increased today as more than 400 employes went on strike at the Sherwin-Williams Company.

Meanwhile it was announced that members of a federal labor union at the Fisher Body Company voted 3,065 in favor of a walkout and 65 opposed. The employe group decided, however, to delay the strike pending conferences being held at Washington.

Attorney Don Rose Ill at Sewickley

Attorney Don Rose, counsel for the Pittsburgh Coal Company and a prominent member of the Allegheny County Bar, is critically ill in his Sewickley home, as a result of an infected foot, it was reported.

than 45 per cent choose to deal with their employers through employe representation plans or company unions, while only a fraction over nine per cent elected to bargain through national labor unions. The remainder prefer to bargain individually.

The conference named a special committee of nine members to carry on a campaign against the enactment of the pending Wagner and Connery measures.

In addressing the conference, Earl F. Reed, general counsel of the National Steel Corporation and member of the special committee, declared:

"Neither the War Labor Board nor the Railway Labor Board ever had any such drastic powers. The proposed labor board could assess damages against any employer in any amount, but no provision is made for assessment of damages against employes. The pending legislation is wholly one-sided."

Other members appointed to the special committee are:

A. H. Young, chairman, representing the United States Steel Corporation; C. R. Hook, of the American Rolling Mill Company; Wilfred Sykes, Inland Steel Corporation; Hugh Morrow, Sloss-Sheffield Steel Company; William P. Belden, general counsel, Republic Iron and Steel Corporation; Joseph M. Larkin, Bethlehem Steel Corporation; Judge Hoyt A. Moore, of the law firm of Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, New York, and John W. Hill, of the American Iron and Steel Institute.

The conference, held in the offices of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, was called to launch a nation-wide campaign through the steel industry against the Wagner bill, pending in the Senate, and the Connery 30-hour week bill, before the House.

F. E. Fieger, general manager of Jones & Laughlin, presided as chairman of the Pittsburgh group of signers of the steel code.

Similar meetings among steel men were under way in New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Birmingham and other centers of the industry.

SWICK OPPOSES CANAL COSTS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Objection to the extensive local co-operation in construction of the Beaver and Mahoning canal, recommended by War Department engineers, was voiced today by Representative Swick (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, before the House Rivers and Harbors Committee.

Swick said the counties affected could not stand the expense burden levied by the engineers' report. He read a telegram from Mayor Dennis Mutscheller, of Beaver Falls, Pa., charging that costs demanded from the municipalities involved were unjust.

In the engineer board's report, the total cost would be $47,000,000 with local interests furnishing $10,000,000.

The canal would run through Beaver and Lawrence counties in Pennsylvania and Mahoning County in Ohio. It woul also provide shipping facilities to Mercer County, Pa., and Trumbull County, O.

NRA TEST NEAR IN HIGH COURT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The Supreme Court today announced that it will hear arguments in the government's appeal involving constitutionality of the oil code.

The case is the first direct attack on constitutionality of the NRA to reach the high court.

The high court acted with unusual speed, the case being docketed only last Friday. The court order said that probably jurisdiction was noted.

While no date was set for hearing, it is expected that it can be argued during the first week of April. This would assure a decision before the end of the present term.

MOVIE CENSOR BILL DEFENDED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Civic and educational leaders today appeared before the House Interstate Commerce Committee which is considering the bill sponsored by Representative Patman (Dem.), of Texas, to create a federal commission to supervise film production.

Dr. William Sheafe Chase, secretary of the Federal Motion Picture Council, was among the witnesses. He said:

"The industry since 1902 has made 10 promises to reform and it has broken them all."

Mrs. Robins Gilman, of the National Parent-Teachers' Association, said many films have as their central theme love scenes, bedroom situations and liquor locales.

Speaking in opposition, Representative Connery (Dem.), of Massachusetts, vigorously assailed federal interference in the motion picture industry.

SEEK TO BAR HOME LOAN POLITICS

Senate Votes Norris Bill to Protect Borrowers

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP.)—The Senate voted today to bar politics in appointments to the Home Owners' Loan Corporation after Senator Norris (Rep.) of Nebraska, had termed that organization a "political machine, rotten to the core."

It adopted, 40 to 33, an amendment by Norris providing that "no partisan political test or qualification shall be permitted or given consideration, but all agents and employes shall be appointed, employed or promoted solely upon the basis of merit and efficiency."

The amendment was to the bill guaranteeing the principal as well as interest of the $2,000,000,000 of home loan mortgage bonds.

Norris had been informed that "here and there are places in this corporation today that are entirely inefficient—where unless conditions are rectified in some way, eventually there will be disclosures in certain localities which will throw discredit upon the whole law."

The Nebraskan added he believed President Roosevelt and John H. Fahey, head of the corporation, wanted to keep the organization free of politics and make it work so it would "do the most good for home owners for the least amount of money."

HOUSE TO VOTE ON SILVER

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP.)—The House today took up the Dies silver bill for a vote before adjournment tonight. It provides for acceptance of silver imports at 25 per cent above the world price in exchange for agricultural exports from the country.

Action on the Fiesinger bill for the purchase of a billion and a half ounces of silver was called off by Speaker Rainey at the request of President Roosevelt.

This was made known shortly after Secretary Morgenthau said Prof. James Harvey Rogers, of Yale, was going to China to study the silver situation.

Rainey said that President Roosevelt would make an announcement today on the silver situation.

AIR MAIL BILL SUBSTITUTE DRAFTED

O'Mahoney Offers Plan Based on Railroad Basis of Pay

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP.)—Senator O'Mahoney (Dem.), of Wyoming, announced today he would offer a substitute for the administration's air mail bill which would provide for air mail transport on a basis similar to that used in carrying it by rail.

The bill will provide for a complete divorce between carrying of the mail and the subsidizing of aviation.

O'Mahoney, former Assistant Postmaster General, said he believed Senators Logan (Dem.), of Kentucky; McGill (Dem.), of Kansas, and Erickson, (Rep.), of Montana, favored such a measure.

The administration bill provides for competitive bidding on contracts under drastic restrictions.

AIR EXECUTIVE'S VIEWS

Immediate restoration of air mail transport to private lines on a temporary basis, with permanent regulation later by the Interstate Commerce Commission, was urged by Crail Hunter, vice president of Northwest Airways.

Small operators, he told the Senate Postoffice Committee, would soon be forced out of business unless the government legislated for relief.

As Senate and House committees resumed hearings on the permanent air mail bill, observers looked for possible amplification from Col. Eddie Rickenbacker of his statement before the Senate committee Saturday that the President should "purge his official family of traitorous elements."

Rickenbacker was expected to fly here tomorrow from Detroit to address the Washington Board of Trade. Word that preceded him was that he might possibly finish the speech that was interrupted before the committee by Chairman McKellar.

NAVY PROBERS GET EVIDENCE

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP.)—New evidence to show that the Navy has continued to buy airplanes through a method held illegal by its own judge advocate general had been presented today to congressional investigators.

It was understood that decisions from the Navy judge advocate general questioning the Navy's procurement methods would figure prominently in a minority report which will be filed this week by Representative McFarlane (Dem.), of Texas, a member of the House Naval sub-committee that has just completed a study of Navy airplane purchases.

The majority of the committee already has approved a report finding no fault with and recommending no change in the Navy's present procurement methods.

Around 75 per cent of the Navy's aircraft purchase, the comptroller general has informed investigators, were made without competition, under provisions of the 1926 air defense act.

Tales of incendiarism, hand-to-hand fighting and sniping were related to the committee during its stay here. Evidence concerning the situation at Gates, Edenboro, Colonial No. 3, Star Junction and Smock and other localities was gathered by the committee during its two-day survey.

DEMOCRAT DEBT NOW $544,711

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP.)—Unpaid debts aggregating $544,711 were listed today by the Democratic National Committee, compared with a deficit of $195,008 reported by the Republican National Committee as hangovers from the 1932 presidential campaign.

The reports were filed with South Trimble, House clerk, under the corrupt practices act, by William F. Cronin, of New York, assistant Democratic treasurer, and George F. Getz, of Chicago, Republican treasurer.

Among Democratic contributors was M. L. Benedum, Pittsburgh, who gave $17,500.

Johnson Joins Parley on Auto Strike Threat

"whether the automobile industry is to be run by the American Federation of Labor."

The Chamber of Commerce directors planned to remain in session until late this afternoon, and officials said nothing would be forthcoming about the deliberations until after the meeting was over.

Shortly after the meeting got under way, officials gave out copies of a statement issued last night by the chamber. This set forth that the directors were considering proposals submitted by Gen. Johnson for avoiding the strike.

A little before 1 p. m. three of the conferees, one of them being Alfred P. Sloan, of General Motors, left to have luncheon. The others were being served in the conference room. Sloan told reporters:

"We have nothing to say."

The strike threat comes at the peak of the automobile season. Three or four weeks from now the rush is expected to taper off. That fact led observers to believe that the labor war, if it comes, will come quickly.

Ten thousand workers gathered at mass meetings in Detroit yesterday to discuss their grievances. William F. Collins, representative of the A. F. of L., read a list of rules to guide them if the strike is called. The rules designate leaders and provide for orderly picketing. Similar meetings were called in Flint and Pontiac.

Rails Renew Demand For Wage Reduction

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP.)—Railway managers today renewed their demand on employes for a 15 per cent reduction in basic wages to become effective July 1.

Previously, the managers had proposed that the present 10 per cent cut be continued until April 30, 1935. The employes refused that flatly.

President Roosevelt had requested that the present railway wages be continued unchanged. The 10 per cent reduction has been in effect since 1932.

The managers left open for possible negotiation a resumption of their offer to accept a continuance of the 10 per cent reduction. They said:

"In the light of the position which you have taken, in respect to the matters which we have been considering in this conference, it would seem that we have no alternative except to withdraw from your consideration our offer to defer a reduction in basic rates of pay which we made in an earnest and sincere effort to co-operate with the President of the United States in order to aid in effecting a national recovery during the year of 1934.

"Notwithstanding your declination on Saturday of this proposal we are still willing that you should consider it. Your continued declination will, of course, make it necessary that we withdraw it.

"This will leave before us for consideration only our notice of a 15 per cent reduction in basic rates of pay to become effective on July 1, 1934."

The managers adjourned their conferences subject to call.

The chiefs of the 21 labor unions immediately assembled to consider the situation.

Another formal conference may be held tomorrow or Wednesday, but this is uncertain.

STOCK CONTROL AGREED ON

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP.)—Word that a revised version of the Stock Market Regulation Bill has been agreed upon tentatively was given today by Chairman Rayburn, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

Rayburn said that representatives of the Treasury and Federal Reserve Board were slated to testify tomorrow at resumption of hearings before his committee.

Legislative experts were busy putting the measure into legal language. It will be made public when they complete their task—perhaps late this afternoon.

Rayburn indicated he would not introduce the new measure until after hearings were completed because it might be necessary for the committee to make further revision.

200,000 SEEN IN WALKOUT WEDNESDAY

Manufacturers Refuse To Recognize or Deal With A. F. L.

By PAUL WEBER
International News Service.

DETROIT, March 19.—Accusing it of seeking to dominate the motor industry, automobile manufacturers of the nation today declared bluntly that they will not recognize nor bargain with the American Federation of Labor.

The new defiance apparently shattered any hope of peace between the manufacturers and the federation. It seriously damaged the narrowing prospect that a strike of 200,000 automobile workers Wednesday can be averted.

The manufacturers' challenge was issued through the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, code authority of the automobile industry, and representative of every company except Ford.

'ONLY ONE ISSUE'

The statement said:

"There is only one fundamental issue; namely, whether the automobile industry is to be run by the American Federation of Labor.

"The industry does not intend to recognize the federation as such, nor enter into any contract with it, on behalf of the employes. If a strike is called it will be because the American Federation of Labor seeks to impose itself upon the automobile employes regardless of the employe's expressed desire to be his own choosing."

The Federation of Labor, making its greatest effort in history to end the "open shop" policy of the motor plants, contends its local unions are backed by the majority of the workers, and that therefore, the A. F. of L. and not the new "company unions" should be the sole representatives of the workers.

Auto Makers Appeal To Workers, Rap A. F. L.

DETROIT, March 19.—(AP.)—The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, in a published statement to automobile workers today, said:

"It is up to you to say whether you want to surrender to professional labor leaders your own right to deal with the management of your companies."

Calling attention to recent reductions of working hours in member plants to an annual average of 36 hours per week, and wage increases of "more than 30 per cent" within the past year, the statement says that wage rates "in many cases are higher than they were in 1929 at the peak of prosperity, and that twice as many men are at work today as during the depression."

Replying to the statement, William Collins, federation representative here, said:

"If, after an election outside the plants and under the supervision of the NRA, the automobile workmen vote in favor of company unions, or any other program of representation, the American Federation of Labor will bow its way out of the picture."

The N. A. C. C. statement said:

"The strike threat comes from the American Federation of Labor and not from the automobile workers."

NRA SEEKS END OF TAXI STRIKE

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP.)—The NRA stepped into New York's taxicab strike today in an attempt to bring striking drivers and cab owners together for a settlement.

The regional labor board asked strikers' representatives and owners of large taxi fleets to meet in separate conferences this afternoon preparatory to what the board hoped would be a joint meeting and the end of the strike.

Samuel Orner, president of the Manhattan branch of the taxicab drivers' union and leader of the strike, said the union "probably" would respond. No statement was obtainable from the large operating companies, which heretofore have declined to deal with the striking union.

Orner said recognition of the union is the principal demand of the strikers.

Venango Bank's Failure Probed

FRANKLIN, Pa., March 19.—(INS.)—With depositors facing the possibility of realizing only 41 per cent of their deposits, District Attorney Joseph W. Nelson today was to begin his probe into the situation which led to the failure of the Colonial Trust Company.

Pennsy Retains Stock In Wabash, Lehigh

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP.)—An Interstate Commerce Commission order directing the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Pennsylvania Company to dispose of stock of the Wabash and the Lehigh Valley railroads was set aside today by the Supreme Court.

The Pennsylvania Company, owned and controlled by the Pennsylvania Railroad obtained control of 49 per cent of the stock of the Wabash and the Lehigh Valley.

The stock was acquired in anticipation of a consolidation of various railroad systems under the 1920 transportation act. The Lehigh Valley was to be used to give the Pennsylvania better entrance into New York and Buffalo and the Wabash to provide a line from Buffalo to Chicago and St. Louis.

The Supreme Court formally dismissed the appeal of the Columbus Gas and Fuel Company involving rates on natural gas furnished consumers in Columbus, O.

License taxes imposed on the Seattle Gas Company and the Puget Sound Power and Light Company, both of which compete with a municipally-owned plant, were sustained.

Crime Bands Exceed Army, Navy—Cummings

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP.)—Attorney General Cummings said today that America's underworld has more armed men than the United States Army and Navy combined.

The statement was made to the Senate Judiciary Committee as it began consideration of a group of bills submitted by the Justice Department to aid the government in a war on gangsters.

Speaking in a calm, quiet voice, he called on Congress to enact strong legislation, asserting:

"There are more people under arms in the underworld today than in the Army and Navy of the United States."

Cummings outlined the legislative proposals, and explained they were necessary because of a "twilight zone of authority between the state and federal jurisdictions which has afforded roving bands of criminals opportunity to operate with success."

MANIAC SLAYER OF FOUR CHILDREN ELUDES MANHUNT

5 STATES SEEK HAMMER KILLER

Little Victims Found By Mother After 15-Minute Absence

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP.) John McHale, object of an intensive manhunt after the slaying of his four small daughters, was still at large today as police broadcast his description to five states.

The four children—their heads crushed by a hammer—were found by their mother when she returned to their Bronx home after being away 15 minutes to buy milk.

Between hysterical sobs, she told police her husband had left their home in anger after a quarrel Saturday night. A neighbor said he saw McHale run hatless from the house a short time before the mother returned.

She found one child, Helen, 4 years old, dead, but until late yesterday believed the other three, Anna, 6, Margaret, 5, and Agnes, 18 months old, were still alive in the hospital where they were taken. When she was told they were all dead she collapsed and was unable to go to the morgue to identify them as required by law.

McHale, a 31-year-old CWA worker, was sought in all parts of the Bronx. Hospitals, morgue and the waterfront were watched on the theory he might commit suicide. Police learned McHale was deeply religious and kept a close eye on churches in the vicinity. His description was broadcast by teletype to New York and four nearby states.

Deputy Chief Inspector Henry Bruckman, in charge of Bronx detectives, called the slaying the "act of a demented man." He said McHale had been under observation in Manhattan State Hospital last fall as a mentia praecox victim. More recently, he said, the man had been under observation at Bellevue Hospital.

ATTORNEY HELD IN DILLINGER PAL'S TRIAL

Chicago Lawyer Cited With Bribe Attempt; Clark Faces Jury

LIMA, O., March 19.—(AP.)—Louis P. Piquett, Chicago attorney who came here to defend Russell Clark, Dillinger gangster, in a first degree murder trial, was himself charged with attempted bribery and disorderly conduct in Municipal Court today.

Piquett pleaded not guilty to both charges and was released to his local attorney, Francis W. Durbin. At the same time in Common Pleas Court, Clark, a tall, dour man, was brought in and placed in the same chair which Harry Pierpont and Charles Makley have occupied for the past two weeks.

Both Pierpont and Makley were found guilty of murdering Sheriff Jess L. Sarber in a raid on the county jail here last October to liberate John Dillinger. The state is seeking the death penalty for Clark.

Charges against Piquett, who was Dillinger's attorney at Crown Point, Ind., before Dillinger made his escape, were filed by Police Chief Ward Taylor here. They grew out of Piquett's detention here Saturday night.

In an affidavit, Taylor charged Piquett offered him $100 to procure his release from the city jail.

Mrs. May Clark of Detroit was present in court. She said Clark was in Detroit at the time of the shooting here.

Judge Everett excused 27 prospective jurors out of a panel of 60 today because of views on capital punishment. A special venire of 40 was called and court was adjourned until tomorrow.

Dillinger Guard Faces Felony Charge

CROWN POINT, Ind., March 19.—(AP.)—Ernest Blunk, Lake County deputy sheriff who is under suspension pending investigation of John Dillinger's break from jail, faced a felony charge.

Blunk was back home here after a trip to Indianapolis last week where he was questioned by Edward Barce, deputy attorney general, and three state investigators.

Barce said today Blunk was taken into custody Thursday night on a warrant issued in the City Court of East Chicago on a statute which provides a penalty of 2 to 15 years for any person having the custody of a prisoner's aid or abet in the prisoner's escape.

Barce said that while Blunk was held in Indianapolis he was questioned concerning Dillinger's escape and much valuable information obtained. He did not disclose this information.

Blunk appeared here Saturday while his attorney, Allen C. Twyman, was in Indianapolis seeking his release through the courts.

Blunk said he was taken to Indianapolis by a state policeman and escorted to a hotel room where he was questioned by Barce and the three investigators.

At the hotel room, he said, Barce told him that if he failed to "come through with the real story" of the escape of the desperado, Dillinger, the state would file a felony charge against him. Blunk said he reiterated he was innocent of any collusion in Dillinger's escape.

THREE SAINTS CANONIZED BY POPE

Two Well Known to Catholics of U. S., Latin-America

VATICAN CITY, March 19.—(AP.)—The bells of almost 500 Roman churches rang out in announcement of the creation of three new saints today—two of them well known to Catholics of the United States and Latin America, and the third particularly dear to Italians.

The ceremony of the joint canonization came to a climax in St. Peter's before a congregation including hundreds of American pilgrims, when Pope Pius pronounced the solemn Latin words ordering the names of the Blessed Teresa Margherita Redi, Pompilio Maria Pirrotti and Giuseppe Benedetto Cottolongo inscribed in the catalogue of the saints.

Many of the devout pilgrims who joined in the Te Deum of welcome for the newly sanctified were from United States, where the Order of Carmelite Sisters to which Saint Teresa belonged in life, has 26 chapters. Latin-American pilgrims likewise felt intimate gratification for Saint Teresa's elevation inasmuch as her order is represented by numerous chapters in Argentina, Cuba, Peru, Chile, Brazil and Colombia.

Also close to the hearts of these latter pilgrims was Saint Pompilio, one-time confessor of the schools of the Scolopii, an organization represented by institutes in Buenos Aires, Havana, Mexico City and other Latin-American cities.

KNIGHT'S DAUGHTER

St. Teresa's short life on earth was a strong factor in her special appeal for the pilgrims gathered to revere the trio today. She was born the daughter of a knight in Arezzo, Italy, in 1747, and died 22 years later in the Carmelite Convent of Florence.

In the meantime, however, she had already come to be known as the "Saint of the Lilies." She became a nun at 18 after she had satisfied parents and superiors alike that several girlhood visions had come direct from heaven. Postulators for her cause for beatification said her face and hands retained the natal taint of life after painful death of a stomach ailment in 1770. They said her body has remained lifelike and apparently untouched by death until the present day. The young saint is buried in the chapel of the Carmelite Convent in Florence.

ORDAINED AT 16

Apostolic and educational work occupied the lifetime of Saint Pompilio. Born in Montecalvo, near Naples, in 1710, much of his life work was devoted to the people of the Abruzzi.

Religious devotees from Turin, particularly, thronged St. Peter's in honor of the Blessed Giuseppe's canonization. He is cherished in that city as the founder of the Institute of the Divine Providence, which has expanded through Italy.

Saint Giuseppe lived from 1786 to 1842 and was known from his earliest childhood for his saintly leanings. He was ordained a priest at the age of 16.

ATLANTIC GALE BATTERS SHIP

PLYMOUTH, England, March 19.—(AP.)—The trans-Atlantic Liner Lafayette arrived last night, eight hours late, heavily battered by a tremendous gale at sea.

The vessel's master estimated the wind velocity at 100 miles an hour. He said waves 70 feet high smashed 50 windows on the promenade deck, wrecked furniture and flooded cabins. The ship heeled alarmingly and hove to for five hours.

PARIS, March 19.—(AP.)—The people of Jonzac awoke today to find every headstone in the local cemetery flat on the ground.

The stones blown down in a hop-skipping storm which struck odd spots along the western coast over night after giving most of France wind, rain and hail.

Hundreds of roofs were lifted in many villages between Lorient and Biarritz, fishing smacks were shoved high and dry, walls leveled and canals forced out of their banks.

One seaman was killed when the boiler of a beached steamer exploded at St. Jean De Luz.

GIRL BURGLAR CAUGHT ON JOB

International News Service.

NEWARK, O., March 19.—Caught hiding under a pile of clothes in a wardrobe closet, 13-year-old Margaret Petty was held in County Jail here today for juvenile authorities to face charges in connection with burglary of nine Newark homes recently.

Jack Petty, the child's father, also was taken into custody and lodged in city prison.

Margaret was apprehended by police last night in the home of Harry Loughran. When she was found cowering under the pile of clothing in the wardrobe closet, the child was wearing a pair of large-sized women's shoes. Police said they were worn by the girl to mislead investigators probing the recent robberies of Newark households.

Police conducted a search of the Petty home where they said they found nearly $500 worth of stolen men's and women's clothing.

FACTOR GIVEN SHORT DELAY

CHICAGO, March 19.—(AP.)—Another day of freedom was given John Factor today as extradition proceedings against the stock speculator were held in abeyance pending a conference between the Secretary of State and the British Ambassador at Washington.

Representatives of the British crown were in the Federal Court of Judge Philip Sullivan to oppose Factor's motion to dismiss the extradition order against him, but District Attorney Dwight H. Green requested the day's continuance.

The erstwhile financier is wanted in England to face trial on a charge of receiving money obtained fraudulently.

Green told Judge Sullivan that he expected to have the final word on the attitude of the Federal Department of Justice to give the court before the end of the day.

HITLER PLACED 'ABOVE' DEITY

BERLIN, March 19.—(AP.)—Germans are to consider their nation above Christianity, the Rev. Dr. Reinhold Krause told a radical Nazi church audience Sunday.

Dr. Krause, who was elevated into the Brandenburg synod council of the German Protestant Church only last week, declared:

"The idea of acknowledging the third Reich but obeying God more than man is impossible.

"We must return to the religious standard which is commensurate with our national characteristics.

"Christianity has always been international, but our national interests come first—not only in daily but in religious life.

"Whatever Christianity contains to promote these will be retained."

Superintendent of the Morgue John P. Black today appealed to relatives to claim the body of Mrs. Tessie Cain, shot to death last week. Her husband, John M. Cain, is held in connection with her death.

DOUBLE KILLING ENDS PARTY

CUSTER CITY, Pa., March 19.—(AP.)—Four children are orphans because, police say, their father decided their mother was being too friendly at a party.

After ordering guests to leave about 3 o'clock Sunday morning, Wilbert G. Eger, 46, called to his wife from upstairs:

"Bertha, this is the end."

An 11-year-old son said his father shot the mother with a rifle as she came up the stairs, then shot himself.

The boy called back the guests, who found both dead.

Eger's mother, Mrs. John Eger, and four of his brothers live in Altoona.

No inquest will be held, the Coroner said, returning a tentative verdict of murder and suicide.

RAFT REPORTED IN ROMANCE

CHICAGO, March 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Edward J. Lehmann, Jr., now known on the screen as Virginia Peine, arrived here from Hollywood, to attend hearings this week on her suit for divorce from her wealthy Chicago husband.

On the same train arrived George Raft, and, asked about the report that she might wed Raft, Mrs. Lehmann said:

"It is just some more of that silly Hollywood gossip. You know how those stories start, out there."

Asked if she knew Raft also was here, Mrs. Lehmann said:

"Yes, I think he is."

VET MEASURE TOPS BUDGET

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today called for the figures on the increases in veterans' allowances and government salaries voted in Congress and was told that the sum is $288,000,000 above budget allowances.

Representative Woodrum (Dem.), of Virginia, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, in charge of the bill, reported on the figures involved.

He said that Mr. Roosevelt gave no expression of view, but the opinion was apparent that Mr. Roosevelt was not favorable to this increase in appropriation.

His call for the figures involved in the upset was made by Congress in the economy legislation was believed by some to foreshadow a veto.

Although the fusilage of the plane was damaged, the commission said, Liapidevsky and six companions made their way safely to Cape Van Karen Sunday.

At the same time, it was made known a radio message from Prof. Otto Schmidt said all members of his stranded party were well. They took refuge on the ice when their ship sank February 13.

HOUSE PASSES FILIPINO BILL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The administration's new Philippine independence bill was passed by the house today.

The measure, endorsed by leaders in the fight of Philippine freedom, reenacts the major provisions of the Hawes-Cutting bill, which was rejected by the islands.

Under the measure, a Philippine constitutional convention shall be convened by October 1, 1934, and a constitution submitted within two years after passage of the new law. After the President approves the Constitution, independence is granted the islands in ten years.

During the interim, restrictions are placed upon importation of sugar, coconut oil and cordage, as well as on immigration.

COUGHLIN ILL, OFF AIR

DETROIT, March 19.—(AP.)—The Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin was much improved today after an attack of acute indigestion which came upon him while he was alone in his study Saturday night, and which left him too weak to make his Sunday afternoon broadcast. It was the first scheduled broadcast he had missed in eight years, it was announced at his office.

Suffering intensely and unable to assist himself, Father Coughlin remained in his study alone all Saturday night. He was found at 9 a. m. Sunday.

He still was in bed today, but expected to resume some of his duties tomorrow.

The Right Rev. Msgr. John J. Hunt, of the Detroit cathedral spoke in Father Coughlin's place yesterday.

YANKS CONFESS SPY RING PART

International News Service.

PARIS, March 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz, youthful American couple, have confessed their part in an international espionage ring, their attorney, Henry Torres, declared today.

The United States consulate today advised the government at Washington of the confession, but for the present, at least, will take no action.

Mr. and Mrs. Switz have been held in jail here since December 20, last year, when 10 alleged members of the ring were taken into custody in a roundup.

There followed a dramatic scene as the young couple was taken before Magistrate Benon, who has conducted the investigation.

Mrs. Switz, the former Marjorie Tilley, of New York, a Vassar graduate, broke down completely as she went before the magistrate. She was weeping and was extremely pale. Switz was haggard, unshaven and trembling. It was the first time the pair had been examined together.

East End Pupils Mourn School Physician

Dr. Walter G. Graham, 50, known to hundreds of school children died today in Passavant Hospital. Dr. Graham, who lives at 7049 Bennett street, Homewood, died of heart failure following a kidney operation, the Coroner reported.

Since 1918 he has been medical inspector for the Bureau of Child Welfare at the Lincoln, Lemington, Lajimer, Help of Christians, Corpus Christi and St. Walburga schools.

Miss Alma Bartels, principal at the Larimer Avenue School, on learning of his death, said:

"He was loved by all the children—there will be many tears when they hear that he is dead. He always joked with them and treated them as though they were his own."

Dr. Graham leaves his wife; two brothers, Frank N., of Florida, and Thomas A. Graham, of Camden, N., J., and two sisters, Miss Agnes Graham and Mrs. W. A. Dindinger.

Trapped in Hot Oven 45 Minutes, Man Saved

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP.)—Take it from William Philupe, a baker's oven stays hot a long time.

He became wedged in the ashpit of an oven yesterday and if police hadn't torn away the front in quick time, Philupe probably would have been burned to death. As it was, he spent a tortuous 45 minutes and is suffering today from severe burns on his back.

Philupe went to an East Side bakery to repair the ashpit of the baking oven. Because the bakery was closed for the week-end there had been no fire in the oven for more than 24 hours, so Philupe crawled into the ashpit to go to work.

He didn't know the thermometer registered 350 degrees Fahrenheit, but once inside the hot bricks above burned his back and left him unable to move.

Max Becker, his employer, tried in vain to reach Philupe and then frantically summoned police.

When removed, after being in the pit 45 minutes, almost all the clothing was burned from his back.

MAYOR SEEKS TO ABOLISH GRAND JURY

Abolition of the grand jury system here as it was abolished in Michigan, will be undertaken by Mayor McNair. Decision to campaign against the system came as an aftermath of his being called before the grand jury last week to testify in a case which, he said, he knew nothing about. Charging his forced appearance before the jury to politics he said:

"If they are going to use the grand jury system for politics, it is time to abolish it, and I am going to make that one of my campaign planks. I told the District Attorney that if I had to be called in upon all magistrates' cases I would be there all the time. The action was purely an attempt to discredit my administration."

CHARGES PLOT

The Mayor had been called to testify in connection with the arrest of a ring of alleged thieves, in which it had developed that $200 had been put up by a looted store as a decoy in connection with the arrest of the thieves. The Mayor concluded:

"It was a factional move to discredit me. The District Attorney's office never has been known to do such a thing before. I expect to go before the Bar Association to get its support."

The Mayor's decision on a move to abolish the grand jury came after communicating with Attorney Anthony Lucas, former District Attorney of Houghton County, Mich. Lucas related that about a year ago he had read that the cost of prosecution under the grand jury system was from 20 to 25 per cent higher, and convictions about the same per cent less, than in districts where the system had been abolished.

SQUIRES' POWER BOOSTED

Powers of justices of the peace are enlarged under the Michigan system, it was pointed out, with the result that many cases are kept out of court. Cases tried in justices' courts are attended by the district attorney or one of his aides, and if the case seems important enough it is held for a court trial. When the case comes up in court the district attorney appears and indicts the defendant and the case is set for trial.

CITY PAYROLL SAVINGS FADE

There will be no reduction in the amount of money in the city payroll as the result of Council's six weeks of budget-cutting, according to reliable sources.

The 10 per cent increase to employes receiving $1,500 or less wipes out the money saved through staggering work. The payroll stands at around $8,500,000.

The budget will stand in the neighborhood of $21,200,000, anywhere from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 out of balance, depending largely on final figures from the city assessor's office on real estate valuations.

It is believed that Councilman William A. Magee will again carry his fight for cutting the salaries of elected officials to the floor of Council.

CITY PAYROLL BILL REVISED

Council today recalled the 1934 salary bill and altered it by removing a clause which had provided that no emergency appointment could be made "except by specific authority of Council."

This clause aroused objections from Mayor McNair and his department heads as well as members of the Civil Service Commission, who contended such action by Council trespassed on their rights.

The change referred particularly to appointment of employes to fill vacancies among jobs where work had been staggered.

North, South Vets To Meet at Shiloh

WAYNESBORO, Tenn., March 19.—(AP.)—Renewing a custom abandoned almost 20 years ago veterans of the Confederate and Union armies who participated in the battle of Shiloh again will gather for a reunion April 6-7 at Shiloh National Park.

Addresses a camp fire meeting, band music and a parade are on the program commemorating the battle, which centered in a wooded area called the "Hornet's Nest."

'Australians Start Farmers' Aid Plan

SYDNEY, Australia, March 19.—(AP.)—Australian representatives of the Empire Settlers League were investigating possibilities of group settlement of British farmers in Northwest New South Wales.

The league aims to place destitute British farmers on tracts of about 10,000 acres. Products of these farms would be shipped to England and would not compete on local markets.

Mystery Hermit Found Dead in Shack

Thomas Gaskill, 70, known as the "mystery hermit" of Wilkins Township, was found dead today in his shack along the Collins road. His body was discovered by Richard Jaquay, representative of the County Poor Board, who had gone to take Gaskill to the County Home at Woodville.

SMITH SAFETY OUSTER FAILS

if Smith is relieved as Public Safety Director.

Robert Brown, chief clerk in the Safety Department and a close friend of Malone, is reported to have been slated for demotion.

It is also said that Police Captain Jerry Deasy, another Malone ally, will not be named one of the seven police inspectors to be appointed when the rank of captain is abolished.

Reports in police ranks have Capt. John Schnurr, in charge of the Downtown and Hill districts, and Capt. Anthony Block, of the North Side, as the only two police captains sure of appointment as inspectors.

Another Malone adherent endangered is Assistant Supt. of Police Andrew Charles. If Smith is relieved as Director of Safety, Charles will be asked to resign, according to reports, and his job given to Inspector of Traffic Jacob Dorsey. Candidate to succeed Dorsey is Traffic Lieut. Bert Jacks.

BALKED BY FINLEY BACKERS

Asked today whether Director Smith had raised any objections to being transferred to the Traction Board, Mayor McNair replied:

"If your salary were raised from $8,000 to $12,000, would you take it? Smith seemed very much delighted when I told him."

Councilmanic opposition to confirming Smith to the Traction Board centered chiefly among friends of Charles Finley, present chairman of the board.

McNair's letter to Council, appointing Smith read:

"I have the honor to inform you that I have appointed, subject to your approval, Ralph E. Smith, 1201 West Point avenue, Twenty-seventh ward, as a member of the Traction Conference Board, in place of Charles A. Finley, and ask your prompt confirmation of the same."

Fahey Appeal Fails In Embracery Case

Charles F. E. Fahey, convicted of embracery in connection with the jury that was to have tried the Monaca Club raid case, was denied a new trial today by Judge James H. Gray. He will be sentenced Thursday.

Fahey was charged with giving a list of prospective jurors to other persons before the time set for the trial of the "Three Toms," Coyne, Goslin and Dolan, charged with maintaining a gambling house. They have not been placed on trial.

French See Soviet Returning to League

PARIS, March 19.—(Universal)—Soviet Russia is planning to open diplomatic paths for her return to the League of Nations, it is claimed by French officials.

The Soviet plans were interpreted here as a blow against Germany and Japan, which have retired from the league. French authorities pointed out France favors the alleged Soviet move as strengthening the French position both in and out of the league.

HEINZ ELECTION APPEAL WON

The right of Fire Chief John Heinz, who lost the fight for sheriff to Frank I. Gollmar by only 251 votes on the face of the returns, to examine election records in 23 districts was upheld by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court today, sitting here.

In a formal opinion handed down by Justice Alex Simpson Jr., the court sustained Judge Ralph H. Smith and placed the costs on the appellant.

Justice Simpson held that the prothonotary is required to give a certified copy of the list of voters and other papers deposited in his office by judges of election to any person applying for them, on payment of the usual fee.

Sheriff Gollmar had taken the stand that the only records open to scrutiny were those showing the assistance to voters.

The contested districts are in the boroughs of Homestead, Braddock, Rankin, McKees Rocks and the Third and Fifth Wards of Pittsburgh.

DEMOCRAT GAIN MADE HERE

Democrats gained and Republicans lost adherents this year, according to registration figures for boroughs and townships in Allegheny County, made public today.

The totals, given out by John Henry, director of County Elections Department, show a Democratic gain of 7,779 and a Republican loss of 6,363. The total registration was 300,531. This does not include voters in Pittsburgh and third-class cities.

The total Republican registration was 232,149 and the Democratic 64,476. Other parties polled 3,906.

DEADLINE NEAR ON UNPAID TAX

Delinquent taxpayers who have not made arrangements to pay their taxes will face liens on their property, City Solicitor C. D. Scully announced today.

Tomorrow is the deadline in the campaign to bring in delinquent levies, which was launched by city officials several weeks ago. Officials are depending heavily upon the collection of delinquent taxes to pull the city out of the morass resulting from deficits of other years.

Oil Men to Attend State College Meet

Prominent oil men from Western Pennsylvania will attend the three-day session of the American Petroleum Institute at State College, beginning April 5.

Dr. Ralph D. Hetzel, president of State College; Dean Edward Steidle, of the School of Mineral Industries, and Jack Gaddess, assistant manager of the North Penn Gas Company, Port Allegheny, are scheduled to speak.

The backs are firmly woven. Then the colors, the designs, are put in by hand. That's why unlimited colors can be used, why every rug has a hand-loomed look and catches the spirit of the museum piece from which it is copied. (See footnote on pattern shown.) The wools, imported from Persia, Turkey and India, are the same used in the rare Persian rugs. Even the lustre is not washed in but is natural to the wool itself. The fringe is the warp, just as in every real Oriental. In fact, we call these American Orientals simply because our customers think of American made rugs in that term. THRONGS JOIN IN PROTEST ON LEAGUE

(Editor's Note—See the league petitions, with blanks for signatures, on today's editorial page, the last page in this edition.)

Thousands of citizens of the tri-state area, including hundreds of veterans of the World War, today were joining in the huge protest against participation by the United States in the League of Nations and its World Court.

Enthusiastically the protestants were affixing their signatures to petitions being circulated by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers for presentation to the members of the United States Senate and the House of Representatives.

OBTAINS BIG LIST

Co-operating in the circulation of the petitions in the three states were members of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, members of various patriotic societies and civic organizations and countless individuals.

In the first flood of petitions reaching the office of the Sun-Telegraph today was a list of 126 names obtained by P. W. Hetzel, druggist of Rochester, Pa. Hetzel wrote:

"Enclosed please find list of names against the participation in the League of Nations and the World Court. I want to congratulate the Hearst papers in getting this movement started. Everyone on the enclosed list feels the same."

Mrs. A. J. Kelly, Jr., of Pittsburgh, wrote the League Court Editor:

"It is time that a petition like yours should be circulated. Wish you success. I shall do all I can to further the good work."

SEES BIG RESPONSE

A. F. Grine, of Beaver, in a letter expressing the belief that 95 per cent of the voters of hic community would sign the petition.

A copy of the petition is published in this edition. Blank petitions are available at the office of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square; the downtown branch office at Fifth avenue and Market street, or they may be obtained by writing or telephoning the League Court Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Get blank petitions at once. Sign them. Ask your neighbors, friends and associates to sign them and see that they are forwarded at once to the League Court Editor.

Contract Bridge

How to Play How to Win

By Josephine Culbertson

Inferences

In a recent Duplicate game played at a popular club in New York City a laydown Grand Slam hand was dealt. This Slam was reached at about one-half of the tables by various bidding methods. In my opinion, there are two possible ways of bidding the hand. By bidding it in one way the key cards can be located and the Grand Slam finally contracted for by means of using the positive inferences which can be obtained from the Four-Five Notrump Convention. An alternative method enables the partnership to reach seven-odd without using the Four-Five Notrump Convention by means of a very fine negative inference. The hand:

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 6 ♡ K 9 5 3 ◇ A 6 ♣ A J 10 6 5 3
♠ 9 8 7 5 ♡ J 8 2 ◇ 10 9 7 2 ♣ K 8	North West East South	♠ 2 ♡ 6 4 ◇ K Q J 5 4 3 ♣ 9 7 4 2
	♠ A K Q J 10 4 3 ♡ A Q 10 7 ◇ 8 ♣ Q

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ◇	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	4 N T	Pass
5 N T	Pass	7 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

On the above bidding South is first able to ascertain the fit in the heart suit when North raises his heart bid, which, incidentally, was put in below the game level to assure a response. Naturally, South knows that the final declaration will be in spades. Subsequently, he bids four notrump, and when North responds with the conventional five notrump, showing the remaining two Aces, South can very safely contract for the Grand Slam.

The second method of bidding, which one team employed very successfully, is as follows:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ◇	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
7 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

This line of bidding, although not nearly as certain as the first, leads to the same result. South first shows a very strong hand by bidding two spades on the first round. He subsequently jumps all the way from three clubs to six spades after North's more or less discouraging three-club response. The North player then makes the very beautiful negative inference that the South hand must contain a losing diamond. The reason that this inference is so clear is that South, had he held a void in diamonds in addition to the gigantic hand he has portrayed, would have re-called in the opponents' suit at some stage of the auction. North, therefore, despite the singleton in his partner's suit, unhesitatingly bids seven spades, knowing for a certainty that his Ace of diamonds will take care of a card which South has counted as a loser.

REDS FOMENT STRIKES HERE, A. F. L. SAYS

Communist agitators, planted in the ranks of bona-fide labor organizations, are constantly fomenting strikes in the Pittsburgh district, according to leaders in the American Federation of Labor.

Today there are at least 20 unions affiliated with the A. F. of L. where these agitators are actively at work. Many of these cases where the unrest has been caused by Communists, are now before the Regional Labor Board, which is endeavoring to settle any differences, according to the labor leaders.

HOPE FOR PEACE

The leaders are hopeful that strikes will be averted, but they know that regardless of what they are able to get for the workers, the spreading of poison will go on within the ranks.

To quote one labor organizer, who asked that his name be withheld:

"For the past six weeks or two months I have done nothing but try to avert strikes, which we believe were started largely through Communistic agitation and was certainly prolonged by that method.

WORK CITED

"They work in the fertile fields of semi-skilled and unskilled labor, planting the seeds of discontent no matter what demands are won for the workers.

"Because it is an utter impossibility to obtain the spontaneous results from every demand, the agitators excite these easily excitable men to strike or keep on striking."

Communists base their fight against the American Federation of Labor on charges that it is an "organization within the ranks of the workers, posing to be for their interests, but in reality serving the interests of the bosses."

SLOVAKS STUDY PROBE REPORT

Entering into the second week of their convention, delegates of the Slovak National Society took up the reports of the finance, investigation and by-laws committees today.

The investigation committee's report has to do with officer's statements made during the last week, primarily those of the secretary and treasurer of the organization.

Members of the committee will recommend these official reports for either acceptation or rejection by the convention.

Two guest speakers, John Sifel, president of the National Workers' Organization, and Senator James J. Davis greeted Saturday's session. Both of them offered their wishes for the success of the organization.

Since the convention is to close Wednesday, nominations for office, which are taken by ballot, are expected to be made late tomorrow by the 340 delegates representing a membership of 32,953 men and women in 37 states of the Union.

ATTORNEY KILLS WIFE WITH AX

CLEVELAND, March 19.—(AP.)—Overcome by an insane frenzy, R. B. Newcomb, prominent Cleveland attorney, killed his wife with an ax early today and then committed suicide by slashing his throat with a razor.

In the opinion of Coroner A. J. Pearse, two other persons in the Newcomb home, who were asleep at the time, were lucky to escape. They were Newcomb's son, Millard, about 30, and Mrs. Newcomb's mother, Mrs. Mabel Warner. The Coroner said:

"Considering the mania that assailed him, it is surprising that Mr. Newcomb did not go through the house with the ax.

"Without doubt he was out of his head as a result of a nervous breakdown, and it is fortunate that Mrs. Warner and Millard did not get up at the time. If they had, he surely would have attacked them."

Sons of Revolution To Honor President

Garden Materials To Be Distributed

Distribution of seeds and other garden materials will be made throughout the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board, according to George P. Mills, director of the board. He said it will save trouble if persons in need of this material apply to their local thrift garden leaders.

Restaurant Group To Hold Meeting

The Western Pennsylvania Restaurant Association will meet at the Fort Pitt Hotel at 8 p. m. tomorrow night. Members of the local code authority enforcement group will be announced at the meeting.

IN this day and age the DAILY newspaper must be different . . . it must keep abreast of the times . . . perhaps a little ahead of the trend that moves with a certain swiftness . . . so fast that what is new today is oftentimes old tomorrow . . . the trends are more distinct today than ever before. That's why the Sun-Telegraph keeps a keen, alert ear to the ground . . . watching for changes that will be reflected in the home and must necessarily be paralleled in a home newspaper.

It is safe to say that no other DAILY newspaper in America presents so many outstanding features and feature writers as the DAILY Sun-Telegraph . . . features created collectively for the direct interest of ALL members of the family!

The so-called "head of the house" appreciates the sensible, practical editorial policy of the DAILY Sun-Telegraph . . . turns to Brisbane's "Today" . . . to B. C. Forbes on business and finance and then settles down to read the unbiased presentation of the news.

The housewife more than often first turns to Prudence Penny for help on home economics . . . to Elsie Robinson, Adele Garrison, Helen Rowland . . . for the woman's side of things as they are today.

The daughter is modern . . . up to the minute. She wants to know what is new in latest styles . . . she gets this information every day from Prunella Wood and other style experts in the daily Sun-Telegraph . . . and she wants to know about bridge . . . Mrs. Josephine Culbertson keeps her informed . . . in fact, instructs her how to best play the game.

The young man and Junior, too, are interested in this golden age of sports and they are fully satisfied by the big staff of authoritative special sports writers employed on the daily Sun-Telegraph. Of course Junior gets a big kick out of the comics . . . at that you can't keep the rest of the family from Popeye, Jiggs and Maggie, the Nebbs and Inspector Day. Yes, the little girls like the comics too. They favor Mickey Mouse and Annie Rooney and they want to see what Tillie is wearing in the way of new dresses.

The family in general, perhaps, not so much among the children, all get perfect reader satisfaction out of the special columns presented by Walter Winchell, Mark Hellinger, O. O. McIntyre and others . . . and don't forget that Will Rogers packs a wallop every day.

COUNTY FINALS IN SPELLING TOMORROW

All kinds of words—from the simplest to the sticklers—will be in readiness tomorrow night at 7:30 when the nearly 80 preliminary winners of Allegheny County's old-fashioned spelling bee meet in Schenley High School for the championship match.

To the winner and "runner-up" of the contest, sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, will go a trip to Harrisburg to compete in the state finals Wednesday, April 4.

Theodore Siedle, assistant to the dean and professor of education at the University of Pittsburgh, will be the pronouncer tomorrow night. Dr. C. E. Dickey, superintendent of county schools, will preside and award prizes.

Words to be used were selected by C. W. Peters, assistant superintendent of county schools. They are arranged in eight lists and range from sixth grade spelling lessons to difficult words of rare usage.

Lists include words taught in the seventh and eighth grades and junior high schools. Common words used frequently and often misspelled make up the fifth group, the sixth includes trick words, the seventh uncommon words and the eighth the virtually unknown ones.

Examples of the easier words are souvenir, gymnasium, agreeable, memorandum, magnificence, appendicitis, privilege, invoice, formula and martial.

Those a trifle more difficult to spell might be espousal, symmetry, chrysanthemum, reciprocity, propitiatory, recalcitrant, subterranean, promiscuous, cartridge, cartilage, cenotaph, raspberry, crocheting, vinaigrette and holocaust.

Then will come the rare words and finally the unknown ones—if anybody lasts that long.

The complete list of participants in the county finals will not be known until tomorrow. Contests will be held tonight at Oliver High School and in 14 county school districts. Late comers to the contest were Crafton and West Elizabeth.

MUSIC

Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra and Gieseking

Syria Mosque

PROGRAM

First Symphony ..... Brahms
Festivals ..... Debussy
Concerto for Piano in C Minor ..... Rachmaninoff

The Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra set a new high standard for itself last night in Syria Mosque when Modarelli and his men played the best music they have so far accomplished. Brahms helped wreck the former Pittsburgh Orchestra; to hear the applause last night after the same composer was reassuring as to the musical growth of our town.

Mr. Lissfelt

The program itself was ideal; one of the greatest symphonies in all music, a not too vague modern work of Debussy, and a splendid piano concerto which has the proportions of a symphony—fine balance and good taste.

I constantly looked back during the playing of Brahms to another night when the orchestra attempted Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony. That was as sad an event as ever occurred in the history of our orchestra.

And we have come a long way since that night. So far, in fact, that I should say it is time that the older orchestra association which still grants us the privilege of hearing the Boston, Chicago and Detroit orchestras, should take cognizance of the fact that our own is now arriving at such maturity as deserves notice and whatever aid that association may be able to give.

It was only too evident what new life had come into our players. Possibly the playing of such a magnificent symphony inspired them, but there was a greater intensity of emotional expression, more consistently live tone, more fervent and eager expression throughout the concert than has ever before been noticeable.

Gieseking is a favorite pianist in Pittsburgh and the audience left no doubt that it was in accord. His playing has magnificent proportions, no bombast and always musical. The Rachmaninoff Concerto is none too grateful for any player, for it is conceived symphonically, forcing the player to blend his music with that of the orchestra so delicately that when the orchestra plays a bit beyond him the pianist may easily become lost in the mass of tone. That occurred last night, too.

This pianist may not notice that his writhings are yearly becoming more disturbing, adding not a particle to his musical expression, which was always on a grand scale. He played many encores, among them Debussy's "Clair de Lune," the F Minor "Moment Musicale" of Schubert and the war horse of another generation, Liszt's paraphrase on the "Rigoletto" Quartet.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

COLLEGE JOINS RUSHMORE CONTEST

Support for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition grows daily.

Men and women participants—as individuals and through their clubs, civic and patriotic groups—increase in numbers throughout Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Northern West Virginia.

Student interest continues to increase as colleges and schools arrange for active participation in the nationwide competition that is drawing millions of Americans from coast to coast with the patriotic effort of writing the nation's epic in 600 words.

SLIPPERY ROCK ENTERS

One of Western Pennsylvania first colleges to arrange for the participation as a separate unit has been the Slippery Rock State Teachers' College at Slippery Rock. Prof. Howard L. Headland, head of the college's history department, has been appointed by Dr. J. Linwood Eisenberg, president of the institution, to direct participation. All students of the college will submit their entries to Prof. Headland to be held for judging.

The great competition, already endorsed by Mrs. John E. Winner, president of the Allegheny County Parent-Teacher Association, today had been given added support by the group. Monthly notices issued by Mrs. Winner to members and school principals, urged active support in requesting pupils to enter their text.

NO FANCY WORDS

A fancy vocabulary is not necessary to set the history of the United States in immortal words.

The directors of the competition sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst newspapers to aid the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Committee to select a text for the inscription have been besieged with letters from eager competitors during the last few weeks.

A sample letter, which is a fair composite of all of them, reads:

"Dear editor:

I have an inspired idea for the patriotic inscription to be carved on Mount Rushmore. Having had little more than a grammar school education I feel I am sadly lacking in a proper vocabulary to express what I want to say. I want to be one of the Americans to contribute to this great cause, but, with my every-day choice of words I am afraid I will make a homely job of it. SINCERELY——"

'HOMELY JOB OF IT'

Homely job of it!

Some of the greatest contributions to literature in the history of mankind have been written in a style these competitors probably are referring to as "homely."

Read the story of creation. It was written in about 250 words.

Another masterpiece in simplicity is Lincoln's Gettysburg address. Study that immortal epic by the Great Emancipator. No excess words. No "fancy" words. It came from the heart, just as the Mount Rushmore epic must come from the heart.

POWER IN SIMPLICITY

Remember, there is power in simplicity.

There you are! Don't worry about your "homely" vocabularly. Put your words together simply, powerfully and stick to facts and the "homely" words will take impressive care of themselves.

Added impetus was given to the competition when President Roosevelt consented to serve as chairman of the National Committee of the Mount Rushmore National Inscription Competition.

SCULPTOR PLEASED

Gutzon Borglum, under whose guiding hand the memorial is taking shape, expressed himself as highly elated at the President's acceptance.

He said:

"The honor President Roosevelt has done us comes as a fitting climax to the splendid response to this undertaking shown throughout the nation. I am sure that from this competition will come a work of genius that I shall be proud to engrave on Mount Rushmore."

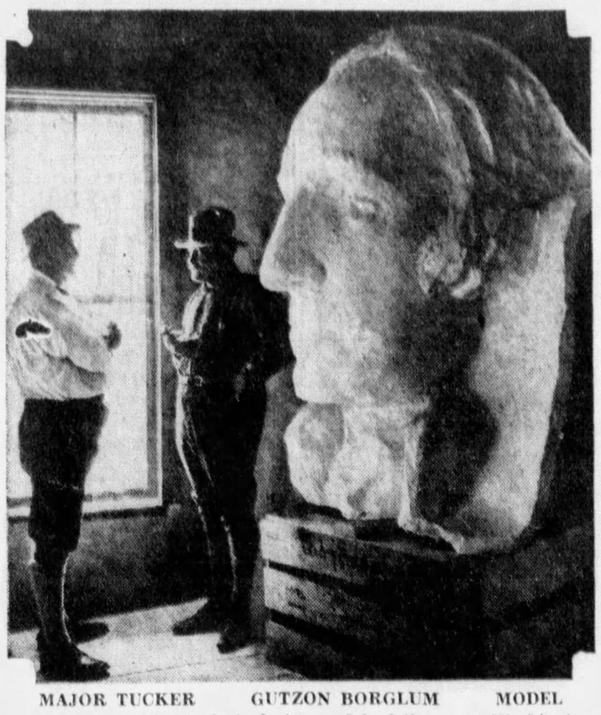
EARLY U. S. CLAIM TO OREGON EXPLAINED

John Quincy Adams Sponsored Treaty With Spain

(Editor's note: This is the second instalment of Dr. Joseph Schaefer's article on the Oregon Boundary settlement. The third instalment will appear in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph.)



MAJOR TUCKER GUTZON BORGLUM MODEL

Sculptor with his first plaster model of the great Washington head for Mt. Rushmore. The model's one-twenty-fifth of the size.

But was was Oregon? The region between the crest of the Rockies and the Pacific, to be sure, but how far did it extend north and south? The second point was settled almost immediately, for in 1819 Secretary John Quincy Adams made his famous treaty with Spain delimiting the Louisiana purchase on the south. Now Spain had been the earliest nation to explore the coasts north from California to Alaska, where the Russians early gained a firm foothold. In the treaty of 1819 Spain at Adams' insistence, agreed to give up all her rights west of the Rockies and north of the forty-second parallel, to the United States.

That eliminated the Spanish claim to Oregon and was thought to strengthen that of the United States. Previously our argument had been composed of three branches:

Capt. Robert Gray, an American, in May, 1792, had discovered the Columbia River, thus conferring upon his country a claim to all the country drained by it; in 1803-6, Lewis and Clark had navigated the Columbia, thus exploring it from one of its sources to its mouth; in 1811 Astor's men had taken possession by building a trading fort at the mouth of the river, and by carrying on trade along both the river itself and its affluents.

BRITISH RESUME CONTROL

Although the British had secured possession of Astoria as a consequence of the war, that government had agreed in 1818 to restore the United States to whatever legal state of possession she had enjoyed when the war broke out. The symbol of this "restoration," which the United States made its fourth basis of claim, was a momentary hauling down of the Union Jack at Astoria, October 6, 1818; the running up of the Stars and Stripes. Then on the departure of the American commissioner, J. B. Prevost, the resumption of complete British control over the fort by the agent of the Northwest Fur Company.

ADD FIFTH CLAIM

From the date of the Spanish treaty Americans confidently added a fifth basis of claim—the acquisition of the prior rights of Spain. In 1824 and 1825 Russia agreed with both Britain and America to restrict her claim to the region north of 54 degrees and 40 minutes.

Naturally, to American statesmen and diplomats, as well as to the great body of the people, our title to the Oregon country now appeared, as Polk later declared it to be, "clear and unquestionable."

But to the British it was by no means clear and their brilliant foreign secretary, George Canning, put forth an argument for the British claim which was so sharp and so resounding as to captivate the whole nation. Shall the Americans be permitted to advance a claim on the basis of Spain's relinquishment to them of her prior rights? Very well, he said, then let us see what that claim amounts to.

FIRST SURVEY MADE

Britain has made, through Capt. James Cook, and later Capt. George Vancouver, the first survey of the Northwest coast to be published to the world. (Indeed, even the Columbia River had not been known till Vancouver's voyage was published. Spain had planted no colonies north of California; her claim was based on discovery solely.

Britain might claim prior discovery by Sir Francis Drake, said Canning, but why do so, inasmuch as she and Spain, after nearly going to war over troubles of their agents at Moutkee Sound, agreed in 1790 that the subjects of both powers had an equal right to trade and make settlements anywhere north of California. Besides, if the United States now recognized the Spanish claim, then all she had done, by way of discovery, exploration and settlement in the Oregon country, had merely infringed upon that claim.

THRONGS VISIT PRIEST'S BIER

The body of Father Bonaventure Piscopo, the 75-year-old pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church, Bloomfield, lay in state today in the sanctuary of his church.

His body was removed to the sanctuary yesterday and hundreds of sorrowing parishoners paid their last respects to the Italian-born priest who founded nearly every Italian Catholic congregation in the Pittsburgh district. The church will be kept open to mourners.

The Rev. Francis Benevantano, of Braddock, officiated at brief services held in the church yesterday. The funeral mass tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock will be attended by Bishop Hugh C. Boyle. It will be celebrated by Father Benevantano.

BARDOLPH, MIX CASES UP

The appeal of District Attorney Andrew T. Park to review the case of Charles A. Bardolph, former president of the defunct Franklin Savings and Trust Company, will be heard by the State Supreme Court tomorrow or Wednesday, it was learned today. Bardolph was found guilty in Criminal Court last March on 11 counts of making false entries and sentenced to two years in jail and fined $1,000.

When Judge William H. McNaugher denied his motion for a new trial, the case was carried to the Superior Court, which overruled Judge McNaugher by a four-to-three decision. This prompted Park to petition the Supreme Court to review the case.

The Supreme Court this week also is expected to consider the appeal of Tom Mix, movie cowboy, from a verdict of $66,000 returned against him in Erie County. The verdict was won by Col. Zack Miller, owner of the 101 Ranch, who charged the movie actor broke an oral contract to appear with his show.

OTTO REVEALS HOPE TO UNITE AUSTRIA

Editor's Note — Archdube Otto Von Habsburg, who may be called to the throne in Austria, tells H. R. Knickerbocker, in the thirty-first article of the series "Will War Come," that he believes he could unite Austria around the Habsburg crown, save the country from the Nazis and avert a European war.

Declaring that he feels "the absolute obligation of the task that God has assigned to us," Otto announces he is ready to accept a call to the throne.

This is the first time this heir to the crown has ever spoken for publication.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service.

BRUSSELS, March 19.—The most important young man in Europe at this critical moment of its history is the least known great name of the continent. That name in full is Franz Joseph Otto Robert Maria Anton Karl Max Heinrich Sixtus Xavier Felix Renatus Ludwig Gaeten Pius Ignatius Van Habsburg. He is twenty-one years old. They call him the emperor-king. He is heir to a crown nearly seven centuries old.

Around the land of Otto's fathers the fears of Europe center. Armies stand at the borders of Austria. About its fate the mighty of this continent are struggling with a violence that any day could break forth in the roar of guns, first blast in the war to end Europe.

Within the country a little group of men, Dollfuss, Fey and Starhemberg, are fighting desperately to keep the Nazis out. But the pressure of 65,000,000 Germans is telling on them. They are looking at Otto Von Habsburg. Is he the man to keep the Nazis out? Could the Habsburgs stop Hitler?

Otto Still Mystery To Continent

Otto Von Habsburg until today has never revealed his own thoughts. He has made no public declaration of any kind. He has kept so quiet that Europe, which has known his family for 650 years, today knows next to nothing about the man who tomorrow might mount the throne of Austria and play a decisive role in the fate of this continent.

Today Otto, no longer a boy, but a man impressively conscious of his responsibilities, declares that his mission, the mission of the House of Habsburg, is to bring peace to Europe. He declares he is confident that the Habsburg crown could unite Austria around it, save the country from the Nazis, and thus save Europe from war.

He rejects the Nazis and condemns their philosophy with a firmness that guarantees he would never willingly surrender power to them. He believes the Habsburg crown could pacify Central Europe and eventually bring about an economic understanding among its states that would restore prosperity. He favors the establishment in Austria of a corporative state under the crown.

Finally, at this moment when the boldest merely ambitious man would shrink from assuming the burdens of leadership on the most hotly contested battlefield in Europe, he is moved by a deep sense of duty to God to declare that he is ready any day to answer the call of Austria.

His majesty received me in audience. It was specifically a private audience. He has never given an interview. At the same time specific permission was given to record my impressions and authorization to quote certain of his remarks.

He receives in the castle of Ham in Steenockerzeel. It lies 20 minutes away by motor car from Brussels. The four towers of the 400-year-old castle rise bleakly from the wintry waters of the Moat.

Manner Composed And Courteous

The head of the House of Habsburg gave a firm, quick handclasp. His clear complexion, dark brows, straight eyes, regular features, graceful figure gave him looks that would be too good if he were not indifferent to them.

We sat in wicker chairs. He asked questions. He asked them with ardent, critical curiosity. They revealed an exceptional grasp of the complicated European situation His own remarks were candid, informed, discreet. It was difficult to remember that the speaker was only twenty-one. He declared:

"The most important thing to be considered in the world is, of course, peace. But the conservation of peace is for Central Europe even more important perhaps than for any other part of the continent. Central Europe suffered more from the last war than any other section. Not only by what happened during the war, its losses in men and in economic goods but also what happened after the war when the division of a great national economic unit into a number of smaller units resulted in the impoverishment of the entire region.

Unable to Stand Another War

"Central Europe cannot stand another war. Certainly Austria and Hungary cannot. They were bled white by their losses. Another war is quite beyond their capacity to endure. As it was, how close they both came to Bolshevism, latent in Austria, open in Hungary! So the preservation of peace in Central Europe is most essential.

"But to preserve it the first condition is the preservation of Austria. But when did Austrian independence begin to be threatened? Only when the rulers who for 650 years had guided the destinies of Austria were displaced by the catastrophic events following the end of the war.

"We know that no restoration is ever possible of what has gone into history. Restoration is only possible in the sense that one begins today, not where one left off 10 years ago or 15 years ago, but where events have taken one today.

"Restoration is not reaction. Restoration means the preservation of the things that were good in the past and their application to the situation that now exists. Now parliamentary government has died in Austria. It died of its own capacity. Whatever happens to Austria in the future, this factor will have to be taken into account.

"This does not mean that there is any likelihood of or desire for a return to an absolutist system. That too is of the past. But there are new forms of state organization which have arisen as a consequence of the new conditions under which men live. The most interesting of these new forms of state to my mind is the corporative state. There are possibilities in the corporative state for a development of professional, industrial representation and an economic reorganization of society which seem to me to bear the seeds of success.

"After all the basis of the success of a state, of the happiness and the prosperity of its citizens, are two: economic and religious. May idea of the corporative state is based chiefly on the Quadragesimo Anno, the encyclical issued by His Holiness, and to which Chancellor Dollfuss has so often referred.

Faith in Church Shown by Prince

"Altogether it seems to me quite impossible to have any sound system of government that does not proceed from the prime source of all things in this universe, I mean from God himself. To a believer in God, of course, this is a commonplace, but it is often forgotten today.

"This principle means for our family, for the Hapsburgs, only responsibility. Surely no one can imagine that the prospect of assuming the burdens of government at a time like this in Europe could be pleasurable, it is only because I feel the absolute obligation of the task that God has assigned to us that I am prepared to accept it."

The feeling with which his majesty spoke left no room for doubt about the sincerity of his religious convictions. Sincerity animated his whole personality. He continued:

"I am prepared to accept it too, because I feel that only by the restoration to Austria of the traditions of Austria, traditions which bound Austria and our family together for 650 years, will it be possible to lead the people of Austria back to their original place as conservators of the best in German culture.

"National Socialism is not German. It is brutal. Germans are not brutal by nature. The Germany that made Germany great in history was the Germany of culture.

"I feel convinced that there are many National Socialists in Austria today who are only National Socialists because they are dissatisfied with the republican system, and long for something different, but until now have believed that a change for the better could only come by following the lead of the revolutionists in Germany.

"They have not realized perhaps how nearly related National Socialism is to national Bolshevism. But were they given a chance to see the traditional virtues of old Austria revived under leadership sanctioned by the authority of centuries as well as by the commission of the Almighty, I feel certain that the largest part of them would turn to this new leadership."

Otto of Habsburg is Austrian. Adolf Hitler is Austrian. Hitler's hostility to the Habsburgs has been documented in all his writings, and many of his public utterances. Of all the paradoxical results of Hitler's rise to power none is more striking than the fact that the outstretched hand of Hitler Germany to seize Austria has been the gesture that has revived the possibility of the restoration of the Habsburgs.

Europe May Prefer Habsburg Return

Anti-Habsburgs declare the succession states formed from the break-up of the Austro-Hungarian Empire would never permit Otto to return either to the Austrian or Hungarian throne. Habsburg circles are inclined to believe that today Europe would prefer Habsburg to Hitler in Austria, and that Europe's opinion would prevail.

Given a chance to make itself known, Otto's personality would mean strength for the monarchist cause. Few restoration parties have been so fortunate in their candidate. And romance must have died in Austria if Vienna could remain indifferent to a young Prince Charming, wise beyond his years, come to take the crown that made Vienna great, and to "bring peace to Europe."

Tomorrow—France has built a wall which she believes will stave off attack from Germany for many years.

MONESSEN WAR CAMPS RALLY

International News Service.

MONESSEN, Pa., March 19.—A temporary standstill was noted today in the Monessen "auction war," as opposing counsel busied themselves with arguments to be presented in the next scheduled crossfire Thursday when hearing on a temporary injunction restraining interference with a sale by John Check is to be held at Greensburg.

Check, a dealer in furniture and a member of Monessen City Council, was granted the preliminary injunction by Judge William Dom, of Westmoreland County, on the heels of six arrests.

The Mayor and Police Chief Joseph Lescanic ordered the arrest of Auctioneer A. L. Krugelin, of Pittsburgh, who had been working with Check. Several developments followed in order, warrants being served on Louis Kichinko and Judson Duncan, the officers in Krugelin's arrest, and charging assault and battery. Gold and Lescanic were later placed under arrest, charged with assault and battery, while meantime Check was being arrested as a transient merchant.

Check and Krugelin were fined $100 and costs in Police Court. The others are under $500 bond to appear today before Alderman Joseph Mochnaly. Appeals were filed by Check and Krugelin.

SECRET AGENT X-9

'The Kidnaped Banker'

Clue No. 1.

Secret Agent X-9 listened to Banker Thomas Wilson's account of his kidnaping. Wilson, the richest man in his community, had been held for $100,000 ransom and not released until the money had been paid four days later.

"After being hit on the head and dragged from my car," he said, "I didn't regain consciousness until I felt myself being carried into a house and up three flights of stairs. I was blindfolded and gagged, but kept track of the flights by noting the number of landings in between.

"The thugs kept me gagged, but took the taped bandage from my eyes. I found myself in a two-room flat, bare except for a chair, bed and table in one room. My captors left me at once, except for a one-armed man who stayed behind to guard me.

"During the four days I was in the flat I was permitted to move about at will and to look out of the windows. The buildings all around were slum tenements except some factory buildings. My guard, who was relieved once a day by another kidnaper who alternated with him at watching me, talked to me only when necessary. About all I could hear were the sounds made by people walking up and down the uncarpeted stairs outside. I had no way to tell at what time the guards were changed as my watch had been taken from me.

"I also suffered terribly from thirst, as there was no water in the flat and only a little was brought to me each time the guards were changed. I will pay any amount of money to have those scoundrels arrested."

Within 24 hours, Secret Agent X-9, through underworld connections, had established that there were four gangster mobs in town, each with a separate hideout.

He decided to try to find out the gang which did the kidnaping by discovering the hangout where Wilson had been kept.

He decided to try to find out which gang did the job by discovering which hideout had been the banker's prison. The first hideout he tried was a four-story red brick apartment on Jermyn street. Going on uncarpeted stairs, X-9 found a two-room flat much like the one Wilson had described. There was no running water in the rooms. The windows looked out on a notorious slum neighborhood, all ramshackle tenements, except for some factory buildings, with a large clock above the main entrance that had on it the firm name, Jones Shoe Company.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

'Character Is Developed in the Stream of the World'

Character—that has always been plenty important. And it's more important today than ever before. Life's such a tough scramble—you can't go into it unless you have the makings.

All this you know. You know you need character. You know you'll fail without one. And you admire and envy character in others. But, when it comes right down to doing a job on yourself, you don't know where to start.

How does one achieve a character? Just what is character anyway?

Character ISN'T a moral state of mind. It's equipment for the battle of life. Real equipment. As real as the muscle in your arm. As definite and practical as shovels, typewriters, cooking stoves or revolvers.

But—how do you achieve character? Are people born with character? Do they inherit it? Or do they absorb it as they go along?

No—we aren't born with character. Nor can we absorb it as we go along. Nor can we learn its technique by associating with the right people, living in the right environment, working at the right job.

Then how does one get that way? By reading good books? Thinking fine thoughts? Making noble resolutions? Or, perhaps, following a set of rules?

That, too, is futile, as many a discouraged human has discovered. Character can't be learned, or taught. No one on earth can tell us how to develop our individual characters. There is only one way by which we can acquire the makings. The Germans have this saying by Goethe: "Es bildet Talent sich in der Stille, sich ein Charakter in dem Strom der Welt." . . . "A talent is developed in quiet; a character in the stream of the world."

There, in a few simple words, is a code for living . . . for YOUR living . . . for YOUR survival, progress and success, in this crowded world.

"A talent is developed in quiet."

You can learn how to dance, act, play a piano, write a sonnet; how to be a doctor or lawyer, in the quiet of the school-room or office.

BUT YOU CAN ONLY LEARN TO LIVE "IN THE STREAM OF THE WORLD."

You can only learn how to live by living . . . by facing the disagreeable, discouraging, difficult, dangerous experiences of REALITY.

As it takes two to make a quarrel . . . so it does to make character. If you're going to grow a backbone, the other fellow's cussedness is required, as well as your courage.

YOU CAN'T DUCK CONSEQUENCES AND PLAY SAFE, YET ACCUMULATE POWER AND COMMAND RESPECT.

There is no substitute for character. You may fake many things on this earth, but not character. You may quote platitudes, spout sermons, give largess to charity—go through all the gestures. But unless you have the real goods, the world will see through your bluff—and call it!

"Talent is developed in quiet . . . character in the stream of the world."

Why are there so many bright people, so many nice people who are total flops when they hit the current? That's why. You can learn how to be bright and how to be nice by reading, talking, thinking, watching. But you can only learn how to be a regular human by being one.

JUNIOR PATROL

It's a good idea to know figures, fellows!

Numbers are interesting. They enable men to find out how many, how much and how far things are. Used right, they save a great deal of labor. You are probably learning arithmetic in school. Learn it carefully, and practice adding, multiplying and subtracting until you are good at them and all kinds of arithmetic.

Knowing figures is one of the most helpful things a fellow and girl can know. For instance, when you buy something at the store, and the storekeeper gives you change. Most of the time the storekeeper is right. But sometimes he is wrong—he gives you too much money or not enough! A fellow who adds up his change and knows how much is due him will notice the mistake most of the time.

In learning figures, a good idea is to keep a little book, showing how much you earn or get, and how much you spend for each thing you buy. The two columns should balance when you add the two columns at the bottom of the page.

And it is wise to start saving a little if you can, fellows. Maybe there is something you want but it costs more money than you ever have at one time. Save up until you have enough.

Evelyn Snyder is the new captain of the Laurel Gardens Junior Patrol. Their first captain, Helen Tinnemyer, had to resign because she had so much school work. Here is Evelyn's letter:

"As I am lieutenant I took Helen's place as it is not near enough election to elect a new captain. Christ Miller was elected secretary, and Sarah Miller treasurer. Our club had a card party January 26 and our club went to the theater January 24."

Helen was right, we think, to resign from being captain if she couldn't attend the meetings regularly, Evelyn. We hope that all goes well with you now. Have you any more parties planned for the near future? We are anxious to hear how your instruction courses made out.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Exercise Is Good for Baby, Too

Exercise is not only beneficial but essential to the welfare of the human body. The value of systematic and properly supervised exercise cannot be overstated. Classes in school and other groups devoted to gymnastics have been greatly aided in the development of proper physique, posture and healthy bodies. School children are fortunate in having the privileges of directed exercise.

Dr. Copeland

Despite the generally accepted view, I fear too little attention is given to the importance of exercise for the infant. Every infant should have at least a half hour of exercise each day. If this simple health rule were enforced, I am confident fewer infants would suffer from constipation, "sniffles," colds and other minor ailments.

I do not mean to imply that the babies should be taught such exercises as the older child takes. But they can be encouraged in certain free movements that promote the growth of the body.

Spread a clean sheet on the floor of a warm and sunny room. Undress the child and turn him loose on the sheet or in a padded play pen. Make sure the room is really warm and free from drafts.

Of course, the infant obtains a great deal of exercise in the daily bath. Every healthy baby manages to squirm and wriggle around in the water to his own great joy and often to the anxiety of the mother. Never discourage this helpful performance.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Wobbly Hearts

Suing for alienation of affections is something like suing your next-door neighbor because your cat or your chickens insist on wandering over into his backyard and seem to find it more attractive there.

* * *

Marriages are almost never "broken up" by an outside party or any outside influence. They just sag in the middle and come apart; either because there were no real ties of love, or because somewhere in the character of the man or the woman, there was a loose bolt, a loose gear or a loose rivet.

* * *

When a popular young society matron eloped with another woman's husband, a few years ago, both were promptly divorced and given a chance to marry each other and be "happy." They married—but did she stick to him? Certainly not! She married another man—and yet another, before "the curtain was rung down" on her career.

* * *

When a man deserts his wife or is unfaithful to her, it is not always because he has met the "Wonder-Woman" of his life. It is not always because he and his wife are off-key or because his wife is a bore or a torment.

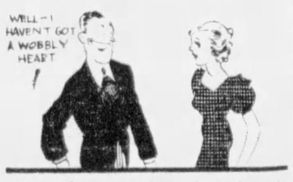
In nine cases out of ten, when a husband is divorced for unfaithfulness, he does not marry the partner of his infidelity. Because by the time he is at last set free, there is a brand NEW woman in the case! It's just that loose bolt, that loose gear, that loose rivet in his nature. It's not love of another woman, but love of A CHANGE!

* * *

Marriage doesn't go to smash, all at once, like an airplane or a soap-bubble. Most marriages, which end in parting and Reno, have been broken up long before, or have been gradually breaking up for years. The "smash-up" is just the echo of the real break.

* * *

Almost everybody goes into marriage with the conviction that it is going to be for life. NOBODY except a gold-digger or a congenital idiot, would tie himself or herself up in that Gordian Knot just for a joke or merely as an idle experiment.



But, if a marriage is going to last—if it is going to be anything but a farce or a smash-up—there are two vital things which it is necessary to be sure about, before you pick out the bridesmaids and engage the organist and the florist.

* * *

First, you must be absolutely certain—BOTH of you—that what you feel and what you are getting is real love. Understanding, tenderness, companionship—not just a dizzy infatuation or sex-attraction. Second, you must be sure that neither of you has a loose rivet or a wobbly heart.

* * *

These loose-riveted, wobbly-hearted people are often most attractive. But they have only one great, beautiful, undying love—and that is their eternal SELF-LOVE!

blood will tell—

ONE of the mysteries of life is how much care a man will take of thoroughbred animals—noting when they are "off"...and toning them back to the "pink of condition" to increase their daily usefulness—yet will shamefully neglect his own run-down condition.

Certainly, there is a pardonable pride in an animal's healthy appearance...but human beings are more important than animals. Yet some people just hope when "run-down" that they will "come around."

It is just good "horse-sense" to reflect and reason that your so-called "tired feeling" may come from a lowered red-blood-cell count and the hemo-glo-bin in these cells.

There is a remedy specially designed to bring back strength to weakened blood...and no one can be strong, healthy, happy, and full of vitality when in a run-down condition.

S.S.S. Blood Tonic is a time-tested remedy for restoring deficient red-blood-cells and a low hemo-glo-bin content.

If you suspect an organic disease consult your physician...if you feel weak...lack a keen appetite...if your skin is pale and off-color...try S.S.S. as a part of your regular daily diet. Take it just before meals. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite...your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy.

S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion as you should naturally.

S.S.S. value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal. It is truly a blood and body tonic. You will find it at all drug stores in two convenient sizes...the larger size is more economical.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS! :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Symbol of Real Patriotism Always Beautiful

Presenting a flag to a group of boys.

The boys ranged from 10 to 18 years of age. More of them 10 than 18. And I was glad of that.

There these boys sat, flanked in three rows, segregated in their khaki uniforms, and faces eagerly turned up to me.

There wasn't anything between me and them. Not even a desk. I was frightened. Not outwardly so. But the spirit in me trembled.

It was too big a task. Its influence was too far flung. The thing of telling these youngsters their duty to our flag.

And so I rambled on. I beat about the bush. And tried as hard as I could to win the hearts of them even if their heads remained adamantine.

Whither going, little men?

That was what kept pounding inside of me. Will you all be able to weather the gale of life? Will some of you be big citizens riding about in bullet proof cars and wringing dollars out of anything available? Will some of you lurk at dark corners and slyly ply at some less profitable business?

Just a step between the two.

The old flag hung back of me, on a newel post. Tattered and torn, and showing the carrying on street tramps. In and under doors it had passed, and always high above the heads of the bearers.

The new flag was draped over a similar newel post. It was fresh and gay in its bright coloring. In time, too, like all good flags, it would be tattered and torn.

MANY FLAGS

Flags. How many of them had I seen? I saw flags marching above men's heads here on the street and faced toward the railroad stations in 1917. I saw flags wrapped around the dead bodies of friends brought home in 1918 for burial.

Into Grant's Tomb on Riverside Drive in New York City I have gone, and carefully have I deciphered their eulogies. Flags that flew to the breeze at Vicksburg. Flags that followed in the vanguard toward Appomatox Courthouse.

I have seen the flags of Austerlitz. Of Waterloo. Of Ypres.

And yet is was as if all of them had dipped too often into human blood.

The symbol of genuine patriotism always is beautiful. There is a soul-inspiring spirit in every one of them.

But all too often has the usage of these symbols been heinous.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I have read many of the things you say. Some are good, some are not. You are too full of the gaff called optimism. If you had been to Europe with me during the war you're vision wouldn't be so sunny. I am not physically disabled.

There isn't a scratch on me. Even with that, I might as well have been killed in Europe. I'm dead inside.

I read the papers. I laugh. Why do men pass judgment on another of their kind, and for killing but one man? In Europe, I took direct aim at many men, and I got my man first. And was given a medal. How about that, Miss Brunot?

ALWAYS ALOOF

Of course if I hadn't gotten them, they would have finished me.

And maybe the very next day we would fraternize with the enemy. And I call all that bunk.

Of course I know I am talking what civilized people call ballyrot. I've mixed my drinks and gotten drunk. That's all. I read. I go out with many people. But I am always aloof. I can't get into the swing of things. I'm a stranger.

There isn't real life in me. It went out in 1918. I might as well be among those human beings we see printed in the war pictures. That is the real me, anyhow . . .

Veteran.

Maybe you say this fellow ought to wake up. Other men passed through what he did, and came out intact mentally. Let him go you say, to Miami and bathe in the ocean. Let him train in a gym, right here in Pittsburgh. Maybe so. But remember, he can't bathe his mind.

A corrosive something has possessed him. It is worse than poisoned gas manufactured. Stretchers there are which fit all of us. And some of us long to climb up on ours. And stay there.

But we have to BUCK UP. The time demands us to do so. There is life even for the dead who walk, if they but seek it.

Fay King Finds Glasses No Mar to Feminine Beauty

SHE LOOKED SO SWEET I SKETCHED HER EXACTLY AS SHE WAS FAY KING
THIS EARLY AMERICAN LADY PROUDLY HELD HER SPECTACLES WHILE HAVING HER PORTRAIT PAINTED!

By FAY KING

There is a lovely old painting of a lady who lived in New England in the early days. She had on her best lace bonnet and frills. She proudly held her glasses, prefering them to any flower.

The print of this painting reminded me of early days in my newspaper career.

Sent to interview and sketch a popular theatrical star, I found her at her hotel rooms, attractively gowned, wearing glasses and a white shetland wool shawl.

When my story and sketch were published, the star's press agent almost died of rage. It seems no one was ever to know that the gifted lady wore glasses and shawl.

But that was just his silly viewpoints. The actress had posed in them and knew that she looked very pretty.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Soup

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the proper way of drinking soup? Should the spoon be drawn through the soup toward the person, or away from the person? I think the spoon should be brought toward the person to the rim nearest the person. We have had a hot debate about this. H.

I'm sorry about the debate, and I hope that the stakes weren't very high, for you lose! When we eat soup, we dip the spoon away from us, toward the rim of the soup plate farthest away from us. And it is best not to "draw the spoon through the soup," but to put the spoon in the soup rather near the farthest rim of the plate, so that the voyage of the spoon in the soup needn't be unnecessarily long. And, in order not have a drop of the soup drip from the spoon after we have lifted the spoon, we should rest the bottom of the spoon momentarily on the lower part of the rim of the plate. This releases the drop . . . and we're safe!

Sympathy Notes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister just died and I received several sympathy cards from my friends. Is it proper to send acknowledgment cards to them, or thank them personally? My sister made her home with me. Both parents are dead. READER.

May I tell you, too, with your other friends, how sorry I am for this great loss of yours, and may I send my sympathy?

To each of your friends who send messages of condolence write a note of appreciation. Don't send ready-made "acknowledgment cards" . . . it is better to send a word or two of your own. Word your note something like this:

Dear Anita:

Thank you, with all my heart, for your kind and friendly words of sympathy. They touched me deeply, and were a great comfort to me. What a good friend you are!

Most sincerely yours,

Madge Confides Fear to Her Father

As I repeated Lee Chow's threat, for no matter what the Chinese had said in evasion later, I could not construe it as anything else, my father sprang to his feet with an agitation so rare in him that I knew he was most seriously disturbed.

"He dared!" he exclaimed. "He actually dared to threaten you! Oh! The man must be out of his mind! There can be no other explanation."

"I don't know," I said slowly, for Lee Chow's manner had seemed to me cold and lucid.

"But I do know," my father said. "I have known Lee Chow for a very long while, and I have thought him utterly incapable of such a plot as this he is concocting."

I had it upon my lips to say, "What plot?" but caught the words back just in time. If Lee Chow were concocting any plot, and my father knew of it, information could have come from only one source—Hugh Grantland. There was no use in questioning him, even if I had cared to humiliate myself by doing so. I took refuge in a banal question.

"Do you know whether there is any insanity in his family?" I asked.

RECALLS LOCK BOX

"I know nothing as to that," my father answered, "but I do not think that has anything to do with it. Always before this I have looked upon him as one of the sanest, most sapient men I ever have known; but do you remember that time when he opened Marion's strong box?"

A little shiver ran over me at the memory his words evoked. Again I saw Lee Chow standing before Marion's open lock box, and recalled all the macabre preparations for some unnamed horror which he had directed the rest of us to make. Again I saw him handling with infinite caution the long-sealed envelope with its knobby contents, witnessed his convulsive start, and heard his quick directions to the rest of us as the deadly, poisoned dart leaped out from the envelope and pierced his finger.

His infinite caution and the meticulous preparations he had insisted on our making had saved his life.

AFFECTS MIND

"You know," my father went on, much in the manner of a school teacher imparting a lesson, "that there are many subtle oriental poisons which affect the brain as well as the body, some of them even causing permanent insanity. I think the prompt measures which Lee Chow devised no doubt averted that last possibility. I sincerely trust so, any way. But he may very well be suffering from a temporary cloud upon his intellect, which would account for this bizarre interview with you. Do you not think so?"

"Yes, I do," I said, trying to keep a dubious note out of my voice, "but I don't mind telling you that, insane or otherwise, I am deathly afraid of him. I feel as though I could not talk to him alone again."

He put up a hand in horrified protest.

"My dear child!" he said. "Do you imagine for one moment that we—I—would permit your being subjected to another ordeal such as this? You will never have to see him alone again."

Again that slurring of the pronoun. Again that conviction, a certainty now, that Hugh Grantland was primarily responsible for thus protecting me against Lee Chow's crazed machinations, if crazed they should prove to be.

Household Hints

Add sufficient washing blue to your flower water to make it a light blue. This will double the life of your flowers.

Cream of tartar makes a wonderful agent for removing iron rust stains. Rub well—let stand an hour—then wash. Repeat process if needed.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I got a report from George Yester, Sheraden, about persons alleged to be distributing medicinal samples around the neighborhood. Mr. Yester further reports that several children picked these samples up from door steps and because they looked like candy, at them. The children became ill.

Let's ask those concerns which distribute medicinal samples from door to door to place them in the hands of adults, or where children, who can't read directions, won't get them.

* * *

W. J. H. writes letters in red ink. Like as not to knock your eyes out . . . With fear and trepidation I picked it up to read. What would you expect from a letter written in flaming words. I got fooled, too.

W. J. H. wants to know where she can send several hundred magazines, many of them still originally wrapped. Send them to the Tuberculosis Hospital and the Passavant Hospital.

* * *

I'm anxiously waiting reports from Brackenridge where they celebrated the seventy-third birthday of Squire Billy Bew.

Last year he blew out all 73 candles in one puff.

Daring Dick Merriwell Is Back

By AIRCASTER

The Merriwell brothers are coming to the air, after all these years.

The adventurous heroes who strutted through the nickel novels for many years, make their air debut at WCAE March 26, at 5:30 P. M. and they'll be heard thrice weekly.

Gilbert Patten, the "Burt L. Standish," who created the Merriwell characters, will do the scripts.

He gets more per story via radio than twenty of his novels of yesteryear would have netted him.

Mr. Patten is 71 years old.

* * *

The plan of an oil company to adopt the Skillet Sisters has collapsed, and Al and Pete, comics, will go on instead within a few weeks over KDKA, WTAM and WLW, instead of a network.

* * *

Olsen and Johnson fade out March 30.

* * *

Wallace Butterworth inaugurates "Gossip Behind the Microphone" at WJAS March 19.

* * *

VALLEE ON AGAIN

Cecil Lean, who warbles on the Family Theater presentation, Sundays via WJAS, started out as a boy soprano, and when he was ready for his professional debut he walked out on a Chicago stage, opened his mouth, and collapsed when he discovered he had very abruptly become a baritone.

* * *

Rudy Vallee and the National Broadcasting Company have patched up their feud, and Vallee will be heard again on WCAE, sustaining as usual, with Thelma Nevins, the Washington society warbler, assisting next Tuesday night.

* * *

Gertrude Berg, "mother" of "The Rise of the Goldbergs," writes every word of the script . . . in longhand.

* * *

Stockholm, Sweden, is to contribute to the entertainment of American listeners Tuesday afternoon, when at 2:56 KDKA-NBC brings across the Atlantic part of the new modern opera, "Fanal," by Kurt Atterberg.

The broadcast will consist of a section of the second act. . . .

WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES

1933 REAL ESTATE TAX
TO CITY OF PITTSBURGH

THIS PUBLIC UTILITY DOES PAY TAXES . . .

on real estate used in public service!

The fact that Pennsylvania Utilities Companies are exempt in some instances, from taxation on property used in public service creates a false impression that they are tax-free. Speaking of our own companies, we know that this is most emphatically not the case. First, because we do pay actual real estate taxes . . . $92,337.95 real estate tax paid to the City of Pittsburgh in 1933, includes taxes on the full assessed value of our principal office building at 435 Sixth Avenue. Second, we pay capital stock taxes to the state which are in essence real estate taxes . . . $1,170,669.10 was paid to the State of Pennsylvania in 1933. Moreover, there are specific and logical reasons for such tax exemptions as do exist on utility real estate, which are stated in decisions of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. In effect these decisions state that since Public Utility corporations extend into and through different municipalities it is not considered wise to subject them to the exactions of the taxing officer at every municipal division line. Instead, the state should be authorized to impose a capital stock tax upon such corporations. In appraising this property for taxation, real estate is an important factor taken into consideration. It is apparent that public utilities corporations do pay property taxes, and while they are paid directly to the state, municipalities receive the benefits of such taxation by appropriations to their public schools, hospitals and other institutions throughout the state. Here is just one practical illustration of what might happen if this exemption from local taxation were removed: Our Colfax Power Plant, serving the entire Greater Pittsburgh and Beaver Valley district with electricity is located in Springdale . . . if subject to local taxation, the Borough of Springdale would benefit enormously, but—the rest of the municipalities served by this plant would derive no benefits whatever from these taxes. Then too, if exemption from tax were removed from all of the real estate situated in Pittsburgh owned by the utilities in the Philadelphia Company group only $80,000 additional revenue would be derived by the city for municipal purposes.

DANDRUFF
Soon Destroys the Hair

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it. Then, you destroy it entirely. To do this, get some plain ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring, using enough to moisten the scalp and rubbing it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It won't cost you more than thirty-five cents (35c). No matter how much dandruff you have, this simple remedy never fails.

FIND DEAD MAN ON VOTE ROLLS

Twelve aliens, several non-residents, a dead man and an 18-year-old girl are on the registration book of Leetsdale Borough, according to the office of Leo A. Riordan, chief county investigator.

Riordan's office has also reports uncovering 35 changes of party affiliation without consent of the voters.

The changes in party affiliation and errors in the registration book were alleged to have been made by Fred Schneider, assessor for that borough in 1933 and recently appointed postmaster for Leetsdale.

All 35 changes in party affiliation were from Republican to Democrat, Riordan's investigation shows.

The 18-year-old girl is Lucy Merriman, also known as Lucy Servin, of 74 Broad street.

The new assessor for Leetsdale will go through the registration book and make the necessary corrections, Riordan says.

The names of six persons who called at the County Elections Bureau and had their names placed on the registration book of the First district, Second Ward, Homestead, were stricken off by the assessor of that district when the assessor found that they did not reside at the addresses given, it was announced.

G. O. P. Governor Hunt Still Dizzy Affair

By MARK SHIELDS

The Republican gubernatorial squirrel cage continued to revolve dizzily today, with only another week before the deadline for filing candidacies.

While a group of self-constituted "advisers" conferred in Philadelphia to make a recommendation to the regular organization, there was plenty of business on the western front. Friends of former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips discussed his situation with friends in Pittsburgh, and gave the intimation that the Butler man would remain in the race to the finish. He was reported to be seeking assistance from other leaders, some of whom have shown signs of getting in the race themselves.

Mr. Shields

Senator Frank J. Harris, who has petitions out, conferred over the week-end with Senator James J. Davis, the latter also contacting other politicians in this section of the state, principally by telephone. Davis continued to indicate a friendliness for the candidacy of Senator Harris, though Harris has not yet determined definitely whether he will file his petitions.

* * *

Davis Would Run If Path Was Cleared

Davis himself would be a candidate if he could be assured of clear sailing for the nomination, which is not possible. He would be fought by the followers of Gov. Pinchot and former Senator Joseph R. Grundy. The present purpose of Davis seems to be to force for himself some recognition as the Republican slate-making proceeds, State Chairman Martin and the higher-ups of the state committee having paid him scant heed so far.

Meanwhile, Supreme Court Justice George W. Maxey, in Pittsburgh for a session of the court, had notthing to add to his previous declarations that he would be a candidate only if this course became an imperative duty to the party.

Politicians were interested in a meeting in Erie today at which officials of the German-American League and the Erie Federation of Social Clubs prepared to launch a drive for the candidacy of Attorney General William A. Schnader.

Jacob Held, Joseph M. Schilling and John J. Silk were in charge of the parley, and County Chairman M. E. Graham and Senator Joseph R. Ziesenheim added their contribution with the prediction that the county organization would favor the attorney general.

* * *

Schilling's Presence Gives Grundy Tinge

Interest attached to the presence of Schilling in the gathering. He is a former member of the Legislature and a grand trustee of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, which has backed much social legislation, including old age pensions. Schilling during his legislative service was regarded as a lieutenant of Grundy.

His indorsement of Schnader was interpreted as meaning that State Treasurer Charles A. Waters, who has been spoken of as a possible gubernatorial candidate with Grundy backing, did not intend to enter the race.

Held is prominent in Republican organization circles.

Of equal interest as the participation of Schilling was the presence of Silk. In his section Silk is a leader in the Moose, and at one time was a lieutenant of Senator Davis.

The incident merely serves as another evidence of the confusion which surrounds the efforts of Republicans to get something approaching harmony in the primary.

First gun in the Democratic state campaign was touched off today by P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers, with the accusation that Roland S. Morris, of Philadelphia, anti-Guffey candidate for the senatorial nomination, was opposed to old age pensions.

* * *

Fagan Quotes Report Of Lawyers' Meeting

Fagan's charge was embodied in a letter to labor associates, quoting from the last annual report of the Pennsylvania Bar Association. A paragraph, referring to futile efforts to amend the constitution to provide old age pensions, and quoting a Supreme Court decision of 1925 against the principle, was applauded.

One of the signers to the laudation, according to Fagan, was Morris. Fagan, explaining that labor favored old age pensions, wrote:

"It would be inconsistent for the membership of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor to support the candidacy of one whose views are so contrary to the views of the Federation."

That wing of the Democratic party in Pittsburgh which intends to support Morris for the Senate and Judge Charles D. Copeland of Westmoreland county for Governor, will hold a meeting tomorrow night in Elks' Temple, Seventh avenue and Duquesne way.

The meeting is under the auspices of a newly formed Allegheny County Democratic Club, of which John B. Sweeney, Democratic candidate for Mayor of McKeesport last year, is president. Mrs. Sadie Keffer, member of the Clairton school board, is first vice president, and Major E. Lowrey Humes second vice president.

THREE INJURED IN BOULEVARD AUTO CRASH

Recklessness Charges Placed Against Two Other Drivers

A collision between two automobiles near a curve on Saw Mill Run boulevard and Dartmore street last night resulted in injuries to three persons, including two girls.

Pauline Singer, 22, of 1826 Bedford avenue; Ruth Lacaer, 20, of 3284 Dawson street, and Michael Gillard, 25, of 4 Monaca place, passengers in a car driven, police said, by Samuel Baem, of 359 Ophelia street, were treated at South Side Hospital. Baem and George Gernot, of New Salem, Pa., driver of the other car, escaped injury.

William Beck, 21, of Wyncott street, suffered lacerations of the head when the car he was driving skidded on Bigelow boulevard and crashed into a pole near the Bloomfield Bridge, Police reported. He was treated at the West Penn Hospital. Police placed a reckless driving charge against him.

A large glass display window in front of the Bridgeville Filling Station, Washington avenue, Bridgeville, was shattered when the automobile of Fred Spotti, of McDonald, Pa., skidded and crashed against the building, police reported. The driver was charged with reckless driving and released by the police for a hearing.

4 KILLED AS CAR OVERTURNS

Scott Dunnigan, 40, salesman for a Pittsburgh drug concern, was among four persons killed in an automobile spill near Abingdon, Md., while they were returning from a funeral Saturday night, according to word received here.

The other victims were Sheriff Reese M. Bowman, 32, of Belair, Md.; Mrs. Robert Leight, 34, of Otter's Point, Md., and her daughter, Miss Constance Leight, 16.

All were riding in the Sheriff's automobile, which apparently climbed an embankment along the Emmorton road and then turned over, crushing four of the five occupants. The fifth, Miss Ruth Leight, 14, escaped with injuries.

FAMOUS PLAY WRITER DIES

BERLIN, March 19.—(AP.)—Wilhelm Meyer-Foerster, author of one of the world's greatest stage hits, "Alt Heidelberg," known to America as "The Student Prince," died yesterday after a long illness. He was 72.

Alt Heidelberg claimed the biggest stage success of all time. It was a dramatized version of a short story Meyer-Foerster wrote in 1899 called "Karl Heinrich." This attained a sale of 30,000 copies within two years.

Its success induced the author to rewrite it as a play. The play has been translated into every modern language, and at present is being produced in Tokio in Japanese and in Johannesburg, Union of South Africa, in English.

Meyer-Foerster was made an honorary citizen of Heidelberg in 1922. His body will be cremated in Berlin tomorrow.

Congress Kicks Over Traces to Earn Its Wages

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

First revolt in the congressional desert was last week.

It means little. Cracks in the stucco indicate that the building is adjusting itself.

Difference of opinion is what makes hoss racing, and the White House jockey hasn't gone to the whip yet.

There's going to be another battle this week on tariff and silver. Well, silver ain't as important as gold, but it will fill in until the doctor arrives.

You can hardly blame Congress for kicking up a little after nodding in the affirmative for a year. Like the sentry that challenged the cow, you have to do something to earn your salary.

FOUR SUSPECTS IN HOLDUP JAILED

Cleveland Roundup Nets Quartet After Long Police Hunt.

A year and a half of tireless sleuthing by County Detective Walter Monaghan has borne fruit, it was revealed today as he planned to leave for Cleveland to return a suspect in the $1,300 holdup of Al Rice's restaurant, 900 Fifth avenue, in September, 1932.

Monaghan, a city detective at the time, investigated the holdup in which bandits took $1,200 cash and $100 worth of jewelry from Rice and 30 customers. He learned that a Cleveland gang had perpetrated the stickup and went there to continue his work.

A cleanup drive by Cleveland police netted four suspects in the local holdup. They were allegedly identified as members of the gang who staged the robbery by five of the victims. One of the suspects, Sam Solomon, alleged leader, will be returned to Pittsburgh tomorrow by Monaghan.

Extradition papers have been granted. Similar action is under way against Joseph Sherman, Hyman Skedolsky and Gene Redlick, also held in Cleveland.

PHOTOGRAPHERS EXHIBITING ART HERE

Twenty-first Annual Salon Opens at Institute

By PENELOPE REDD

The photographic section of the Academy of Science and Art presents the twenty-first annual Pittsburgh Salon at Carnegie Institute through April 15. Some 105 contributors are represented by 137 photographs. Of this number seven are from Pittsburgh.

Miss Redd

W. O. Breckon sends the portrait study of a woman in an "1866" gown. Byron H. Chatto exhibits one of the best urban pictures in the collection in "Commerce," a view of the Grant Building from the distance. P. F. Squier, in "Monuments to Science," sets the Massey Rhind statue of Galileo as a black silhouette against the white Cathedral of Learning. P. G. Schell has one of the excellent child studies of the exhibition in "Stepping Out," a little girl striding into the water. Herbert Spencer, in "Mere Man," uses the curved wall of a monumental building to scale down the man who walks along the giant stones of a curved walk below the wall.

David and Eleanor Craig admirably illustrate the title "Cold Speed" in their picture of winter sports, which is one of the few inspired by that popular activity. F. R. Altwater, in "Where the Bee," has chosen to pictorialize texture so close to the lens of the modern photographer. Mr. Altwater shows the bee sipping a hibiscus blossom.

M'DONALD STANDS OUT

The jury that made the selection of the photographs indicates reasonably well the range of the show. Pirie MacDonald stands far ahead of any other person busy snapping character studies. MacDonald has two pictures of William Butler Yeats and an uncanny portrait of John Masefield. MacDonald implies immeasurably more than does any other photographer in the show who essays the same delicate problem.

C. B. Seifert, anothe juror, sent "art studies" of nude young women that are far from the preoccupatious of contemporary photographers.

Robert A. Barrows, the third juror, shows a favored "Manhattan" skyline; "Contact," a study of pattern on the water; "The Sandfleas' Amphitheater," in which pattern is more deliberately developed; and finally an abstract pattern in the day's fashion, formed by the empty seats of an "Amphitheater."

GENERAL TYPES SHOWN

With few exceptions the photographs in the show are repetitive of the general types set down by the jurors. To the person who follows modern photography, the exhibition will leave much to be desired.

Ralph Anderson has a candid "Ranger Patrol." Doald Campbell establishes "Rhythm" from the reflections made by the convolutions of an iron rail upon steps. C. J. Crary does tricks with trays and vessels in "Copper Market—Cairo."

George Henry High has a thrilling urban nocturne in "The Lindbergh Beacon." E. T. Howell's Chicago subject, "Federal Building, Century of Progress" in which light and shadow upon steps and majestic pylons beyond make a natural abstract. Likewise does the fine print "The Bridge" by Fred Korth.

L. Eugene Johnson has an honest genre "Three Men to a Bale." Various photographers comment upon the topical subject of the recovery program. One of the functional ones is that by H. L. Keller with a crane as the pictorial protagonist.

Among the portraits of girls is a victorious young modern by Neil Kirby and a more spiritual type by Mrs. Helene Sanders.

Varied Study Range Represented in Exhibit

FINE ANIMAL STUDIES

Of the animal subjects, Don Parke's "Old Faithful," a spaniel and Helen Farrell's portrait of a cat are the most direct and the best in textures.

Dr. E. P. Wightman in "Mate in Five" has a brilliant still life. The hands moving across the chess board and the chess men have a quality that is lacking in such a picture as Ernest Pratt's "Vanity."

In "Vanity," the glass animal, fragile vase and mirror are modern properties and the whole thereby becomes superficially contemporary. Dr. Wightman's study on the contrary, shows fundamentally a modern intelligence which is not dependent for expression upon the exotic.

California has a larger representation than any other section of the country. Many of the Japanese photographers, who are included, are prone to regard pattern as paramount. The foreign guests in the show will be considered in a later article.

FLAMES CAUSE $10,000 LOSS IN BRADDOCK

Victims Driven Into Freezing Weather By Blaze Menace

Four buildings were damaged and several families were forced to flee in freezing weather when fire broke out in a two-story frame building at 932 Braddock avenue, Braddock, shortly after midnight.

Fire Chief Thomas K. Martin estimated damage at approximately $10,000.

The flames quickly spread to a two-story brick building at 930 Braddock avenue. Both buildings were badly damaged by the flames which swept the second floors. A two-story frame dwelling and a garage in the rear also caught fire.

Jack Sherman, of 5882 Hobart street, Squirrel Hill, proprietor of the Tenth Street Fish and Poultry Market at 930 Braddock avenue, said a score of chickens were suffocated. In the adjoining building was a small shoe shining and hat cleaning parlor. Both were on the first floor.

Two vacant three-story buildings, adjoining, were threatened by the flames.

Blaine Kerr, 16, of 928 Braddock avenue, was exercising a pet dog when he saw the flames in the rear. He rushed home, aroused his father, Frank Kerr; Marshall Warner, 25, his wife, Frances, 22, and their 14-month-old daughter, Sarah Jane. Mrs. Warner is Frank Kerr's daughter. They lived on the second floor.

In the same building were Helen Brunner, Mrs. Warner's cousin, and Mrs. Henry Hummell.

The first floor is occupied by A. J. Winberg, jeweler. The building was not damaged.

KUMMER DEATH PROBED IN N. Y.

New York police today were investigating the death of Joseph H. Kummer, general sales representative of the Fort Pitt Malleable Iron Company, of Pittsburgh, found dead Sunday on the steps of a public school building in West Fortieth street, New York.

Kummer's body was identified by Edward H. Holmes, another employe of the iron company, who had accompanied him to New York on a business trip. Holmes declared he, Kummer and another man had spent Saturday together, and that the three had become separated later.

Kummer resides at 209 Greydon avenue, McKees Rocks. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Mazie Kummer, and three children, Miss Marion, 21; Miss Lois, 18, and Carol, 7.

ENGINEER DIES IN AUTO WRECK

Thomas W. White, 58, former city engineer of McKeesport, was killed Saturday in an automobile accident near Petersburg, Va., according to word received here.

After leaving McKeesport Mr. White became affiliated with the Sinclair Oil Company, with headquarters in New York, and lately was engaged in building bridges for the government in Virginia. He was active in the affairs of the Knights of Columbus, Ancient Order of Hibernians and the B. P. O. Elks.

He leaves a brother, John White, of McKeesport, and a sister, Mrs. James Curran, of Carrick.

3 HURT, CRASH DRIVER HELD

Three persons were injured when an automobile driven by William Dietz, 21, of 1213 Veto street, collided with another driven by Melvin Wack, 25, of 1810 Hanover street, Swissvale, and then crashed into a display window of Jones' Hat Shop, 258 Fifth avenue, police reported.

Mary Brooker, 25, of Wexford, owner of the car driven by Dietz, her sister, Martha, and a man were passengers with Dietz. The injured were taken to the Mercy Hospital.

Martha Brooker suffered a broken leg, Miss Brooker bruises and contusions, and Wack brain concussion, hospital attaches reported.

A reckless driving charge was lodged against Wack, police reported, and Miss Brooker with violation of the motor laws permitting more than three passengers to ride in the front seat.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., March 19, To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

This air mail thing, wish they would get them all kinder calr ed down over it. Everybody is so heated up over it till they can't see the other fellow's side, or any other side but theirs.

Will Rogers.

No use talking about what the government shouldn't have done, it's done. No use saying "the government can't do this, and they can't do that." Say, you would be surprised at the things the government can do.

The Army may not be the one to carry the mails. I don't think so, but I am not going to go to blows with anybody over it. After all, it's the government's mail, and the government's Army. They can do what they want to with it. This thing is not going to be settled according to any one man's wishes, so they may just as well cool off and start compromising now. Yours, WILL.

Death Claims Woman, Friend of Birds

A funeral mass will be said tomorrow morning in St. Peter's Church, North Side, for Kate Woods, who was known to hundreds only as "the woman who feeds the birds."

For many years she daily attended 8 o'clock mass in St. Peter's, after which she stood outside and fed the pigeons and other birds in West Park.

She was a milliner with a business of her own, from which she retired several years ago. She was reputed to be wealthy.

Patricia Pitt

Concealed in the favors—hand wrought shellwork bouquets—at a luncheon given by Mrs. Elias Ritts, of Butler, Pa., Saturday, in her home, was the announcement of the engagement of Mr. and Mrs. Ritts' daughter, Mary Irene, to Albert Taylor Sprankle, of DuBois, Pa.

And among the 20 guests at the announcement luncheon, at which spring favors were the decorations, were two Pittsburgh girls, Stella Marie Bialas and Alice Le Roy.

Mary Irene Ritts—her friends call her "Reni"—studied at Miss Wright's School at Bryn Mawr, at Pine Manor, Wellesley, Mass., and is a graduate of Miss Conley's here in Pittsburgh.

Her fiance, who is the son of Mrs. Helen Van Pasel Sprankle, of DuBois and of the late Joseph Fleming Sprankel, went to Westminster prep school, Simsbury, Conn., is a graduate of Bucknell, and also attended Yale.

Miss McGinley Weds In Medieval Gown

At her wedding Saturday to Richard Borden, son of Spencer Borden, of "Interlachen," Fall River, Mass., Elizabeth McGinley, daughter of Mrs. Holden McGinley, of Milton, Mass., in whose home the ceremony took place, and of Thomas Atterbury McGinley, of Sewickley Heights, wore a charming medieval wedding gown.

Her dress was of white velvet with old gold thread and pearl embroidery, copied from an authentic medieval design. From a circlet of pearls which she wore on her hair, cascaded her short veil, made of a circular lace cape belonging to her maternal grandmother, after whom she is named. She carried a spray of white wistaria.

Gertrude McGinley, the bride's debutante sister, was maid of honor, the bride's only attendant. She appeared in a gown of pastel green, with the skirt of moire and the basque waist of self-tone lace, over which was a cape of the same lace. A matching moire hat, trimmed with apricot to match her bouquet of gerbera, completed her costume.

Ceremony Followed by Breakfast, Reception

William G. Sheldon, of Milton, Mass., was best men.

It was a small wedding, performed by the Rev. Vivian T. Pomeroy, of the First Parish Church, of Milton. A reception and breakfast followed the ceremony.

Mr. Borden and his bride will sail Wednesday on the Berengaria for England, and will return late in April, sailing from Italy. And they'll be at home after May 1 in a house built for them as a wedding gift at "Interlachen," the home of Mr. Borden's father, near Fall River, Mass.

Quite the most exciting concert for some time was that of the Pittsburgh Symphony and Walter Gieseking, guest artist, last night in Syria Mosque.

In the enthusiastic audience was Mrs. William Maclay Hall, president of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society. She looked smart in a dress of black crepe having a bodice of Kelly green. Mrs. F. C. Irish wore olive green heavy crepe with mink for accent; Mrs. J. Hanson Rose, red bagheera, fashioned with long, tight-fitting sleeves and a square neckline, and Mrs. John W. Lawrence, a two-color gown—a blouse of rose-red velvet and a skirt of black crepe.

Representing the younger set was Katharine Frazer, who appeared in a black lace gown having long sleeves with ruffle trimming. Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock was in cream lace and black velvet. Others I noted in the audience were John W. Lawrence, David I. McCahill, Mrs. Ferdinand Weil, Mrs. Enoch Rauh, Richard S. Rauh, Mrs. Edwin Ruud, Bettie Guiler, Mrs. Hugh Campbell Shaw, Mrs. Roy A. Hunt, Mrs. W. Edgar Reed and Helen MacCloskey.

WOMEN ARE STILL BORROWING CRAVAT SILKS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

MAYBE ONE more myth will explode with a loud bang when men realize that the same wives and sweethearts who pick out such funny looking neckties for them (according to tradition) really know the best bets when they see them. That shocking bit of intelligence will come out when the males twig the fact that lots of the snappiest printed shirtmaker dresses of the moment are made of cravat silk which retains the designs and colors originally given it for manly consumption.

* * *

EVER SO many men who stick to a nice conservative tie of hash or angle worm tint, year in and year out, just to be on the safe side, would do very well to snip off a length of the missus' new spring frock in the dark of the moon, and twist it festively under their collars.

There is not much news about the frocks of this type; they are made, perforce, of the latest tie silks, and they have too quickly become a classic in feminine wardrobes to permit designers many fresh notions.

BUT ALL the sleeves are not necessarily cuffed and linked this year, and some models show ascot ties instead of turn-down collars at the throat. And very decorative buttons have replaced the bone and pearl numbers that were once invariably used to fasten these tailored dresses. Carved wood, dyed in some lovely, bright shade, tear drop pearl, rhinestone and composition, hammered or engine turned metal are some of the new button materials. In fact, a bright girl can take a perfectly ordinary tie silk dress and put it into the cocktail hour class by decorating it with a new row of dressy buttons.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

The generous scarf which matches this cross-bar striped brown and white tie silk frock is its highlight. The spaghetti leather belt is amusing.

A geometric-patterned cravat silk is used for the frock sketched center, in brown and orange. The open three-quarter sleeves are new and the skirt pockets smart and useful.

More than 600 men and women attended the Irish cabaret given Saturday afternoon in the Chatterbox by the Woman's City Club. There was a program, distinctive in spots, that amused and entertained. A group of professional dancers appeared, Mrs. Norval R. Daugherty gave a monologue, the Duquesne Young Women's Club put on a burlesque Irish wedding, there were bagpipers, and Percy Dorrington, with Edward Koontz at the piano, sang some baritone solos beautifully.

As additional diversion there was bridge, fortunes were told in a thatched cottage, there was a grab bag with some really valuable "grabbings" and there were pounds and pounds of delicious homemade candy disposed of by a group of charming young girls in Irish costume.

SINGLE DISH FOR WHOLE MEAL SUGGESTED

'Habitant Soup' Old French Recipe

There are many times when the busy housewife wishes she could prepare a meal without having half a dozen different foods to watch at one time. Her nerves are jumpy, she's tired, but it's mealtime, and she must keep going.

Yet there are many dishes which in themselves constitute a whole meal. Today's $5 prize winner is one of these, according to its sender, Miss Mathilda Lucas. She says:

"Here is a recipe for a delicious and very nourishing soup called "Habitant Soup," an old family dish of ours, which comes to me from my old French grandmother. If supplemented with bread and butter it is practically a whole meal."

Certain of your recipes must be stand-'byes in your household. Let them help some other woman by sending them in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Every day, except Sunday, she awards a $5 prize and 10 $1 prizes to the best recipes in her heap of mail. No recipes, she reminds you, are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MISS MATHILDA LUCAS,
421 Lekhart street,
HABITANT SOUP

Into a large cooking pot place a pound or more of fat beef (the shank or breast is best), a small piece of salt pork (about one-quarter pound), diced turnips, diced carrots (amounts to be varied according to number of people), a few peeled whole onions, a piece of butter, celery salt, salt and pepper to taste. Over the top of all this, place whole large leaves of cabbage. Put on the lid and let the mixture simmer for three or four hours. In season, ears of corn are frequently dropped into the pot 10 minutes before serving, and the entire mixture is ladeled out from one large tureen. It is usually served in soup plates. Plain boiled potatoes, salted and buttered, usually accompany this dish.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W.: The fist fight between Billy Leeds and Erskine Gwynne was merely "hic" stuff—they ended it by arm-and-arming it . . . Clarence "Bud" Kelland, president of the Dutch Treat Club, has resigned from the Players . . . Because the club committee wouldn't admit his son, Horace, 21, to membership . . . On the ground that membership in the Players calls for "accomplishment, and not lineage," etc. So Mr. Kelland was good and mad . . . Apropos of the Sydney Fox—Charles Beahan partings and reconciliations—I came across this in an old movie magazine. It is a page of movie star New Years Resolutions—Beahan's was: "Never to take his wife for granted," and hers was: "To keep my husband amused and happy." . . . Their divorce has been deferred temporarily . . . "As Thousands Cheer" is rehearsing substitute skeiches to replace the ones on John D., the Hoovers and King George . . . Incidentally, some London friends tell me that the King has double pneumonia, in spite of the denials that he is ill.

Seems to me that the Palais Royal revusical is second to none of the Broadway highspots . . . The costuming, the girls and the dances, by Bob Alton, are exciting—but this is what "got" me . . . The management has hit on something novel. At each dinner show (at 7) a dozen bottles of good champagne are given away free if you hold the lucky numbers. Not only is it an unusual stunt—but it is the first time any night club ever gave a patron something for nothing! . . . They told me the champagne that they gave away must cost them at least $500 a week—which certainly is better than wasting money on some dull comedians . . . And, you won't believe it—but the Palais hasn't a master of ceremonies—so help me!

Vera King is in Barcelona . . . Lady Cavendish (Adele Astaire) denies any plan to return to the stage or for a divorce . . . You bungled the name of the theater where those cut-ups kept lighting matches during the play . . . Not the Morosco—it's where "Dodsworth" is such a hit . . . David Murray phoned. Said it would be swell if it took as long to slide down the ladder of success as it does to climb up . . . I wouldn't know about that . . . Bernie's brother is signing big names for one-time appearances on the air at $5,000 per. John Barrymore is the first . . . A comparative newcomer to the air is a Washington (D. C.) girl named Thelma Nevins—but she must be good. For on Tuesday night she will have the distinction of singing on three major programs the same night . . . With Reisman—Harold Stern's band, and then with Vallee from the regular sustaining show at the Hollywood.

* * *

Olin Miller says he has never met Carnera, but he thinks he has sat behind him in movie theaters often . . . The benefit for good old James Thornton, who has played many of them in his 60 years, is set for April 1—a Sunday—at the Forrest . . . Mayor Ellenstein, of Newark, will appreciate it a lot if you record his show for the orphans at the Mosque in Newark March 21 . . . There's one at the Lyric in Jersey City for the old orphans on Sunday night . . . When I think of how many there always are and how the theatrical profession rarely says "no"—I weep a little for the armies of professionals who wonder when somebody will run a benefit for them! I mean a benefit, let's say, every week, for actors, so that they need never be in want . . . There I go dreaming again . . . It's a boy over at the F. Elkins . . . Fred Kaplan, the attorney, says you recently ran a mean line about a Broadway lawyer (without mentioning names) and that people think you meant him. He is on the verge of tears.

The N. Y. Newspaper Woman's Club says consider yourself kissed by all the girls if you mention that their Front Page Ball happens April 13 at the Astor . . . David Freedman, who is Eddie Cantor's joke looker-erupper, returned from Florida and is in bed with the grippe . . . The Jay Faggens (Edythe Wilson) received their final decree March 1 . . . Sophie Tucker is writing a history of vaudeville . . . Tamara's new honey is Ray Middleton of "Roberta," in which she is leading lady . . . You mentioned that the Phil Turnbulls were divorcing. She got it Tuesday and married Walter Reisinger in Reno the next day . . . The best line in "Dodsworth," I think, is when Huston observes: "Have you ever noticed how transparent people are when you really look at them?"

Ruth St. Denis may lose her elaborate dancing "plant" uptown, unless some philanthropic dance lover or some of her pupils come to the rescue . . . St. Denis isn't as wealthy as she once was and cannot afford to keep it going . . . Mae West is supposed to have given her sister Beverly a $15,000 car as a wedding gift last week . . . I heard that coaster on the air say: "I have a scoop! George Raft is married!" . . . No kiddin'? . . . When there is a lovelier arrangement than Reisman's theme song, "What Is This Thing Called Love?" lemme know, will ya? . . . And you should hear Grofe's crew mess around with: "There Goes My Heart." Oh, dear . . . I know you'll adore this . . . Hellinger came into the editorial rooms with a mastiff—one of those puppies as tall as the Empire State Bldg. and as long, too . . . Mark was playful and kept worrying the staff by telling the dog to jump on them—so what happened? So the hound jumped all over Mark—and knocked him down—for which hurray!

A group of New Jersey war veterans are having a gold medal struck for you—for the many evidences of appreciation toward all vets, they said . . . Nice? . . . When Bernie arrived in Hollywood dozens of Paramount girls met him at the station with orchids—from you! . . . Incidentally, Ben played Buffalo, where a radio station is called WBEN, and he said it must have been named after him . . . To which a heckler said: "You mean WHAM, which is in Rochester!" I got a tip on a mid-Western Mayor allegedly holding part of the Urschel snatch ransom, who can't spend it because it is marked—and I turned it over to Francis X. Fay, of the Dep't of Justice . . . Riddle me this: Why is it that a bank teller can count your money four times and it is always okay—but if you count it over once, he gives you a nasty look? —Your Girl Friday.

Edgar Ulmer, an ultra-modern director, who has Universal MUCH AGOG over his unusual megaphone treatment of "The Black Cat," got the studio excited over a play, one in which Alexander Moissi appeared for Max Reinhardt, as a stellar idea for David Manners. A deal is now in progress for the purchase of the strange theme, one which Ulmer refuses to reveal at this time.

This chap Ulmer is doing a REVERSE ANGLE on mystery yarns with "The Black Cat." No dim shadows, no cob-webs and no inky-black rooms. Every scene is filmed with an abundance of light and he's kidding the spooky stuff. Well, it's novelty, at least!

Little Jean Parker is steadily climbing to the film front and making quite a niche for herself as an exceedingly brilliant dramatic actress. Search Long For Ancient Piano

Every nook and corner of Los Angeles was searched to find an old-fashioned pianoforte. The instrument was needed during the filming of a military ball of Confederate officers and their ladies in Marion Davies' new Cosmopolitan picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, "Operator 13," Civil War spy drama.

The ball was held in the historic Danbridge mansion, built near Martinsburg, Va., by Martha Washington's family and served as Gen. "Jeb" Stuart's headquarters during a period of the Civil War. The mansion was reproduced almost in its entirety and historically correct in every detail at the picture studios for "Operator 13."

For the ball, a colored orchestra that could play old-fashioned Southern waltzes on Civil War period instruments including the pianoforte was required.

After a discouraging search, the desired type was finally located and loaned to Miss Davies' company by descendants of one of the South's oldest families, who have since settled in California.

Then an orchestra was sought and when Buster Wilson, Negro musician, convinced Director Richard Boleslavsky he could play the old-fashioned instrument, he and his orchestra won the job of playing the music for the military ball.

The pianoforte, more than 75 years old, was made by Alexander Bretschneider in Liepzig before the Civil War, and it was shipped to Virginia aboard a sailing vessel.

In "Operator 13," the last novel written by the late Robert W. Chambers, Miss Davies appears as Gail Loveless, a Union army spy, with Gary Cooper, as a Confederate captain, appearing opposite Miss Davies. The story first appeared as a serial in Cosmopolitan magazine and later in the Hearst newspapers. The cast also includes a score of other notable actors. Lucien Hubbard is the producer and Richard Boleslavsky the director.

Warren Gets Sea Urge

Few would blame Warren William's wife for being alarmed but the actor is nursing injured pride because he was reported missing during a 20-hour hard-luck sail from Catalina to the mainland.

The Warner star feels his seamanship has been put in question. He wants to do a little stunt to redeem himself.

This is back of William's purchase of the Dick Barthelmess yacht, the Pegasus, and of a South Seas voyage he is planning for the summer.

With only one man to help him, the star intends to sail to Honolulu.

All In A Day

By MARK HELLINGER

The Old Home Town.

BEFORE JANIE had come to New York, she had believed that it would be the most exciting and wonderful place in the world. A place of lights and laughter and music. And, true to type, she had been in the city only six months when she longed to return to the simple life in her own home town. For New York had proved a bitter disappointment.

To be sure, she had a job. But what a job it was! All day long she carried foaming steins of beer from bar to table, and empty steins from table to kitchen. After a long day of that she had little enthusiasm for bright lights. The only laughter she ever heard was from the throats of partly-stewed customers. And the constant rattling of dishes and the shouts of the counter men could hardly be classed as music.

Janie hated her job from the bottom of her heart. The more she hated her job, the more she longed to go home. But she couldn't, she felt, go back to the folks who had warned and advised her against coming. Besides, there was nothing there for her to do.

Of course, she could go back and wait for Frank to propose. But she was a little tired of that. Back home she and Frank had been sweethearts, after a fashion, for five long years. In all that time the boy had never suggested their getting married. But Janie was sure that he would some day, and hating her job and her life in the city as she did, it is not surprising that she dreamed of the conventional vine-and-mortgage-covered cottage.

She had never been any too sure that she was in love with Frank. But when she thought of that little cottage, it wasn't hard to convince herself that she was. Yet Janie stayed, for the reason that is as old as Broadway itself. She stayed because she was too proud to admit that she had made a mistake and that things hadn't turned out exactly as she had expected.

Then Frank himself simplified matters by marching himself into the restaurant late one afternoon. When Janie saw him, she came close to dropping the tray that she was carrying. And when Frank saw Janie, his mouth fell open and his eyes seemed to be on the verge of popping out of their sockets.

He seated himself at a table, and when the girl came over to him, he asked, "Gee! Is this what you're doing? Gee!"

"Yeah!" Janie's chin lifted a good three inches, and she made a valiant effort to smile. "Yeah, I been here a long time. It's a swell place. I like it swell," she lied. "How's the folks back home? How'd you happen to drop in here of all places?"

"I'm here on a visit. I'll only be here a couple of days. Everybody's fine. They talk about you a lot," Frank stated.

"You'll tell them, won't you," requested Janie, "that I've got a swell job and that I like it a lot? Be sure to tell them that."

"Okay. What time do you get through, Janie?" . . .

When Janie got off duty, Frank was waiting outside for her. They walked slowly toward her boarding house, talking of many things. Janie talked about the city and how wonderful it was, and Frank told her about the people they knew and of the little changes that had taken place during her absence.

"You want to go to a movie or something now that you're here?" the girl asked.

Frank shook his head.

"I got something I want to tell you. I been thinking of it ever since I saw you this afternoon. Listen, I know I got a nerve asking you," he blurted out finally. "Gee, I know it's a nerve asking you to leave a swell place like this and go back to a hick town. But I gotta. It ain't like we didn't know each other so long. I wish you'd marry me, Janie, and come home with me. Will you? Will you do that, Janie?"

Would she? When it meant that she'd never have to go back to that restaurant again, never have to serve another stein of beer? Janie couldn't say "Yes" fast enough.

Frank knew of a place upstate where they could be married without the customary several days of waiting.

So, in the morning, they threw their bags into his much-used flivver and left the city. Before night had fallen they were man and wife.

Janie was extremely happy when they rattled down the main street of her home town. The place had never seemed so pleasant nor so attractive. She sighed deeply and with utmost content.

Frank began to slow down as they reached the center of the town. When he pulled the car into a space beside the curbstone, Janie sat up straighter and turned to him with a puzzled frown.

"What are we stopping here for?"

Her husband grinned broadly, and pointed to a restaurant with a sign that read, "BEER ON TAP."

"It's a surprise," he explained. "I lost my job last month, and I had a little money that I had saved for a house in case you and me ever got married. But I bought this place instead. It's ours, Janie!

"Right along," he went on, "I've been needing somebody to help wait on table and things, but I couldn't afford it. I never would have asked you, only for what you told me in that beer joint in New York. I know you'll be happy and contented helping me here, on account of you liked that job you had so well."

Cantor Has a Real Purpose Besides Being Funny

By MICHAEL SHAW

Eddie Cantor firmly believes he has converted scores of derelict near-suicides into cheerful, useful citizens.

He has letters of praise from the White House and from such national leaders as Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler and Judge Ben Lindsey to strengthen him in his belief.

Eddie started as a little goggle-eyed comedian from New York's East Side, and he still has a gagman, but it is in the tales of tremendous good that his weekly 6,000 letters bring him, in the stories of reunited families and new-found purposes resulting from his radio sermons that Eddie Cantor finds his real interest now.

Interviewed in his dressing room in the Stanley Theater, where he is appearing this week, Cantor explained:

"I get a kick out of the thought that in one evening, even while I am making the audience before me forget its troubles and laugh at my jokes, thousands of other audiences from Hong Kong to London, from Honolulu to Chicago, are applauding and laughing at my motion pictures just as my audience is applauding and laughing at me. Is there anyone who wouldn't thrill to that idea?

"But the greatest thrill to me is the realization that today, tomorrow, maybe 50 years from now, people are and will be happier because I lived and said a few words at the right time. Could any monument however large or costly, give a person more satisfaction than that?"

THE DADDY IN HIM

It was just a few years ago, in 1931, that Eddie was struck with the idea of devoting part of his radio broadcast to a little sermon on some type of human misery and a possible remedy for it.

Since then Cantor, the comedian has been largely replaced on the radio by Cantor, the husband and father. We have had talks about helping little children cross the street, and writing to your mother, and cheering up your dad.

Cantor implored American drivers to "drive slowly, since we love our children," and safety organizations, insurance companies, and anxious parents wrote him thousands of grateful letters.

Cantor presented a satirical skit on the nudist movement and received bundles of mail from mayors, sheriffs and civic leaders thanking him for laughing the nudists out of their districts.

Cantor advised young men and women who thought themselves failures to go home to their worried parents, and the following week he received more than 200 letters from parents thanking him for bringing their children back to them.

LETTERS A CRITERION

His answer to those who scoff at his little lectures is that he receives about 25 per cent more letters following broadcasts with sermons than following those with only straight comedy. And letters are a comedian's main gauge of the popularity of his program.

But Cantor on the stage and screen is still primarily a comedian. And it was as a comedian that he opened two of his biggest stage hits in Pittsburgh, "Kid Boots" and "Whoopee."

He remembers very well that night in 1927, the night before the opening of "Whoopee," when his throat suddenly become so hoarse at rehearsal that he was unable to speak above a whisper. Frantically Ziegfeld summoned specialists to treat the star's precious throat, and it was only by working on Cantor all that evening and throughout the following day that the doctors were able to prepare Cantor to appear the opening night.

During the 11 days that "Whoopee" ran in Pittsburgh it grossed what Cantor believes is the world's record for that type of show—$97,000.

STRONG COMPETITION

Another Cantor memory of Pittsburgh is the week that he and Al Jolson were playing at rival houses. The box office receipts were published each day, and stories were circulated about the bitter rivalry and personal animosity that existed between the two actors, but each evening after the show Mr. and Mrs. Jolson and Mr. and Mrs. Cantor met and made "whoopee" in grand style.

After Tuesday night Cantor will have something else to remember Pittsburgh by, for on that night the Pitt Panther, University of Pittsburgh humorous publication, will present on the Stanley stage, a plaque to Eddie Cantor. The inscription on the plaque will embody the sentiment of all of Cantor's admirers in complimenting him on "his success, humor and good fellowship."

Soldier to Speak On Devil's Island

Patrick Ryan will speak on "Devil's Island and Other Tough Spots of the World," before the International Club at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow. Ryan served with the French Foreign Legion on Devil's Island and has traveled to every country of the globe.

P.T.A. to Present Travel Picture

The Parent-Teacher Association of the J. M. Logan School will present a travelog picture, "A Trip Around the World" tonight at the school. Paul Kolinsky has arranged the travelog.

JEWS TO MARK PASSOVER

Observance of Passover, the Jewish feast of emancipation, will begin at sundown on March 30. Celebrated for seven days by reform Jews and for eight days by orthodox Jews, the Passover is considered one of the most significant festivals in Jewish life.

Instituted as a nature festival to celebrate the arrival of spring, the Passover dates back to the time when the ancestors of the Jewish people lived in Palestine and made their living by farming. Since then the feast has come to be associated with the deliverance of the race from bondage in Egypt.

The physical freedom attained through the leadership of Moses is celebrated at the Passover, as well as the spiritual freedom that resulted from it.

BUTCH SET FOR BATTLE WITH N. B. A. CHAMPION

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Roettger Early Surprise. Showing Improved Form. Better Year For Champs.

Rajah Picks Nats, Yanks. Expects Two-Club Race. O'Brien Analyzes Primo.

Not all of the new Pirates making a good impression in the spring training activities are in the rookie division. Many fans may have forgotten that there is a player named Walter Roettger on the Pittsburgh roster, but judging from his showing on the practice trip he is likely to make his presence felt in a pleasing and helpful way quite frequently during the season to come. The 31-year-old outfielder bids fair quickly to rout the notion that he was just a throw-in with Red Lucas in the trade that sent Tony Piet and Adam Comorosky to Cincinnati.

Walter Roettger

No doubt new spirit has had much to do with Roettger's improved form. He is delighted to be a Pirate and, like Lucas, says it feels great to get on a real ball club after serving with a tail-ender. But whatever may have caused the uplift, camp observers have changed their opinion of the former Giant, Cardinal and Red, and are convinced that he is a better ball player than he has been rated. There is the prospect, too, that the livelier pill will mean a big jump in the batting average that dropped from .321 in 1931 to .277 in 1932 and to .239 last year. In short, it looks at though the Bucs picked up in Roettger a man who will do more for them this year than even the management anticipated. Far from being merely a toss-in to balance the Lucas deal in number of players, Wally promises to be of sufficient help to the Rovers to make himself a valuable part of the machine as a reserve outfielder and right-hand pinch-hitter.

TWO OUT OF THREE OLD WINNERS REPEAT

Following the victories of Primo Carnera, Maxie Rosenbloom, Barney Ross, Sonja Henie, Karl Schafer and others, early results continue to indicate that 1933 isn't going to be such a jinx to champions as was the preceding year. Two out of three champions repeated in the last two days, with Cambridge outrowing Oxford for the eleventh straight time and Gallant Sir winning the Agua Caliente Handicap, the only exception being Gregory Mangin who lost the national indoor tennis crown to Lester Stoefen after two years on the throne.

And no horse before Gallant Sir ever won the Mexican classic twice. Stoefen's triumph was the only upset. At that, the dope that Lester's success indoors makes him a good bet for the Davis Cup team is far-fetched. There's a great difference between indoor and outdoor tennis. Bill Tilden won the indoor title only once, but piled up seven championships on the turf.

HORNSBY SEES ONLY TWO CLUBS IN RACE

Rogers Hornsby is none the less outspoken since going over to the American League. That has been a refreshing Hornsby trait always. He speaks his mind, says what he thinks. So while other club heads in the American League are telling the public that the junior circuit is going to have an open pennant race, with six or seven clubs in the fight, Rogers comes to bat with his usual frankness and expresses the opinion that it will be merely a two-club tussle between the Senators and the Yankees.

Rogers Hornsby

Rogers can't see a pennant chance for any other outfit, though all he claims for his own team is that it ought not to be lower than sixth. He says that picking the Red Sox for third is unwarranted, as the infield is poor, the club is full of weak spots and can't hope to win with just a pitching staff. The White Sox may flash for a time, but can't last, Hornsby thinks, as against a hard-hitting outfield there is a patch-work in field, the pitchers are getting old and there are no bells on the catchers. Of the Tigers, he says that Goslin can hit, but is passing out, and the club can't reach the first division with only Cochrane and Gehringer. Rogers pronounces the Indians a fifth-place aggregation and views the A's as shot by sales.

PITT'S FIRST NEW YORK GAME RECALLED

It will not be the first appearance of a Pitt football team in New York when the Panthers visit the Metropolis in 1935 to play Fordham, but only the first appearance there of a Sutherland-coached Pitt eleven. Thomas M. Barr, of Pittsburgh, Dr. D. W. Lebby, of Somerset, and J. W. Koval, of East Pittsburgh, write to correct that portion of the announcement, recalling that in 1923, Pop Warner's final year here as coach, Pitt played Syracuse University at the Yankee Stadium in New York and was defeated, 3 to 0, through a field goal kicked by McBride.

The game, one of the most interesting of the Pitt-Syracuse series, was played on October 20 as the first football event staged at the Yankee Stadium, opened that year. The middle of that season was a disastrous period for the Pitt team, captained by Lloyd Jordan. After two wins over Bucknell and Lafayette, the Panthers lost four games in a row to West Virginia, Syracuse, Carnegie Tech and Penn, but finished with victories over Grove City, W. & J. and Penn State.

THINKS CARNERA COULD BE TAUGHT TO HIT

Terming Primo Carnera "just a big cow with the ability to go through a few rudimentary boxing motions," Philadelphia Jack O'Brien says the heavyweight titleholder kills his chance to improve by his efforts to be a boxer. Carnera, according to O'Brien, can't hit because he boxes on his toes. A fighter has to be flat on his feet to get any knockout juice in his wallops. No dancing lightweight ever could hit, and it's just the same with a heavyweight when he is perched on his toes. Jack suggests that Primo get down on flat feet and stop trying to ape Jim Corbett.

Jack O'Brien

O'Brien thinks that by that system Carnera could be taught how to hit, arguing that while real hitters are born with the knack, others can be taught. Hard, destructive hitting is like snapping a whip, and anybody can be taught how to crack a whip. The veteran contends that Primo's hooking style is all a mistake; that he's always in close in order to ues his weight to advantage, whereas hooks are most effective at long range. Only a few were ever able to get big results with hooks at close range, and they were artists—Sam Langford, Bob Fitzsimmons and Billy Papke. Jack deplores the fact that few fighters go in for straight hitting and prefer to swing, hook, jab, jolt and backhand. He says the best straight hitter he ever saw was Peter Maher, relating that the old Irish champion once knocked big Yank Kenny cold with a straight right squarely in the middle of the face. O'Brien thinks Tommy Loughran was too meek and submissive in letting Carnera step all over his feet and not doing anything about it. "Loughran should have kicked him in the shins, anything to make him cease," Jack adds. "Can you picture Carnera trying to step on Harry Greb's feet? Why, Greb would have pulled his hair out, or something. You've got to fight rough stuff with the same medicine."

American Hopes in Grand National 'Chase Friday

SORLEY BOY, OWNED BY F. AMBROSE CLARK, NEW YORK SPORTSMAN

Two of the American-owned favorites in the annual Grand National Steeplechase, one of the most grueling horse races in the world, to be run at Aintree, England, on Friday. Kellsboro Jack, owned by Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, won last year's classic. These are International News Photograph Service pictures.

DUQUESNE GRID WORKOUTS DELAYED

By JESS CARVER

Owing to the frigid weather and the fact that the playing field is covered with snow, the spring football drills at Duquesne University, under the direction of Head Coach Joe Bach and Assistant Coach Christy Flanagan, have been postponed until Thursday.

At Pitt, Coach Jock Sutherland plans to keep his Panthers hard at it. The Pitts were called out last Friday.

PITT TEAM GOOD

Carl Olsen, Pitt's energetic track coach (most track coaches are, for some reason or other) has another relay cup to turn over to Athletic Director Harrison today. A week ago, Coach Olsen very proudly presented W. Don with the cup his crack mile quartet won in the Central States' meet at Notre Dame. Saturday night, the team of Kiger, Keller, McDonald and Connelley clipped six-tenths of a second off its own mark for the university mile at the Armour Tech relays in Chicago. Keller, running anchor man for the Panthers, beat Michigan State's anchor by a yard.

A brilliant outdoor season is in prospect for the Panther track and field squad and especially for the relay team and Arvil Fleming and Ken Wagonhouser. The relay team, stepping the mile in 3:22.9 indoors, should be able to hit 3:20 on the cinders. Fleming is improving with every race in the dashes and hurdles and Wagonhouser has been stamped by none other than Art Smith, West Virginia mentor, as one of the most promising distance men in the country.

The annual meeting of the Tri-State Association for the Selection of Basketball Officials and the Western Pennsylvania Basketball Coaches' Association will meet at Webster Hall Saturday.

TO STUDY OFFICIALS

At the meeting of the selections association, the record of the new group of court officials for the past season will be checked over. The schools and coaches generally have indicated that they are well satisfied with the work of the new arbiters, who have profited by the year of experience and by the consideration which generally has been shown them.

POWELL LEADS ICE LEAGUE IN SCORING

By CARL W. SHATTO

The J. Scott Morgans, who won the championship of the City Hockey League by defeating the Pirates, 2-1, in a game that went two extra periods Saturday night, dominate the league's individual scoring race, figures on the goal-getters reveal.

Jackie Powell

Jackie Powell, the Morgans' mighty atom, more than offset his lack of averdupois with brilliant skating and shooting and bagged 17 goals and six assists to capture first place with 23 points. Roy Schooley, Jr., also of the Morgans, finished in the runner-up berth with 11 goals and nine assists for 20 points.

M'SORLEY DEFENSE ACE

John McSorley, of the Morgans, led all defense men in tallying with 13 points, at which figure he is tied with Dick Scully, of the Pirates, for third place in the entire field. Bob Schooley and Frank Tyson are other Morgan players in the "first ten."

The Webers were the most heavily penalized team throughout the campaign. They boast the individual leaders in Dan Battle and Schumm, each of whom spent 23 minutes in the penalty box, and lead by a wide margin in the team totals, with 104 minutes to their credit. The Pirates had some fairly "bad boys" in McCutcheon and Conley, each of whom spent 20 minutes in the cooler, and in Dick Scully, who did 16 minutes of penance. The Pirate penalties totaled 70 minutes, as compared to 66 minutes for the Morgans, 26 minutes for the Ravens, 10 minutes for Duquesne and two minutes for Carnegie Tech. The individual scoring records:

FREDDIE MILLER . . . BOXES MOSE BUTCH AT THE GARDEN

Miller, who hails from Cincinnati, is recognized by the National Boxing Association as the world featherweight champion. Like Butch, his opponent at Motor Square Garden tonight, he is a southpaw, an exceptional one. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

Tilden and Vines Challenge Britons

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—(AP.)—William T. Tilden and Ellsworth Vines, tennis professionals, say they will challenge Fred Perry, of England, and Jack Crawford, of Australia, amateurs, to meet them in singles matches to decide who is the world's best.

Both Americans said they were forced into this course by the refusal of the International Federation in Paris to sanction open tournaments.

At Baltimore yesterday, Tilden and Vines scored singles victories over Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa. French stars, but lost the doubles. Tilden defeated Plaa, 7-5, 6-4, 2-6, 6-2, while Vines vanquished Cochet, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1. The Frenchmen took the doubles, 3-6, 6-1, 7-5.

M.-A. SEASON OPENS MAY 9

WHEELING, W. Va., March 19.—(AP.)—The Middle Atlantic Baseball League executives and club owners have decided upon a 126-game schedule, to open May 9 and close September 9.

The season again will be split, the first half ending July 3. The schedule has not been completed yet, President Elmer Daily reported.

The league representatives also adopted the baseball which more closely approaches the ball now used in the major leagues than the one used last season.

Present at yesterday's session were Secretary Russell Hockenbury; Watt Powell, of Charleston; J. J. Myers, of Johnstown; Ducky Holmes, of Dayton; Gene Martin, of Wheeling; Alex Pisula, of Springfield; Buzz Wetzel, of Zanesville; William Walsingham, of Huntington, and Doff Daniels, of Beckley.

INJURY LAYS SEIFERT LOW, REED WINS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

A dramatic mishap to Challenger Ed Seifert brought a sudden end to the final contest for the city Class A squash racquets championship before a near capacity throng at the Keystone Athletic Club yesterday afternoon. Trailing his K. A. C. mate, McCook Reed, by 15-9, 15-8, 4-0 in the third canto of the trophy tilt, the wiry Princetonian lunged desperately to achieve an impossible "get" of a corner drop shot. Exhausted by the gruelling chase, he missed his footing, plunged head foremost against the right sidewall, and jammed the handle of his racquet with terrific force into the pit of his stomach just below the ribs.

So heavily did he plunge that he not only laid himself out virtually cold on the boards, but scored a nasty four or five-inch abrasion across his abdomen and splintered the sturdy racquet-head into a veritable bow. He was carried from the enclosure by Referee Bill Bickel and Jim Ebbert and, after receiving first aid treatment was removed to the Turkish bath department, whither the house physician was summoned.

ASKS TO CONTINUE

While waiting for the doctor, Seifert gamely urged that he be permitted to return and finish the match, but Ben Pope, Keystone mentor, vetoed the idea. Pope's stand was seconded by the medical man, who, after brief examination, ordered the injured racqueter to remain in bed in absolute quiet for several days as precaution against the possibility of internal bleeding.

The Tiger star, whose relatives were out of the city for the week-end, was removed to the Allegheny General Hospital, where he will be kept under observation until tomorrow or Wednesday, at least. The joust was defaulted to his rangy rival.

Reed, by his victory, gained his third consecutive local title and thereby retired permanently the Pittsburgh Squash Racquets Association cup. The flagon was put up in 1930 and that year taken by the late George Stocking of the Keystone A. C. It was bagged by Scotty Burke of the P. A. A. in 1931 and has ever since been in the possession of Reed.

DOUBLES PLAY OPENS

Competition in the newly instituted City Class B handball doubles championship tournament gets under way on the Y. M. H. A. courts at 5 o'clock today. The affair follows up the Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U. junior singles glove title event concluded only yesterday on the Bellefield courts.

Sam Wolf and Saul Chersky vs. M. F. Hinnebusch and Ray Hofer. Lou Walfish and Jerry Kimball vs. J. Parker Smith and Frank Kouhek. Joe Berman and Harry Berman vs. V. E. McGuinness and William Kern. R. H. Wallace and Frank Wilson vs. Sam Gladstone and Dave Olbum. E. B. Ashcraft and S. L. Burwin vs. Dr. Phil Lapidus and Dr. Sam Alpern.

KERN WINS TITLE

Bill Kern, Pitt grid star of several seasons ago and present chief aide to Dr. Jock Sutherland at mentoring Panther pigskin aspirants, yesterday annexed the A. M. A. junior singles handball crown after a hard-fought victory over Sam Wolf, veteran Y. M. H. A. star, before a large gallery, 21-11, 13-21, 21-14.

SOUTHPAW VS. SOUTHPAW TONIGHT

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Freddie Miller vs. Mose Butch (non-title), 10 rounds; Battling Gizzy vs. Dominic Mancini, Joey Bazzone vs. Billy Holt and Charley Burns vs. Harry Weekly, 8 rounds each, and Curley Klaas vs. Chuck Mullins, 4 rounds, Motor Square Garden.

Tony Galento vs. Rattling Bozo, 10 rounds, Newark, N. J.

Bob Godwin vs. Johnny Risko, Russ Rowsey vs. Norman Conrad and Lope Tenorio vs. Ray Riser, 10 rounds each, Daytona Beach, Fla.

Johnny Farr vs. Eddie Shea, 10 rounds, Miami, Fla.

Willie Dorenzo vs. Benny Erlich, 8 rounds, Albany, N. Y.

By HARRY KECK

Sports Editor.

When you go to Motor Square Garden tonight to see Lew Raymond's fights, go to the wrong entrance, use last week's tickets, walk in backward, go to the wrong seat on the opposite side of the ring and park yourself in the aisle facing the wall away from the ring, and you'll be all set for an enjoyable evening. In fact, you'll be right at home.

Why? Because Lew has two southpaws fighting each other in the main bout, and you know how those southpaws are. You have to be in the mood to enjoy them. They do everything backward, and hope you are the same.

Seriously speaking, one of the principals is a champion, the N. B. A. featherweight champion of the world, Freddie Miller, of Cincinnati. He would be from Cincinnati. And the other one is Mose Butch, of Oakland. The same Mose who some time ago tried to reform, but learned that it is sad but true that once a man's a southpaw he's always wrong. And how are you?

AN N. B. A. CHAMPION

But let's forget for the moment that they're southpaws and that there ought to be a law. Let's be broadminded and consider them as fighters. Miller has beaten the best and held onto his title for some two years, and anybody who can be an N. B. A. man for two years is, to chortle the least, a glutton for punishment. As for Butch, he's fought Al Brown and Fidel LaBarba and Tommy Paul and Vidal Gregorio and even some of our good local fighters. Even if southpaws are wrong all of the time, maybe the fans will be wrong tonight, too, and this will be a fight.

Anyway, the tickets have been printed from left to right, as usual, and Promoter Jules Beck is giving them away in large numbers at the usual prices and is looking for one of his best gates. Only, in keeping with the spirit of this glorious and hilarious occasion, he is making change with his left hand instead of his right. Pete Reilly, manager of Miller, who is renowned as quite a cutup, especially in training camps, has clipped the passes, both of them.

NON-TITLE BOUT

Just so nothing connected with this bout will be of an orthodox nature, Miller's title will not be at stake, Butch being forced to come in over the featherweight limit of 126 pounds, which means that he stayed up late last night to listen to his favorite tragedian, Joe Penner. Oh, you didn't know that?

Well, anyway, there will be three eight-round preliminaries and a four-rounder. Battling Gizzy, the only right-handed southpaw in captivity, meets Dominic Mancini in the semi-final and Joey Bazzone takes on Billy Holt and Charley Burns engages Harry Weekly in the other feature numbers, while Chuck Mullins and Curley Klaas are in the opener at 8:30.

If you don't like to see southpaws, or left-handers, in action, here's a tip: Borrow the mirror from your girl's vanity case, turn your back on the fighters and see them through the looking glass. They'll be all right then. Oh, you're welcome!

TENNES WINS HEARST CUP

By DAMON RUNYON

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 19.—The William Randolph Hearst trophy, a magnificent silver bowl, emblematic of the world championship in outboard motor boat driving, goes to 21-year-old Horace Tennes, of Chicago.

The slim young student from Northwestern University won the international regatta by an astounding exhibition of daring and skill in shooting his little boat over the smooth waters of Lake Worth yesterday afternoon.

He won by fully a mile of open water over his American teammate, Walter Everett, of Tulsa, Okla., with Jean Dupuy, of France, third; Marquis de la Gandara, of France, fourth, and Miguel Barilla, of Spain, fifth. The time was 12 minutes 29 2-5 seconds for the 10 miles, and the speed was 47.418 miles per hour.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—As they prepared to meet the swift rush of the Cubs and White Sox, the Pirates today had progressed to such a point in their preparatory campaign as to make it possible to get a line on the Gibson entry concerning the title race that starts next month.

The one big eventuality has to do with second base. Although this writer has been with the club only a few days he is quite convinced that the present arrangement of the infield will not stand up. To be specific, it is stated that Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto has not developed to a stage where he can be regarded as a major league second baseman.

NEEDS MORE SEASONING

This statement is made advisedly; the conclusion is reached after taking into consideration the opinions of many baseball stars, including smart players who watched the 20-year-old Italian kid as he played for Oakland last season.

Lavagetto looks like a real find, make no mistake there, but he seems to be at least one year away from major league stature. And this is only half of the story. The other half concerns the young man who performs on the other side of the bag. If Arky Vaughan staggered in his fielding while paired up with Tony Piet, what would happen to Arky were he to be hitched up with a 20-year-old rookie in the important second base sector?

Well, the answer to this little thesis is that Tommy Thevenow is likely to be at the keystone post when the season opens. Vaughan is a different ball player when he works under the influence of Thevenow. Arky probably would have a tough time in a daily skit with the Coast League graduate.

BUCS TAKE REST

The Buccos rested today. They traveled about 60 miles from Riverside last night after handing the Hollywood club a 4-to-3 setback in a real diamond battle staged at the site of the Hollywood camp. On the morrow, the Buccos will open a four-game series with the Cubs at Wrigley Field.

Larry French and Bill Harris had to show a lot of clever pitching to subdue the Shieks in the second game of the series at Riverside. One the previous afternoon Vitt's sluggers pounded out a 12-to-11 victory over the big leaguers. French worked five rounds, Harris taking the last four yesterday. The Shieks had two runs on the sacks with none out in the ninth, but Texas Bill gave a fine display of his skill as he snuffed out the minor leaguers.

Vaughan's two-run homer over the right field wall gave the Pirates a big inning in the first frame. Cedric Durst nicked Harris for a two-run four-sacker in the eighth to scare the Pirates. Shellenbach, Sheehan and Hile pitched for the home team.

Baseball Briefs

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—Blanked in their first two "grapefruit league" games with major opponents, the Phillies take on the Columbus Red Birds today. The Phils got five hits yesterday, while the Cincinnati Reds were winning, 3 to 2.

BRADENTON, Fla.—The outfield situation of the Cardino's, which has caused some concern because of the continued refusal of George Watkins and Ernie Orsatti to accept the salary offered them by the club, was some brighter today. Buster Mills, the fly chaser from Rochester, apparently has found the range, and the experts regarded him as a serious contender for a steady job.

TAMPA, Fla.—Chick Hafey, bespectacled outfielder of the Cincinnati Reds, seems to be returning to the form which made him champion batsman of the National League in 1931. In the game with the Phillies yesterday, which the Reds won, 3 to 0, Chick made his first start in center field. He played a fast game, making four running catches, got a hit and stole a base.

LOS ANGELES.—Don Conrads, 21-year-old southpaw, who was talked into a trial with the Chicago Cubs by a woman fan from Kewanee, Ill., was Manager Charley Grimm's choice to start a game today against Portland, of the Pacific Coast League, at Ventura. Pitchers Lon Warneke, Roy Joiner, Pat Malone and Guy Bush, who hurled in the Cubs' pair of victories over the White Sox Saturday, yesterday were excused from the 70-mile bus ride to Ventura.

ORLANDO, Fla.—Indications are that Art Herring will land a job with the Brooklyn Dodgers despite his lack of size. Although he seems frail in comparison to most of his rivals, Herring's pitching has caught Casey Stengel's eye and it looks like he'll be the Dodgers' No. 1 relief pitcher this year.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—(AP.)—There's bad news in store soon for the three of the New York Giants' pitching recruits. Hubbell, Schumacher, Parmelee, Fitzsimmons Clark, Luque and Bell are the seven regulars leaving Bill Shores. Joe Bowman, Al Smith, Jack Salveson and Clyde Castleman to fight it out for the other two berths. Shores and Bowman seem to have the inside track now.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY: HOLE IN ONE WITH A BROKEN CLUB—An enthusiastic golfer is Tom O'Haver, of Bloomington, Ind., and last August he engaged in a friendly round with a companion at a small golf course in Sullivan, Ind. On the sixteenth hole, 135 yards, par 3, they were playing in a drenching rain. O'Haver took his No. 6 iron and hit a true straight ball which broke the club in the middle. But, Believe It or Not, although the club was broken completely in two, he made the 135-yard hole in one. WRITES TWO LETTERS SIMULTANEOUSLY — Laura Henninger not only possesses the strange ability to write shorthand backward and forward with both hands and carry on a conversation at the same time, but she can write the same letter with both hands simultaneously in long hand, one letter being written in backward style so that when it is held before a mirror it is found to be exactly like the other letter. Miss Henninger says this ability is wholly natural and she never has practiced it in any way. Her left hand follows the right hand in backward writing smoothly and rapidly, and the result always is like a reverse carbon copy.

TOMORROW: THE EVER-CHANGING LAND.

ICE PLAYOFFS ON TOMORROW

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP.)—The six leaders of the National Hockey League are ready to begin the playoffs tomorrow for the 1933-34 league championship and for the battered but coveted Stanley Cup, but it took them right up to the last minute of the regular campaign to decide the order of their going into the post-season struggles.

The Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings had clinched the top places in the two divisions some time ago, but it was not until they won their final games last night that the Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Howks filled the two second notches.

The Rangers, who came from third place a year ago to win the Stanley Cup and the world title, open the playoffs with the Maroons at Montreal tomorrow in the first clash of a two-game, total-goal series. The second game will be at New York Sunday. Thursday Toronto and Detroit start a three-out-of-five-game struggle for the league title and a place in the finals, continuing at Toronto Saturday and at Detroit March 26, 28 and 30. The Canadiens and Chicago open their two-game second place series the same night at Montreal, meeting for the second time at Chicago Sunday.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—The 1,500 fans who saw the Pirates beat Hollywood had a big welcome for Honus Wagner. Part of the ovation was engineered by a veteran sports writer who played with Honus on the famous Warren (Pa.) Iron and Oil League team of 1895. The gentleman is Bill Leamon, former resident of Uniontown, who has been writing on a Riverside paper for 21 years. Bill owns a picture of the Warren club which shows off Honus, his brother Al, Harry Smith, Claude Ritchey and other top liners of that distant day. The photograph was displayed as a part of the advertising for the Riverside game.

Leamon had some interesting slants on the Warren team of 40 years ago. Honus was just getting started at the time, and Brother Al was reckoned as the better player of the family. Bill recalls a visit to Warren by Jack Rowe, manager of the Buffalo club. Rowe was on a scouting mission and he wanted Leamon's opinion on certain stars. He seemed to be impressed with Honus' brother. Leamon advised him to consider Honus, and Rowe compromised by buying Claude Ritchey. It wasn't long before Honus, Ritchey and Smith were all members of the Pittsburgh club.

Tom Sheehan, former Pirate slab star and long-time Hollywood mound ace, says the Cubs have picked up a headliner in Tuck Stainbach. Tom says the Coast League rookie is one of the most natural batters he has seen in many seasons. Sheehan, by the way, is convinced that Arky Vaughan would shine in the outfield. He raves about Arky's hitting and running. But Tom's idea of a great shortstop is a veteran named Thevenow.

Fred Lindstrom appears to be on the verge of a big season. One year ago Fred dropped below form playing in spring training and soon after the fight began he ran into a long slump. At present Fred is overweight and his mental attitude is well nigh perfect. Fred is low-bridging pitchers and infielders daily with his hot drives.

Lloyd Waner is tickled to be back in centerfield. He thinks he is O.K. for the bell. Brother Paul is smearing the fences with his line smashes. The new ball should add many points to the collective bats of the Waners and Lindy.

On the trip from Riverside last night, the Pirates' special trolley made a stop in the middle of an orange grove. The players were without dinner at the time, so you may guess they didn't do a thing to that orange grove. The fruit must have had a kick for Heinie Meine sang German songs all the way. The Bucs will hold a practice session today.

W.-J. RETAINS FROSH RULE

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 19.—(AP.)—Modification of the freshman rule to allow first year athletes to compete against colleges that do not have a freshman rule was rejected today by the athletic council of Washington and Jefferson College.

Meeting to confer letter awards in winter sports, the board heard petitions of coaches of minor sports for modification of the freshman rule on the ground their teams have been handicapped by lack of material from upper classes. The board took the position that freshman who engage in intercollegiate competition would be barred in their senior year from playing against colleges that have the rule.

The council also voted to joining the new Pennsylvania Eligibility Conference and to organize a varsity golf team. Intercollegiate golf was abandoned in 1925.

Basketball awards were given to Maurice Liber, of Canton, O., and Ellwood Headley, Atlantic City, N. J., co-captains; Harry Barkell, Scottdale; Joseph McVicker, Russellton; Sherman Grable and Melvin Holmes, both of Washington; Richard Davis, Girard, O.; John Sutton, New Brighton, and Jack White, New Castle, student manager.

Boxing letters go to Capt. Al Luppino, Washington; John Leppert, Johnstown; Joseph Shaw, Washington; Joseph Rittersbaugh, Canton, O.; Michael Skulos, Wheeling, W. Va., and Edward Rankin, Pittsburgh student manager.

SOCCER TEAMS CARD FIRST TWIN BILL

By TOM BIRKS

For the first time in the history of local soccer, two semi-final cup games will be staged as a double-header next Sunday afternoon at Greenlee Field. The first game will bring together Curry, the defending champion, and Gallatin, and the second will feature Heidelberg and Moon Run.

Yesterday's blast of wintry weather brought about this unusual setup as it forced the cancellation of the Curry-Gallatin game, the heavy snowfall obliterating every line on the field. Only a few fans braved the hazards of driving to get to the site of the game.

Owing to the fact that the season is rapidly coming to a close, the cup committee of the Western Pennsylvania Football Association met with the managers when Referee Boyle called off the game and arranged for the double-header.

One game was played in the Keystone League yesterday. This contest found Heidelberg keeping up its excellent form by defeating the Castle Shannon Rheils, 4 to 1, on a snow-bound field at Heidelberg.

Steve Kuten scored two goals for Heidelberg, and Johnny McCosky added another before Johnny Jaap put the ball into the Heidelberg net from a scrimmage in the goal mouth.

Just before the close, McCosky tallied the fourth and last goal of the game. A large sized crowd watched the contest, which meant much to the Rheils in the championship race. The lineup:

Heidelberg—4.		Rheils—1.
Ramons	GG	Brunetti
M. Kuten	R.B.	Magera
Bobish	L.B.	L. Kevish
Hillen	R.H.	Matthews

Lieut. Paul Mazuzan, for Pittsburgh, and Chub Arthurs, for Akron, dueled for honors, with the former chalking up eight goals and Arthurs six.

The Akron Cavalry Club midgets defeated the Headquarters Troop Juniors, 5½ to 5, in a preliminary. The lineup:

Jones, Dudley Win Pre-Tourney Match

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 19.—(AP.)—Bobby Jones and Ed Dudley, Augusta pro, paired to defeat Dick Metz, of Deal, N. J., and Ky Laffoon, Denver professional, in a best ball foursome played as a practice round over the Augusta National Golf Club course yesterday, but it was not the old master who contributed most toward the victory.

Dudley, Jones' choice as professional at his new home course here, shot a 67, five under par, to give his side the advantage. Bobby just equaled par with a 35 out and a 37 coming in. Laffoon had a 72 like Jones and Metz got a 74.

Bobby is getting ready to take on the other masters of the game this week in the invitation that marks his first appearance in competitive golf since 1930.

Boogmans, La Porte Enter Local Grind

Rene Boogmans, of Belgium, and Joe LaPorte, of Montreal, have entered Pittsburgh's first international six-day bicycle race which starts at midnight next Sunday in Duquesne Garden.

The two racers have signed with Charles F. Wolfe and Joseph A. Tobin, promoters of the affair to race against Piet Van Kempen, and 21 other outstanding riders for the $5,000 in prize money.

Van Kempen and Jack McCoy won the six-day race in San Francisco which ended last Saturday night, while Torchy Peden another entrant here, and Tony Schaller wound up on the long end of Chicago's grind at the same time.

GALLANT SIR COPS HANDICAP

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, March 19.—(AP.)—Gallant Sir has the honor of being the first two-time winner of the Agua Caliente handicap, but the plaudits went today to the temperamental stallion's young stablemate, Riskulus.

The big black son of Sir Galahad III staged a strong stretch run in the West's leading money classic yesterday to come home in front of Riskulus by a head in 2 minutes 2 4-5 seconds.

But it was hard to convince anyone who witnessed the one-two finish of the Norman W. Church entry in the short field of seven that the 3-year-old colt by Stimulus out of Risky could not have won had he failed to show deference to his elder.

A nominee for the Kentucky Derby, Riskulus lunged out into the lead at the quarter and maintained front position right on through to Gallant Sir's stretch bid.

Victory gave Gallant Sir $23,000, boosting his total earnings to $114,890.

BERGER SIGNS WITH BRAVES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 19.—(AP.)—Wally Berger, the Boston Braves' outfielder slugger, has quit the holdout ranks and signed his 1934 contract after a long conference with Emil Fuchs, club president, who has several other dissatisfied players to placate.

Berger, who led the Tribal hitters with a .313 average last season, refused to report when offered a contract that called for a $2,500 raise. He quit his Miami winter home only last Friday when Fuchs threatened to fine him $250 for each training session he missed. He probably will be in the Braves' lineup in today's exhibition against the Cincinnati Reds.

P. I. A. A. DUELS GET UNDER WAY TOMORROW

By JULIUS LEVIN

Western Pennsylvania is well represented in the P. I. A. A. eliminations for the state basketball crown, which get under way tomorrow evening, with New Kensington, champion of the W. P. I. A. L., the entry from District VII, and South High School, City League champion for the second successive season, the Disttrict VIII challenger.

One of the features of this year's draw in the Western Regional playoffs is the fact that New Kensington and South will not meet unless they reach the final round of the Western eliminations.

While New Kensington, the eighth school to carry off the W. P. I. A. L. championship twice, failed to display its usual good form in defeating Ambridge for the title Saturday night, 26-22, the Glockmen nevertheless shape up as one of the best quintets to represent District VII in the eliminations. Carl (Dutch) Glock, whose record as basketball coach at New Kensington, stamps him among the outstanding mentors in the district, depended on five players to carry the hopes of the valley school in the tournament.

TEAM PLAY BIG FACTOR

The lineup, composed of Eddie Waugh, Negro scoring ace, and Harry Jeannette at forwards, Charley Waugh at center, and Joe Ross and Andy Trzeciak at the guard posts, has shown co-ordination in teamplay that helps make a championship team. This sterling teamwork made itself evident in the victories scored over Ford City, Uniontown and Scott High School, of North Braddock, all defeated with points to spare. Against Ambridge, however, the Glockmen did not flash the same style of play, but had enough class to clinch the title.

South High School likewise presents a well-rounded floor machine, capable of defeating the best teams in the district. The South lineup which has carried it through to its second straight City League championship and which will appear against Somerset High School, champion of District V, in the first inter-district playoffs in the Pitt Stadium tomorrow night, is composed of Eddie Milkovich and Joe Galiszewski at forward, the one and only Eddie Spotovich at center, and Eddie (Slip) Czlapinski and Charley Miskevics at the guards, Czlapinski, admitted to be one of the outstanding guards in this secion, has been showing improvement with every game and is expected to play a prominent part in the battle against Somerset.

KEN HIGH TO REST

The New Kensington quintet will have an opportunity to take things easy until Friday, when it meets the winner of tomorrow's battle between Erie East, District X entry, and Bradford, District IX titleist, in the Pitt Stadium pavilion. The W. P. I. A. L. champion has been given a bye in the first round.

The South-Somerset winner tomorrow night will be called upon to meet the District VI champion, still undecided, next Friday, and the winner in this contest qualifies to play in the Western Regional final on Tuesday, March 27. The District VI champion will be determined tomorrow night at Altoona when Johnstown engages Huntingdon.

The Pittsburgh Grade School championship will be awarded the winner of tomorrow's game between Beechwood, champion of Section I, and Frick, champion of Section II, at Fifth Avenue High School. Beechwood eliminated McNaugher School, of the North Side, defending champion, to reach the final round. Frick was a finalist last year, bowing to McNaugher in the final game.

PITTSBURGH BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

EDUCATOR CITES GOVERNMENT REFORM NEED

(Abolition of townships and reduction in the number of other local governmental units, is urged by A. R. Hatton, of Northwestern University. This is one of a series of articles being published by the Sun-Telegraph in a campaign to reduce taxes through elimination of waste and duplication in government.)

Reduction of the number of local governments in the United States by from two-thirds to three-fourths is suggested by Prof. A. R. Hatton of Northwestern University, as the most important step that could be taken to renovate local administration. This suggestion was made by the Illinois educator in a recent radio address, one of a series delivered by prominent educators and economists on the general subject of "You and Your Government."

Prof. Hatton declared the number of counties could and should be reduced by at least half and the townships should be altogether abolished as an independent administrative unit.

In his address Prof. Hatton declared:

"The distress of the taxpayer during the last four years has finally begun to impress upon them that the greater part of public money is normally collected and spent by local governments. The first realization of this fact came as a shock to many people and occasioned a resentment against local governments which was both ill informed and unfair. The greater part of all public money is collected and spent locally because local governments perform most of the governmental services which we have come to regard as essential.

ULTIMATE HOPE

"The ultimate hope of getting the governmental services which we need efficiently performed and at a reasonable cost, lies in the re-organization of local governments in the United States along more rational lines.

"What, then, is the most important step that could be taken to renovate local administration? My unhesitating reply is reduce the number of local governments in the United States by from two-thirds to three-fourths. The number of counties could and should be reduced by at least half. Townships should be altogether abolished as independent administrative units. The number of school districts should be enormously reduced. Indeed, it is doubtful whether there should be any independent unit of school administration smaller than the county. Within cities all special local governing bodies, such as park boards, should be abolished and their work carried on by the city government proper.

"The second ingredient in any prescription for the renovation of local administration should be the elimination of overlapping governments. At the present time many local governments overlap, with the result that each performs the same or similar service over the same area, for the same people and to be paid for by the same taxpayer."

TOO MUCH DUPLICATION

Prof. Hatton pointed out that at the present time there are city, county and park police working in cities; city, county and school governments maintaining public health services; city, park and school governments providing recreational facilities. Duplication in public relief is frequently carried on within a given city and within a county seat, and there is frequently found a county jail and separate lockup for city prisoners, thus duplicating buildings, caretakers and keepers, for doing the same work for the same people, he points out.

The educator declared the result of too many governments and overlapping governments is unnecessary duplication of personnel and equipment, piecemeal instead of consolidated purchasing, confused budgetary procedure and competitive spending as between the separate local governments.

HONEST GOVERNMENT

He continued:

"The third requirement is the organization of local governments with an eye solely to making them responsible to the voters for their policies and really serviceable to the people of the community by provision for the honest and efficient execution of policies agreed upon.

"The fourth requirement is the provision for an enforcement of certain fundamental administrative procedures. These procedures have to do with the assessment of property for taxation and collection of taxes; with budgeting and general financial procedure; with scientific accounting and auditing; with centralized purchasing and with the establishment of the merit system for dealing with public officers and employes."

Prof. Hatton pointed out there were three obstacles standing in the way of complete reorganization of local governments.

He said they were:

"No. 1—The lack of freedom of localities in most of our states to organize their local governments in their own way; in other words, the lack of home rule.

"No. 2—The dominance of national party organizations in a majority of American local governments.

"No. 3—The lack of an alert and informed citizenry organized to secure and defend an improved administrative system and to secure and keep in office the type of local official who is in sympathy with good administration and who will not sabotage the administrative mechanism in the selfish interests of any person, interest, or party organization."

Spare Room Problem Solved by Couches

Savings of Space Made by Use Of Utility Bed

The time when the living room could be looked upon as a purely decorative part of the house is past. With living quarters reduced to a minimum, a saving in space is an important consideration. Changing conditions demand that the living room, as well as all other rooms in the house, must serve a utilitarian purpose when occasion arises. The answer lies in its adaptability to serve either as a bedroom, or a guest room, by the introduction of that very popular piece of merchandise, the modernized version of the old-time studio couch.

A couch, in years past, was a cumbersome piece of furniture to be tucked away in the spare room and brought into use only in case of emergency. Today's couch, or more appropriately, divan, is beautiful enough to grace the loveliest of living rooms, being available in every imaginable style and covering, from the plain backless couch equipped with a cotton pad to the luxuriously upholstered springy creation in panel damask, velour, or individual cover with pillow arms, back cushions, and every contributing element to its appearance that today's market has to offer.

TWIN STYLE

If the idea of a combination living room-bedroom fails to appeal, there is the guest angle to consider, a problem which can hardly be dealt with more efficiently than through the medium of such a couch, fully as comfortable as the finest bed and assuring a night of utter relaxation for your guest, a consideration which no hostess should ignore.

The prime favorite among these couches is equipped with two innerspring mattresses, patterned on their popular ancestor, the modern innerspring mattress, and possessing a bedding compartment for storing linens and blankets. The couch separates into two pieces, which can be arranged independently of each other. This type of couch is known as the twin bed style.

FOLDING TYPE

Or, if your pocketbook protests that you can't afford to indulge your taste for a divan couch, but your guest room problem is acute take a look at a new cot, known as the Five-Way Folding, which folds up as neatly as an accordian. Boxed, it measures only 7x24x20 inches, a size which the average closet shelf will conveniently accommodate, open, it runs 2x6 feet, a width and length suited to provide the average person a comfortable night's rest.

The Five-Way Folding is a three-piece job consisting of a very sturdily constructed cot, with no loose pieces to become lost in moving it about from place to place, and a combination felt pad and pillow.

This cot as well as a full line of studio couches, are now being manufactured in this city by the Fort Pitt Bedding Company, manufacturers of high grade sleeping equipment of every description, including the nationally famous line of Sealy mattresses and bed springs.

P. R. R. INCOME SHOWS GAIN

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Railroad in a statement today said a "further notable increase" in efficiency of operations is revealed in the income statement for 1933, which has been completed for inclusion in the forthcoming annual report.

Although the gross operating revenues, which amounted to $324,715,818, were $6,677,643 less than in 1932, operating expenses were reduced by $15,243,255, the statement said.

There was also a saving of nearly a million dollars in hire of equipment and taxes were three and three-quarter millions lower.

As a result, the net railway operating income for 1933, amounting to $61,976,858, was $12,844,820 greater than in 1932.

Wholesale Prices 23% Over Year Ago

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP.)—Wholesale commodity prices climbed again during February, bringing the Department of Labor's index number to 73.6 per cent of the 1926 average, as compared with 72.2 for January.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics announced that the upward movement was general, all groups showing advances except fuel and lighting materials, which decreased 1 per cent.

The index is an increase of 23 per cent over February, 1933, the post-war low point.

Domestic Cotton Goods Output Up

NEW YORK, March 19.—Domestic cotton goods production registered a further increase during February and during the first part of March, says the New York Cotton Exchange Service, and is now at the highest level since August and the highest March level since 1929.

EXPERT WARNS AGAINST AGE PENSIONS

Old age pensions and grants by the government to mothers may be the door through which the government will walk into the private lives of its people, 1,500 Pittsburgh life underwriters were told today.

At a breakfast in William Penn Hotel launching the local observance of "Financial Independence Week," Maj. Roger B. Hull, counsel for the National Association of Life Underwriters, quoted from a speech by Owen D. Young, citing the potential dangers of old age pensions. He asserted:

"We will do well to support the present recovery program, but we must guard against certain phases in that program. However, if this recovery program fails, we're going to have some sort of compulsion.

"But remember that the twenty-one billion dollars in life insurance assets are the nation's first defense against communism."

Hull also said he was confident that the proposed tax on insurance annuities would be stricken out of the new revenue act now before the Senate Finance Committee.

G. Franklin Ream, assistant superintendent of agencies for the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company, outlined the purpose of the week's program as an educational campaign to tell Pittsburgh that insurance can sweep away poverty, deprivation and fear of old age.

Observance of the week in Pittsburgh was urged in a proclamation by Mayor McNair. It follows:

"Whereas, we just now are emerging from a distressing period when we particularly have had brought home to us the need for, and wisdom of making provision for our own financial futures, and the futures of those dependent upon us, and

"Whereas, because of these experiences, it is especially fitting that we should be giving more study as individuals, and as a commonwealth, to ways and means of achieving financial independence, and

"Whereas, life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, it is an ideal we would like to see realized by, and for, everyone, and

Whereas, financial independence is something for which we all strive, and

"Now, therefore, I, William N. McNair, Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh, designate and declare the week of March 19 to 24, 1934, as Financial Independence Week, and invite you, and every citizen of the City of Pittsburgh, to participate in, and take advantage of the educational programs on the subject of financial independence which during the week will be presented in the city through the use of newspapers, radio and other advertising mediums."

On the committee in charge of the arrangements is C. Brainerd Metheny, chairman; D. G. MacPherson, Calvin L. Bolster, Robert L. Feldman, Harry A. Liff, Henderson L. Peebles, Elmer A. Pratt, Stuart F. Smith and F. J. Stevenson.

LIFE INSURANCE WRITINGS GAIN

Faith in life insurance as a depression-proof investment is evidenced by the growing number of policy holders throughout the United States, according to A. F. Haas, local manager of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York.

Mr. Haas, head of the Pittsburgh agency since May, 1933, today reported a 27 per cent increase in business for the past two months over the same period last year. Attributing the rise to public appreciation of a sound product, he said:

"During the four depression years life insurance payments in this country averaged six million dollars a day. That is a lesson in investment I believe the American people will never forget."

A marked rise in the number of policies written by his agency was noted in June, 1933, he declared. During the last half of the year they increased by 14 per cent and are still growing.

Mr. Haas also credited the 153 agents who represent his office in 12 Pennsylvania counties for an increase of 1,000 new applications which mark business improvement in the past 12 months over the previous 12. Two of his staff, N. V. Hyde, of New Castle, and D. S. Aungst, of Wilkinsburg, are among the 20 representatives who rank highest in the United States in number of lives insured.

Mr. Haas stated that the records of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, oldest in the country, show that the yearly average of disbursements to and accumulations for policyholders in excess of the yearly average of receipts has been more than six million dollars.

TRACTOR USE INCREASES

The business chart has shown many hills and hollows since the close of the World War, but there is one trend that has been surprisingly constant, according to J. S. Beckwith, local tractor and machinery dealer, and that is the steady swing to mechanical power on the farm. In 1920, the United States census reported 25,748,000 horses and mules on farms. This number shrunk to 19,050,000 in 1930 and 17,144,000 in 1933.

While this decline in animal power was in progress, a substantial rise in tractor sales was taking place. The 1920 census reports only 245,370 tractors on farms, while 10 years later the number had grown to 920,378 and it is estimated that well over a million tractors were serving American agriculture at the close of 1933.

Pennsylvania—always a leader in agricultural as well as industrial progress—shows an even more marked swing to tractors. In 1920 there were 561,047 horses and mules on Keystone State farms, but this number declined to 362,403 in 1930. In the same length of time, tractors on farms increased from 5,697 to 33,513.

Glass Makers Regain Profitable Basis

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

LAST YEAR'S pickup in automobile production put the plate glass industry back on a profitable basis. The further recovery in motor car building this year leads to the belief that the glass makers will be able to report a large increase in earnings for 1934.

Growing use of safety glass also has been an important influence in the revival of glass earnings. Each light of safety glass requires two plates of glass cemented together with a plastic material. While this has made it necessary to install much equipment of a new type and has made some equipment obsolete, it has had the effect of increasing glass production and has given companies engaged in safety glass production a higher priced product to sell with less competition.

Mergers in 1930 and 1931 which resulted in the formation of the present Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Company also improved competitive conditions by concentrating most of the plate glass production in this organization and the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company. Production, independent of these companies is limited to a few smaller organizations which are not equipped for the production of the type of glass now required by the automobile industry.

* * *

Both Companies Report Earnings

BOTH PITTSBURGH PLATE GLASS and Libbey-Owens-Ford reported profits for 1933 after showing losses for 1932. Both organizations have increased dividend payments in line with expanding earnings. Present profits are being shown without help from the building industry, which usually is one of the biggest customers for plate glass. The two companies also produce window glass which is entirely dependent on the building industry for most of its volume.

Libbey-Owens-Ford confines its activities to the flat glass industry, but Pittsburgh Plate produces a wide range of other products, including paint, varnishes, lacquer, linseed oil, brushes, cement and chemicals.

Pittsburgh Plate Earns $1.87 a Share

THE ANNUAL REPORT of Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company showed net profit of $3,993,934 for 1933. This was equivalent to $1.87 a share on 2,104,805 shares of capital stock. It compared with a net loss of $60,737 in 1932.

At the end of the year current assets amounted to $29,444,238 against current liabilities of $3,667,179. Cash amounted to $5,344,244 and marketable securities, carried at cost or market, whichever was lower, amounted to $10,343,718.

Libbey-Owens-Ford reported a net profit of $4,200,542 for 1933. This was equivalent to $1.65 a share. It compared with a net loss of $295,019 in 1932.

Pittsburgh Plate has declared an extra dividend of 10 cents a share payable April 2. The annual dividend rate was increased from 60 cents a share to $1 a share with the dividend payable January 2, 1934.

Libbey-Owens-Ford resumed dividends last year with a payment of 30 cents a share on October 2, 1933.

MAY DISBAND OILER FIVE

KANSAS CITY, March 19.—(AP.)—The basketball championship of the Amateur Athletic Union remains in Tulsa for a second successive year, probably no longer, as a result of the Diamond Oilers' 29-19 conquest of a plucky band of cowboys from the University of Wyoming in the finals of the national tournament.

It was intimated today in the inner circles that neither of the two finalists would play in the tournament next year and that the event, held here for 14 years, would be staged elsewhere in 1935, perhaps in Denver.

Coach W. H. (Little Bill) Miller, who directed his all-star troupe, led by Chuck Hyatt, former Pitt star, to two national titles, is considering offers to take over other teams. Several members of his champion squad may go with him.

The "All-America" selections of officials and sports writers at the conclusion of the tournament, based on the showings made by the players in the tournament only, follow:

STOCKS MIRROR APPROACH OF LABOR CRISIS

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP.)—Financial markets were subject to shakes and shivers today as the labor situation appeared to be coming to a head.

Stocks pointed downward from the start, but trading was dull until the early afternoon when a 15-minute selling flurry put the ticker tape behind and brought losses ranging from 1 to around 3 points. There were a number of mild recoveries later, but support was of the ultra-cautious sort.

With the executive committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce meeting here with Gen. Johnson of the NRA forces in an effort to draw up one proposal which would obviate a strike in the motor industry, speculative enthusiasm was at a low ebb.

Commodities furnished no stimulus for any substantial rally. Grains, cotton, silver and rubber were rather heavy. Bonds were quiet and mixed. International dollar rates were again narrow.

Postponement of a vote on the Fiesinger silver bill, which provides for purchase by the government of 1,500,000,000 ounces of the metal, was seen in banking circles as an indication of further administrative opposition.

Commission house sentiment, although not too bearish, was far from reflecting any boom-time psychology. The consensus was that stock prices would undergo considerable backing and filling until various pending problems approach a solution.

Some cheer was elicited from the 12-months' report of Montgomery Ward which disclosed that the company had net profits of some $2,227,000 compared with a loss in the previous similar period of $5,686,000.

Advancing retail sales and freight car loadings were among the bright spots. The National Fertilizer Association, however, reported that the general index number for wholesale commodity prices declined during the week ended March 17, from 71.7 to 71.3.

Retail trade, which has been benefiting from CWA and AAA disbursements, seemingly has received some reassurance from the announcement that the new relief plan to be substituted for the CWA will be in operation soon and that many projects now in work will be transferred to state administrations beginning April 1.

FOREIGN SALES HIT COTTON

NEW YORK, March 19.—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 3 to 5 lower, under liquidation and foreign selling. The demand was slow, awaiting action on the Bankhead bill. March, 12.01c; May, 12.10c; July, 12.21c; October, 12.30c; December, 12.42c; January, 12.48c.

Trading continued quiet after the call. Prices sagged a few points under further liquidation and scattered selling. May sold off to 12.07 and October to 12.28 by the end of the first half hour, making net declines of about 6 to 8 points.

The market continued to work lower later in the morning. The bulk of the selling was attributed to old long liquidation and it was reported in spot circles that the basis in southern markets, if anything, was firmer.

LIVERPOOL, March 19.—Cotton, no receipts. Spot small business done; prices one point lower; quotations in pence: American strict good middling 7.17; good middling 6.87; strict middling 6.72; middling 6.57; strict low middling 6.42; low middling 6.17; strict good ordinary 5.97; good ordinary 5.67. Americans Insist on Freedom

By B. C. FORBES

HOW WIDELY views differ as to what's ahead for America. Said one nationally-known man of affairs who has painstakingly toiled for 45 years to achieve — and who, incidentally has always made it a rule to give away one dollar for every dollar he has spent for himself and family:

Mr. Forbes

"I'd gladly exchange all I possess for a guarantee, a real guarantee, that in seven years I would receive just one-third of what I now have—I mean one-third of the value, the purchasing power of my money today. I have a millionaire friend who would like a similar proposition."

CONTRAST that with this, from another business man of high standing and vast responsibilities:

"This country is definitely on the up-grade. We are going to see better and bigger business than ever before. It may be that fewer enormous individual fortunes will be accumulated; but America has only begun to grow and prosper and flourish. We are probably going to see wider distribution of wealth. But that will be a good thing rather than a bad thing."

Then he added this significant observation:

"Whenever wealth becomes concentrated in comparatively few hands, revolution breaks out."

WELL, AMERICA seems to be getting away from any such danger.

Ponder our income tax and inheritance tax laws. Also our legislation designed to benefit our agricultural population and our wage earners. Too, the governmental attitude toward business profits and towards big salaries. Last week I went aboard a gorgeous yacht. "Never again will it be possible for a fellow starting out as a workman to acquire anything like this," remarked an eminent business man, referring to the owner.

Having been reared in extremely modest, not to say impecunious circumstances, I naturally always have been and still am, wholly in sympathy with what Lincoln called "the common people." I cannot believe that this great commonwealth will permanently adopt any governmental policy which will make it impossible for a worthy hard working, brainy, ambitious, enthusiastic youth of humble origin to attain a comfortable competency, to have scope for the exercise of his talents.

AMERICANS want freedom, want liberty to take chances, want opportunity to dare and go.

They want no system of governmental bossing which would tend to bring about dead sea uniformity and mediocrity.

They know that where individual initiative is crushed, stagnation and decay inevitably set in.

HAPPILY, business continues to progress. Instead of citing the increases reported in railway loadings, in electric power consumption, in bank debits, in retail trade and other accepted economic yardsticks, let me present a few definite, specific facts gathered personally for this column.

President William A. Law, of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company:

"Life insurance sales show an inspiring increase this year. This indicates both public approval of life insurance and national recovery generally."

Nelson C. Durand, vice president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc.:

"Business has taken on a decidedly better tone this year in the whole Edison industries. We find returning confidence throughout the country. Our only prayer is that the rules of the game will remain enough understood in relation to governmental supervision to encourage this 'go ahead' attitude."

President E. C. Faustman, of Royal Typewriter:

"Since July 15, 1933, we have increased the number of our employes at the plant 41 per cent, increased man-hours worked 59 per cent, increased factory payroll 73 per cent, increased hourly earnings 11 per cent, increased weekly earnings 25 per cent, increased number of units produced per week 74 per cent."

THESE FIGURES and facts should gladden the heart of Gen. Johnson and every thoughtful American citizen except stock market bears, of whom there still are a few some of very ample financial resources.

BUT, on the whole, the "ayes" have it.

In loving memory of our dear father and husband, Joseph A. Young, who passed away one year ago today.
The stars are dimly shining

Chickie's Daughter

CHAPTER XXI.

Blanched to the very heart, Chickie said:

"You never doubted it?"

"I doubted it all. I was wild with torment. So one night when you and David were out I tricked Jonathan into admitting it. We were playing checkers. I told him how flaming girls are today and made up a lot of tales. He got worried and begged me not to talk so. Then I was crude, mother. I was savage. But I had to know. I said: 'Don't be smug, Jonny, old boy; a girl's past doesn't matter. It never hurt mother. Didn't dad come back and marry her after it all?'"

"I thought he would drop dead. He turned ashy. His eyes were black and stricken. Then he got up and closed the door. He put his hand on my shoulder. I was afraid. He said: 'What made you say that?'

"'Are you going to say it isn't true?'

"'I'll not say it isn't true. But I want you to make me a promise. Promise me never to speak of this. No matter what happened, your mother is the finest woman who ever lived. It would break her heart to know you thought of her in this way.'

"'But my father came back and married her, didn't he?' I said that, mother. Jonathan didn't know I was supposing David was the man—he didn't know this gnawed at me. He said: 'And a grand husband he has been and never a better father to you and your brothers. You mother has cause for her pride!'

"Then I was sure he was forgiving David for the first wrong. It sounded like that. And I couldn't bear to have Dad touch me. I didn't want to stay in this house any more."

Just Foolhardy

Pale and quiet as a statue, Chickie said:

"Yet you believed him the moment he said you heard it wrong, and he was NOT the man."

Pippin gave her mother a trembling, astonished look:

"I believed him. I was glad. Oh, mother, something inside me knew all along David couldn't be like that."

"Why did you not blame me? Especially when you thought you were the child?"

"I can understand what you did, mother. You must have loved him—oh, terribly—nothing in the world would matter except what he wanted. I can know how that would be. It's wonderful and brave to forget yourself completely—give all and never count the cost! That's the only way to love."

"It isn't brave, Pippin, it's only foolhardy and blind. There's never a sufficient reason to make a girl take that frightful chance."

"I suppose so, but just the same, if I loved a man wildly, and he couldn't marry me . . . well . . . So I can understand what you did, mother, but one thing I can't see is this: I can't see how any man could jilt you. He must have had some fineness or you couldn't have cared for him. Why, in the end, did he turn you down so brutally?"

Tells of Anguish

For the first time in years, Chickie felt again that frantic desolation when she knew she was to have a child and Barry Dunne would not return to her—could not return. She said faintly, feeling quiet and driven:

"We agreed to part. He went away. Only after he was gone did I find out. I didn't know where to reach him. When finally he learned about it, he came, but it was too late. He had married."

Pippin's young harsh fingers drove against Chickie's arm. She said softly: "Oh, heavens!" and after a long pause when the young girl's eyes were dry and burning with terror, "How did you bear it?"

Finally Chickie answered:

"In the end it was better . . . Better he wasn't free: I met your father and learned what great, great love can be."

"Did Jonathan know?"

"No one knew. I went away. Jonathan thought I had a grand job. But after a few months, he kept wiring to me to return. Jennie was sick. I couldn't come. I had to wait till the baby was born.

"There is no love in the world, Pippin, worth anguish like that. My mother was dying. I couldn't go to her. I had to read those desperate telegrams and day after day answer with lies. At last the child was born. It only lived four days. I dashed home then. But they brought me back. There was an inquest. So everyone learned."

Loyal Friends

Pippin sat on the edge of the bed, her hands gripped on her mother's wrists.

"They found it out like that? And all the battle was lost? Oh, heavens, does Mary know all this and Janina?"

"All—they never failed me. Jake came. He put heart in Jonathan. He stood by me all the time."

"And didn't the man do anything at all, mother? He didn't leave you cold?"

"He sent money . . . I sent it back . . . I was wild and bitter."

"Did you ever see him afterwards?"

"Three or four times at a distance."

"You never spoke to him?"

"Once, years later when the anguish was quiet and the past seemed a dream."

But she didn't tell Pippin that the tall man who'd been so startled when he saw Pippin on the beach and had said in that strange way: "Chickie," she didn't tell Pippin this was the man. She would never tell her.

"Did he suffer, mother?"

"I believe he did . . . perhaps more than I. Life treated him very cruelly."

"You didn't want him punished?"

"Maybe I did. In the beginning. Not now."

Pippin took a deep breath and closed her eyes.

"Did David know it all?"

"All of it."

"And he knew who the man was?"

"He knew the man."

After a long silence Pippin said:

"Janina told me Jake wanted to marry you. She said you were the only girl on earth who could make a man like Jake think of marriage. Was it before this happened, mother?"

Wants to Tell Son

Chickie felt the last drop of blood leave her heart.

"Jake asked me to marry him after it all came out. He knew the man, knew him well."

Pippin clasped her hands and pressed them against her lips. She said softly:

"God, I'd like to be loved like that, mother. You should weep when men love you like that!"

"Does Jon know, mother?"

"I've never told him."

"I don't think you need to. I don't think he'd want to know."

"You mean Pippin, that a boy likes to idealize his mother; to imagine her pure beyond all women in the world. I knew this, or long ago I would have told you both. But I think I'll tell Jon. I think he can take me as I am. Perhaps I can tell him in a way that will make him a braver and a kinder man."

Pippin said softly:

"I hope you change your mind, mother. I hope Jon never finds out."

"Are you sorry you know?"

"It's different with a girl. I can imagine a thing like that happening to myself. A man can never know how it would be, and the awful, awful terror. They don't know either that a girl wants to fling herself out for the man she loves; wants to be lost for him.'"

Pippin was curious about the baby. She wanted to know what it looked like; if Helena loved it; did she grieve when the little one died?

Haunting Pictures

She asked until finally Chickie gave her the bleak picture and she saw a girl running along a river bank with a little dead child in her arms—knowing it was dead yet laying its face against her breast until the chill of it went into her soul and dwelt there—always. She learned, too, of the grave in Moppet where a little half-sister lay buried.

These pictures haunted Pippin. She watched her mother with fast beating heart. Was Helena grieving . . . was she crushed because the tale was told?

For the first time the girl noticed lines about her mother's eyes: and a wistful droop to her shoulder. She made her stay in bed and brought a breakfast tray.

Jon returned for the vacation. One day Helena was standing at the foot of the stairs, lost in thought. Jon entered. He didn't come sweeping up with his exuberant "Hello, Beautiful." Instead he stood stock still, turning pale, turning frightened. Then he went swiftly, caught his mother in his arms, carried her up the stairs. Chickie laughed softly into her son's eyes. Jon blinked and stooping, kissed his mother's lips.

At the lake, where they had a sparkling happy summer, whenever Chickie swam, Jon plunged in and went along at her side. Pippin thought:

"She's told him, and she was right. He's bigger—he's better."

Pippin thought of her mother's story until the shock of it mellowed and the whole thing became haunting and tragic like the story of Tristan and Isolde. Helena took her place in the girl's imagination with these wistful figures endowed forever with a sad, melancholy charm.

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. He says he loves her, but Kevin is first in her thoughts. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Chickie is afraid she will have to tell Pippin of her past. Pippin goes to a party with Bill, but after returning seems unhappy. She tells her father what she heard about her mother, and that she thought him responsible. David explains to her what really happened and Pippin is again happy. She tells her mother what happened at the party. Pippin's story continues:

BRITISH-FRENCH STRUGGLE IN NORTH AMERICA—EXPULSION OF ACADIANS

The strife of France and England in Colonial America, complicated by Indian hostilities, was especially keen in times of European embroilments such as the Spanish Succession (in America, Queen Anne's) War (1702-1713), the Austrian Succession (King George's) War (1744-1748).

By the treaty of Utrech (1713), closing the former, France ceded Labrador, Hudson Bay, Acadia (Nova Scotia) and the rights of fisheries of New Foundland to England; by the treaty of Aix-La Chapelle (1748) terminating the latter, Britain, though successful on the battlefields, did not gain further territory in America.

Race differences, collision of interests, aggravated by the unreliability of the Indians, increased hostilities between British and French colonists resulting in the dispatch of troops from the mother countries. The French and Indian War with Britain ensued (1754-1760).

The British projected a fourfold attack: In the Ohio Valley, on the Niagara River, on Lake Champlain and from Acadia (Nova Scotia.)

One stern measure of the British was to banish the Acadians, of French descent, who, though since 1713 under British rule, had sympathized with France. (United States History)

ELECTRONIC THEORY OF MATTER—ELECTRONS AND PROTONS

Dalton conceived the atom as the smallest particle of matter (1807). Crookes (1879) and Thompson (1897) experimenting with tubes containing highly rarified gases (1/1000 atm. pressure and less) with sealed-in electrodes between which electricity was discharged, observed glowing of the tube walls. This was due to a radiation emitted from the cathode (—electrode) toward the anode (+electrode). The rays were called cathode rays and found to consist of minute particles with negative electric charges, called electrons. As these were similar regardless of the composition of cathode used, it was concluded, that they must be constituents of all matter.

Rutherford formulated (1911) an electronic theory stating that the atom is built up from electrons (negative particles of electricity), and equal number of protons, (positive electric particles) forming together the electrically neutral unit. Research developed his conception further, arriving at substantial modifications, which may not be final either. (Chemistry)

PHOTOSPHERE AND ATMOSPHERE OF OUR SUN—ITS SPOTS—ROTATION

The light we see of the sun—wholly a gaseous mass—is radiated chiefly by the photosphere, a layer probably a few hundred miles thick appearing as a luminous surface. The photosphere is surrounded by the sun's atmosphere consisting of the "reversing layer" (about 3000 miles thick, giving bright lines in its absorption spectrum instead of dark ones; hence its name), a transition layer (about 6000 miles thick) and the outermost chromosphere (about 6000 miles thick, seen as a rosy ring during total solar eclipse).

The photosphere shows dark spots, 300—60,000 miles in diameter, mostly in groups, persisting from a few hours to 18 months. They are due to disturbances in the photosphere, corresponding to our cyclonic storms. Large sun spots, by strong outflow of electrons, cause magnetic storms on earth. Number of sun spots change periodically, maximum reached in each 11.5 years, last in 1929.

By observing the same spots, the sun's sidereal period (time of one rotation around its axis from west to east) was determined as 25.3 days at the sun's equator and 35.4 days near its poles. Another method (Doppler) is based upon shift of spectra of edges of sun.

CWA HELPS EDUCATION

The PWA (Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works) finances the CWA (Civil Works Administration). It makes loans for public works repayable at 4% interest. Besides it contributes 30% of the cost of labor and materials as a gift. Among the most beneficial application of these funds are those to schools, libraries, and colleges, to employ teachers, improve buildings and other educational facilities. The completion of the Cathedral of Learning of the University of Pittsburgh is one of the accomplishments made possible by CWA. (Probl. of Democracy)

Telling Wall street what to do is like putting your old grandpop back in the cradle.

Those boys have forgotten more than they knew.

Changing their habits is like rubbing hair tonic on the linoleum in an effort to make it a Persian rug.

Protecting the investor is a noble synopsis. The broker will not only attend to that sheltering gesture, but will also notify the nearest relatives.

You can protect the stock investor. But can the investor protect the stock? You cannot keep the lamb away from the mutton stew.

Even now the minnies are nibbling at the glittering hooks. They like to make a full meal on bait.

Show 'em a winsome certificate printed in black and gold and they will go for it like Sherman went for the sea.

YES I HAVE THE MONEY-BUT I DON'T WANT ANY STOCK
MY FRIEND, YOU DON'T HAVE TO WANT STOCK-ALL YOU NEED IS THE MONEY-NOW WHAT I'M GOING TO SELL YOU---

Laws or no laws, your experienced broker is going to find more ways around the rules than he can use. He will be stepping as pretty as a cat in a flooded kitchen.

People like to gamble. When they sing about the old spinning wheel in the parlor they are thinking of the old spinning wheel at Monte Carlo.

You cannot muzzle the customer's man. He's the boy who shills for the broker. The bees bring him the honey. He can talk the flippers off a walrus.

If you don't answer the telephone he will come up and talk at your door. The man has personality through a keyhole.

So if you have any gravy you might as well pass around the big spoons and give the boys their share.

A law against stock hustling is just a law. It goes on the top shelf with the old gray bonnet and high button shoes.

We concede that Wall street has been lying low so far this year. But the first storm will wash the clams up on the beach.

Invite New Industries

The Industrial Development of the City Is Well Worth Council's Attention.

It is gratifying to learn that informal conferences have been held at City Hall lately looking to the inauguration of a campaign to bring new industries to Pittsburgh.

It is a proper function of the municipal government, and there is a somnolent Department of City Development which was created for the very purpose of engaging in such an activity.

As a candidate last fall Mayor W. N. McNair urged that the city's attractive features should be advertised with a view to inducing business and manufacturing concerns to establish plants here.

There is much that we can offer—a central location, midway between New York and Chicago, Detroit and Washington, Boston and St. Louis, Buffalo and Cincinnati; an abundance of cheap high-grade fuel, with mines only a few miles distant from the downtown district; three navigable rivers, offering low-cost transportation.

Diversification of our industries would be much to our advantage. The National Municipal League reports that the cities that have suffered least from tax delinquency are those with considerable variety in their business enterprises.

Council might well devote some of its attention in the near future to the formulation of a program for our industrial development.

Far From Hopeless

Consolidation of School Districts Has the Support of Many Politicians.

Commenting on the proposal of William J. Cooper, former United States Commissioner of Education, that small school districts be consolidated into larger systems, in the interest of efficiency, the Philadelphia Record expresses the opinion that there is little likelihood of the realization of the plan. It says:

"Consolidation of small local government units saves money—but think what it does to the jobs held down by politicians!

"It means fewer sinecures, less feeding at the public trough. Does Dr. Cooper think any self-respecting politician is going to be for a plan that reduces the number of political jobs?

"Dr. Cooper's plan will be discarded—as most local consolidation plans have been discarded."

We are not so sure of that. Not a few of the candidates for the Legislature have announced they are in favor of consolidation of small school districts and other local government units.

Two of the outstanding candidates for Governor—former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips and Attorney General William A. Schnader—have declared for the plan. And the Democratic State Committee has incorporated in its platform a plank for the modernization of local governments to reduce taxation.

With the liquor question eliminated from consideration, the people, no longer influenced by the passions and prejudices that prohibition aroused, are likely to vote more intelligently this year than in some years past. And that augurs ill for selfish politicians who oppose measures as beneficial as consolidation of small school districts would be.

Real Banking Reform

A Unified System Catering to the Varying Needs Of Business Should Be Established.

Financial change has been rapid in recent years, and legal alterations to our banking system have been numerous.

Accordingly, instead of considering further unco-ordinated piece-meal reforms, Congress should recognize the desirability of recodifying our basic banking laws.

The fundamental objective should be to set up a unified banking system, which could cater to the varying needs of commerce, industry and agriculture.

Scientific banking has been rendered difficult, if not impossible, by the competition in charter granting of 48 states and the federal government.

Since nine-tenths of our money in circulation is bank deposit currency, which to a large extent grows out of loans by banks, commercial banking institutions should be candidly recognized as credit mints and accordingly should be placed under the exclusive supervision of the federal government.

Commercial banks, which receive demand deposits, should specialize in meeting the short term needs of business for loanable funds. Such credit expansion should be correlated to the normal growth of business, which is at the rate of about three per cent a year, rather than to the ups and downs of speculative crazes.

There is equally a need for capital loan banking to take care of the longer term needs of industry. In such cases, lending institutions should use a vastly larger quantity of their own capital in ratio to loans extended, perhaps adhering to a regulation which permits loans only three times the amount of the capital funds of the institution.

Such capital loan banks could put themselves in funds by soliciting the longer term savings of the public, attracting venturesome funds by the sale of capital stock and more conservative funds through the sale of debentures.

This type of banking could be supplemented by an extension of the Postal Savings, which could cater to savers desiring to keep their funds in a highly liquid and extraordinarily safe form.

A fourth main feature of banking relates to the fiduciary, or trust, activities.

Though all functions should be rigorously segregated, it may be unnecessary to force complete physical separations. Such physical divorcements might tend to make banking overhead unbearably high, especially in smaller communities.

An eminent banking authority and reformer, H. Parker Willis, former secretary of the Federal Reserve Board, suggests a compromise in the rigid separation of investment banking from commercial, as provided in the banking acts of 1933.

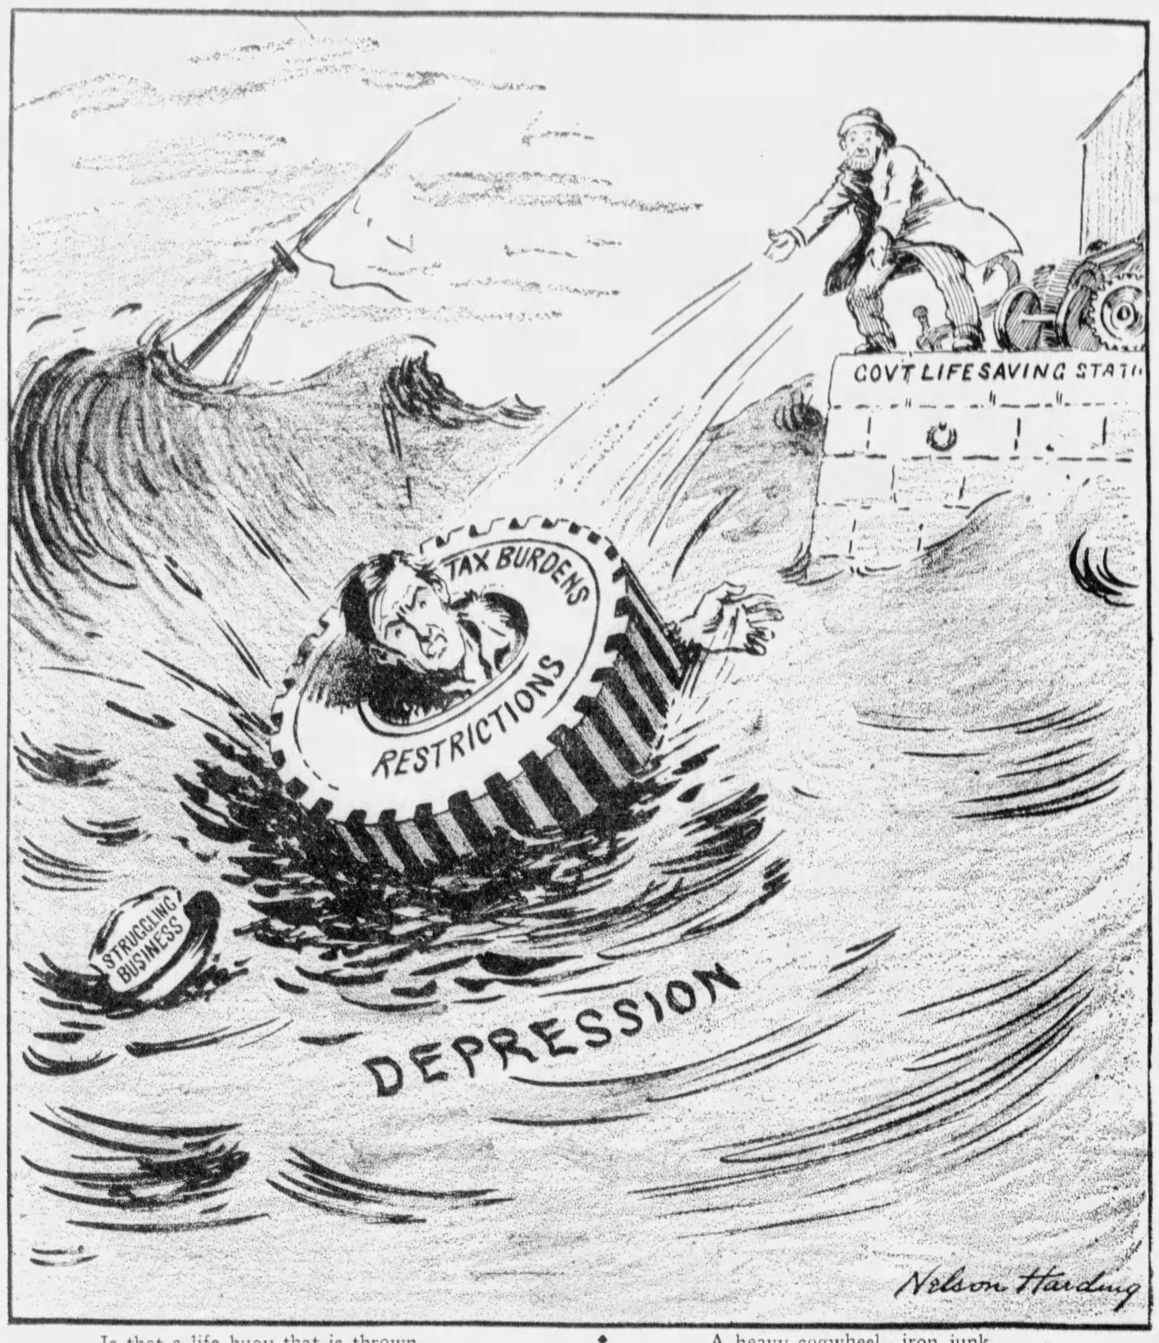
"Possibly the most feasible way of making a real start," Dr. Willis points out, in "Trust Companies," "may be found in the adoption of the California system, whereby the different banking functions—deposit banking, investment banking, trust company or fiduciary banking, and savings banking, are 'segregated,' and although conducted under a single board of directors, are carried on as separate entities with segregated assets and liabilities."

Now that public confidence in banks has been heightened by business improvement and by the working of the temporary deposit insurance plan, the time has come to draw definitely the lasting specifications for banking under the "New Deal."

The very elimination of uncertainty as to impending changes will itself heighten the willingness of conservative bankers to lend normally and thus quicken the processes of recovery in business volume and in employment.

Life Buoy?

By Nelson Harding



Is that a life buoy that is thrown
To aid a man about to drown
While struggling shoreward from a wreck?
It's like a millstone round his neck.

A heavy cogwheel—iron junk—
By which the swimmer may be sunk
Is hardly a device that saves
A shipwrecked sailor from the waves.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 19—Diary: Up, thanking the Lord for a quick recovery from 48 hours of chills and fever, the sickest I've been since crossing the Atlantic in an 80-mile-an-hour gale. But distressed over a delivery delay in Mrs. Holbrook Blinn's bid to dine, thus missing Robert Lorraine and Mary Mannering.

So grinding out my screed and with my wife to Anne and Will Hamilton's and Lord and Lady Sackville there. Then in leisurely frowst through the old Chelsea district and came upon a manufacturer of cuspidors, a quaint and fusty magic oubliette, and the once shabby offices of old Pearson's.

Flora Zabelle Hitchcock and Christine Benham to dinner and to see "Dodsworth" the second time, liking it better than any other play this season. And between acts talked to Sam Goldwyn and Billy Rose. Later with Miss Virginia Long to Major Bowe's midnight spread for the Clark Gables, and talked awhile to young Gene Raymond.

The Fred Stones quit their Forest Hills home to occupy the Rex Beach Central Park West penthouse this winter. Within three days after their departure, their manor had been robbed four times by neighborhood vandals. Fred, gazing out a window, thought it over a long time. Finally he arose and declared: "I think I'll break in and see what I can find. Everybody else does."

Raymond Hackett is Lillian Gish's most persistent stage Romeo. There are few of her plays wherein he is not the "love interest" and is always Armand to her wistful Camille. Someone tells me theirs is an old and staunch friendship, minus any real romanticism. They head plays together, play backgammon and he is one of the few with whom she appears in public for tea.

An undying legend is the sterling English actor A. E. Matthews wears a toupee. I have heard it from even members of his company and it's long a bit of gossip at the Lambs where a toupee is known at a "marmoset." The further exaggeration is that while he has spent much time in England, he was born in America. The fact is Matthews has hair that bushes out so quickly he has to have it cut every week. And he was born in Yorkshire, England, coming to New York first in 1910, but staying only a few months. He returned in 1921 in "Bull Dog Drummond," in which he scored his biggest success, and has been here most the time since.

I like fussy, tituppy old men, the sort whose barks are worse than their bite. After a neat pile of blond luggage had been deposited under a Waldorf canopy last evening a blue-bloused porter respectfully inquired of one: "Is that all your luggage?" With a snort the owner replied: "All? How much more do you want me to drag from Penang to this bloody town?"

Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before.—Philippians, iii:13.

Public Demands Justice In Air Mail Dispute

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Justice is the great interest of man on earth. It is the ligament which holds civilized beings and civilized nations together.—Daniel Webster.

IN writing the preamble to the Federal Constitution the framers enumerated the objections of the government they were establishing. The first of these was "to form a more perfect union" and the second was "to establish justice."

To establish justice was, in the estimation of the framers of the Constitution, an objective that came before providing for the common defense or promotion of the public welfare.

Public sentiment now as always supports the sequence adopted by the patriots who wrote the preamble to the Constitution. Public sentiment is forcing the Congress to establish justice in regard to the cancellation of the air mail contracts ahead of everything else—ahead of providing a larger air force for the regular Army, ahead of promoting civil aviation in the public interest.

Until those senators in Congress who by their allegations of collusion and fraud instigated the cancellation of all domestic air mail contracts without due process of law, without giving the contractors a hearing or the notice for which the law provided, can produce proof of their charges that would be accepted in a federal court, Congress will continue its investigation of the whole unfortunate affair.

* * *

Declare Proof Must Be Produced

ALREADY Senators and Representatives in Congress, both Democrats and Republicans, are letting it be known that Senator McKellar of Tennessee and Senator Black of Alabama must produce the proof that all these contracts were the fruit of collusion and fraud before pending legislation dealing with the future of American air transport can be enacted.

Although more than a month has passed since the order of cancellation was announced, the special committee appointed to investigate ocean mail and air mail contracts has not completed its inquiry. After the inquiry is completed the report of the committee's findings must be submitted to the Senate.

Until that report is filed, or until a special report giving the Senate and House of Representatives and the public evidence that will satisfy the courts and the country that fraud and collusion invalidated all the contracts canceled, the issue raised by this act of cancellation will not down.

This will not surprise those who know how deep is the American people's passion for justice. It equals their love of liberty, of whose being justice is the life-giving breath.

It has always been the pride of the American people that even a criminal is not condemned and punished without a hearing except where a mob takes the law in its own hands and lynches the victim.

The abhorrence of the American people for mob rule and lynch law is the outward and visible sign of their passion for justice.

Democratic Senators and Representatives in Congress know all this just as well as do the Republicans. But not all Democrats have the courage to demand justice for those citizens whose contracts were canceled without a hearing, without notice provided by law, without the process of law.

* * *

Primarily Question of Justice

NOR have all Republicans the self-restraint and the patriotism to limit their discussion of this stern challenge to the American system of government to the main issue raised by the cancellation of the air mail contracts—the right of every citizen under the flag to a hearing, to his day in court before he is condemned and punished.

This question of the way in which these air mail contracts were canceled is not primarily a question of air transport, of the Federal air mail or the national defense or the development of civil aviation. These are secondary questions and very secondary when compared with the question whether the government at Washington is going to provide protection to every citizen, rich or poor, strong or weak, in his American birthright—the right to his day in court before sentence is passed upon him and punishment inflicted.

This is primarily a question of American justice and not one of aeronautics — military, naval or civil.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation Now Has Money Invested in All Parts of the United States

By Edwin C. Hill

AN official statement to the effect that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has already spent six billion dollars, and that Congress has granted it another eight hundred and fifty million and extended its life to February 1, 1935, calls to mind two interesting facts—three indeed.

The first is that the R. F. C. has become about the biggest enterprise in the land, with money invested everywhere, in all sorts of baskets—banks, railways, building and loan companies, farm credit organizations and relief agencies, to mention only a few. How much of the six billion already paid out Uncle Sam will get back is just a guess, depending on the future. It won't be the whole amount, because a big sum must go to greasing the wheels of industry and agriculture and will be used up by friction. But if good times come solidly, the old gentleman may get back as much as half.

The second fact is that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was originated by Herbert Hoover, something that many people may forget in the multiplicity of Roosevelt recovery agencies. But President Roosevelt thought so well of it that he kept it going and expanded it materially, until it has become the very bulwark of finance and industry in the United States.

The third fact concerns a man, one Jesse H. Jones, of Houston, Texas, and that fact is that Jones, as head of the RFC, is just about the most influential individual in the country save for the President, and possibly one or two others very near to the President.

* * *

Started as Son Of Tennessee Farmer

A REMARKABLE man, Jesse H. Jones. Starting with $2,000 left to him by his father, a Tennessee farmer, he ran it up to a hundred million before the crash, largely in real estate and banking. What the crash did to his fortune he alone knows, though it is surmised that he has more than a few million left. In 1928, the Al Smith year, Jesse Jones was host to the Democrats of the nation in their lively national convention in Houston, and built them a wooden auditorium which was the admiration of the thousands who sat under its sun-baked roof.

To quote from Time, that lively weekly, Mr. Jones stands like a colossus over finance and business. His R. F. C. holds three hundred and ninety-four million dollars of investments in sixty-seven railroads. He has more bank stock than any man in history—four hundred and seventy-five million dollars' worth in two thousand, two hundred and thirty-five institutions. He is fifty-nine now, and a whale of a big man, six feet three and built in proportion. One of his troubles in life is that his feet bother him, and they tell an amusing story about that.

When President Wilson was in England after the war, Jesse Jones had an appointment to meet him in Buckingham Palace, where the President had gone to confer with King George. It was winter and the cold seemed to center in Mr. Jones' feet. Arriving at the palace, he was shown into a small room to await the President. A cozy fire was burning in the grate and Mr. Jones, finding himself all alone, slipped off his shoes and toasted the aching feet. Presently the President of the United States entered the small parlor, along with the King of England, and there was big Jesse Jones, of Texas, dozing in the chair, his stockinged feet absorbing the grateful heat of the fire.

Perhaps his greatest asset is his ability to get along with all kinds of men, to soothe ruffled feelings, abate jealousies, get work done. An able, hard-working, good-natured giant, Jesse H. Jones, of the Lone Star State.

Colorful Career Of Bernard Smith

AMONG the names in the news is that of Bernard E. Smith, the most colorful figure of Wall street, away off in Melbourne until Ferdinand Pecora delves into Account No. 296 and its connection with the pool in American Commercial Alcohol.

It is only two years ago that Smith was down before the United States Senators, telling of his operations in the market in the company of Percy Rockefeller, John J. Raskob and other captains of finance. That was the time that Herbert Hoover started the hunt for the big bears, and young, ruddy-faced Bernie Smith, he is only 46 now, snapped this answer:

"No one has called me a bear-raider to my face and I do not really know what a raider is."

He was one of the bigger short operators, but he had been one of the biggest long ones, and as such, was caught in the crash of 1929.

He began his career on the sidewalks of New York, was helped along in Wall street by none other than Stuyvesant Fish, and has been going places ever since. He shuns the limelight, has never been photographed, loves to drive his automobile fast, and has something of wanderlust in his blood. His sense of humor is quick and keen. It has been testified in Washington that Account 296 in the office of the brokerage house of W. P. Hutton was Smith's, and Mr. Pecora has deduced that through this account a pool was operated in American Commercial Alcohol.

Mr. Smith's secretary testified that the account was carried only as an accommodation for Thomas Bragg, who, by the way, told the Senate two years ago:

"I have no business. I am a speculator."

This time when Mr. Pecora looked for Mr. Bragg to explain his part in the pool, he was told that Mr. Bragg was in Honolulu—which is all very interesting and leads one to expect that we are going to have some fireworks while Congress discusses the Stock Exchange Control Bill.
